GOODS LIMITED TO NATIONS AT WAR WITH JAPS

Shipments Held Up Pending Survey

[Copyright: 1945: By the New York Times]

Washington, D. C., May 12—Suspension of lend-lease shipments to the soviet union, as one of the immediate consequences of the end of the war in Europe, was disclosed tonight by Foreign Economic Administrator Crowley.

Leo T. Crowley.

New shipments to Europe have been held up with the exception of those earmarked for countries at war with Japan, "or countries thru which redeployment of our troops now in Europe will be facilitated thereby," Crowley stated.

Purely a War Measure

"Lend-lease is purely an instrument for winning the war," he said. "The act itself indicates clearly, and interpretations expressed by administration officials in testimony before the congress have borne it out, that lend-lease was designed solely for military purposes or for purposes vital to the defense of the United States.

"With the European war over and Russia at peace with Japan, it is patent that the soviet union does not qualify for continuing shipments of war and related materials.

"It is necessary with the end of hostilities in Europe," Crowley declared, "to review lend-lease programs so that American resources will be distributed in such a way as to make the utmost possible contribution to victor in the major war which we still have to win."

Shipments Held Up

He reported that a reëxamination and review of lend-lease shipments was taking place and that no shipments would be made until completion of the surveys.

With the cessation of hostilities in Europe, the soviet union found itself completely at peace, having received the surrender of Germany, Italy, and the minor axis satellites. Russia is the principal lend-lease recipient not at war with Japan.

While there was some question whether the cessation of shipments would not be subject to revision subsequent to the government's review, nothing was said today to justify any assumption either that Russia was committed to enter the Japanese war or that she would not eventually engage in that conflict.

Today's action on lend-lease failed to uncover any new information on the state of conversations between this country and the soviet union over our granting post-war credits of several billion dollars to Russia for rehabilitation.

[The Associated Press quoted an "informed source" as saying substantial amounts of lend-lease are going to Russia by routes other than Europe and declared such lend-lease supplies "apparently" are not affected. Crowley's statement, however, made no mention of this.]

U. S. Tells Tito to Keep Hands Off Trieste

Washington, D. C., May 12 (AP)—The United States tonight served notice on Marshal Tito that allied military forces will control Trieste and the surrounding area in northeastern Italy despite Yugoslav claims.

Area allies refuse to yield to Tito.

Noting that Marshal Tito, according to radio reports, is setting up a "national federal government of Slovenia" in Trieste, Acting Secretary of State Grew issued a public statement reaffirming the policy of the United States that territorial changes should be made only after thoro study and full consultation among the governments concerned.

"Only on this basis can adequate consideration be given to the human, economic, and political elements involved and a just and stable solution be found," declared Grew.

30 Questions to Be Answered

He said solution of such territorial questions will be one of the most difficult problems of coming months, and that there are 30 or more such questions in Europe which require careful study before satisfactory decisions can be reached.

Coming as it did in the midst of an Anglo-American deadlock with Russia over the makeup of a provisional government for Poland, Grew's statement appeared to represent a stiffening American attitude.

Tito had Moscow support long before the western allies had any dealings with him.

"Many months ago it was decided that the best way to avoid hasty and precarious territorial solutions in the Anglo-American theater of operations would be to establish and maintain an allied military government in the disputed areas pending settlement by the orderly processes to which the united nations are pledged," Grew recalled.

Need Disputed Area

He said the disputed Venezia Giulia area is temporarily of prime military importance because allied occupation forces require a zone of administration including adequate port facilities and lines of communication to central Europe.

He said Tito, in February, accepted the idea of such an allied military government for this region.

"Notwithstanding this agreement, claims have now been advanced that by virtue of conquest Yugoslav forces are entitled to control this region," he added.

Grew declared "the present problem is far more than a mere frontier controversy between two claimants.

"It raises the issue of the settlement of international disputes by orderly process rather than by unilateral action. The disposition of Venezia Giulia, as of other disputed territories, must therefore await a definite peace settlement in which the claims of both sides and the peoples concerned will receive a full and fair hearing."

Bonomi Asks Allied Occupation

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune]

ROME, May 12—Field Marshal Alexander arrived here this morning. He and Ellery W. Stone of the allied commission called on Premier Bonomi. The premier, acting on the authority of his cabinet, renewed the plea that the allies formally occupy Trieste.

STALIN NOTES CAUSE A STIR IN WASHINGTON

Statement Issued by Grew

A 'Personal Matter'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, May 12—Official quarters here today refused to comment on THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE story about the 1,000 word note in which Marshal Stalin is said to have charged Prime Minister Churchill with welching on the Yalta agreement and perverting the truth. Tho one informed spokesman admitted knowledge of the story, he said the view taken here was that it was a purely personal matter between Churchill and Stalin and that no official reaction would be available on the situation. Mrs. Churchill, wife of the prime minister, flew back to Britain from Moscow today by direct air route. She has been inspecting the work of soviet hospitals and Russia's counterpart to the Red Cross.

BY WALTER TROHAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., May 12—Authoritative state department sources today confirmed THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE story that Marshal Stalin has been in direct communication with Prime Minister Churchill and President Truman on the dispute among the Big Three on the Polish question.

The state department officials said the soviet dictator thus far has failed to reply to the separate British and American notes demanding details of the Russian arrest of 16 Polish democratic leaders, who had been coöperating with the Polish government in exile in London.

Issues Statement

Acting Secretary of State Grew would not comment officially on the story that Stalin had sent amazingly outspoken notes to Churchill and the President. Grew, however, issued a statement denying that there is no possibility of coöperation between Russia and the western allies. He said:

"In reply to a question, the acting secretary of state said that he knows of no communication from Marshal Stalin which would confirm a press report that there is no possibility of coöperation between the soviet union and her western allies."

Russia and Britain

THE TRIBUNE story, on which the question was based, did not make this assertion. The story said Stalin had declared frankly in his note to Churchill that there is no possibility of coöperation between Great Britain and Russia and that the red leader warned in his note to Mr. Truman that he "doubted" the possibility of coöperation between Russia and the United States.

It was recognized here that Mr. Grew could not acknowledge that all possibility of coöperation had vanished, because in diplomatic parlance coöperation among nations ceases only with the severance of relations or declaration of war.

Neither the White House or the British foreign office issued any denial of the story, which was regarded as a tacit confirmation of the reported contents of the Stalin notes. The British press had de-

Red Inaction Delays U. S. Prisoners

REIMS, SHAEF ADVANCE HDQ., May 12 (AP)—Nearly half of the estimated 200,000 British and 76,000 American prisoners of war still in Germany are believed to be within the Russian zone of occupation and supreme headquarters has twice requested a meeting or an agreement to arrange for their return.

Up to late today, there had been no reply from Marshal Ivan S. Konev to whom the requests were addressed. Presumably, the war prisoners still are waiting in the camps.

Col. E. F. Straub of SHAEF's prisoner of war recovery branch said there was every reason to hope for a meeting within the next day or two which might permit direct recovery of the prisoners.

If direct recovery were made possible at once and by air—and it cannot be foreseen what arrangements the Russians may approve—the last of these men might be on their way to England and the United States within two weeks to a month.

Planes, some of them big four engine heavies now freed from bombing duty, have been used to evacuate close to 90 per cent of those so far brought back from prison camps in zones now occupied by British and American troops. Yesterday alone 35,000 men came back by air.

TRIBUNE PRESENTS TRUMAN WITH COLOR PORTRAIT OF HIMSELF

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., May 12—President Truman today was presented with a color portrait of himself made two weeks ago, which is to be reproduced in colors in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE shortly.

Mr. Truman expressed himself as highly pleased with the portrait, which he described as excellent. The portrait shows him seated at his desk with the American flag behind his right shoulder.

The picture was made by E. Harrison Johnson and James Thomas of The Tribune color studio on April 28.

LEOPOLD ASKS HIS BROTHER TO STAY AS REGENT

BRUSSELS, Belgium, May 12 [Reuters]—King Leopold III. of Belgium, in a letter to his brother, Prince Regent Charles, said that his health after captivity would not allow him to "return immediately" to Belgium, it was officially disclosed tonight after a cabinet meeting.

Leopold asked his brother to carry on as regent.

The following bulletin was issued after the cabinet meeting: "The ministers who together with prince regent got in touch with King Leopold in Austrian territory [Salzburg] have returned to Brussels. The king in a letter addressed to his brother, the Prince Regent Charles, informed him that as a result of his captivity the state of his health did not allaw him to return immediately to Belgium. The king therefore asked his brother to continue ths mission with which he had been entrusted. The prince regent remained with the king."

An Immigrant in '24 Passes Out $70,000

Esper Petersen, 40, who came to this country from Denmark 21 years ago with no knowledge of English and with little education, started giving away $70,000 yesterday.

Esper Petersen

A one time Crystal Lake chicken farmer, Petersen is mailing checks totaling $70,000 to 12 philanthropic causes from his newly organized Esper A. Petersen Foundation, his own method for what he hopes will be the systematic distribution of $100,000 a year, eventually.

Petersen's present ability to step into philanthropy began in the fall of 1936 when he shared a garage workshop in Oak Park and made molds. His idea then, he said yesterday, was to sell a couple of dies before Christmas and go home to Denmark to see his folks. By Christmas, he had 10 persons working for him.

Million Dollar Plant in 1943

The shop grew and was moved and grew until in the autumn of 1943 Petersen had his own million dollar plant at 4001 Wrightwood av.—the Chicago Die Mold Manufacturing company, custom molders of plastics.

The plant is in war work now. There are 225 employes.

His foundation, which he established after he began to be asked for sizable subscriptions and was in a position to make them, is headed by Bertha Matthews and operates at 4027 N. Austin av. Its purpose is stated as: "For the improvement of social conditions and to advance good will among men thru education and charity."

$30,000 for Destitute

In his first lots of gifts, $5,000 was set aside to abate unhealthy smoke conditions here. [Petersen got sick when he came here in 1927 with only enough money to pay his first week's room rent.] His largest gift yesterday was $30,000 for a home for destitute people. The Red Cross got $10,000, and Camp Algonquin, $1,000. Scholarships, an organization for sending medical books to Denmark, the Seeing Eye, Inc., Community and War Fund, and Salvation Army were also among the beneficiaries.

Petersen is the son of a baker, one of nine children. He lives in a four room apartment at 5036 N. Springfield av., and he says that it's off the record, but that when he makes rolls, it seems that he took after his father. And believe it or not, girls, he's a bachelor.

HE LOVES ICE CREAM; SHE HOPES THAT CLEW WILL REUNITE THEM

Miami, Fla., May 12 (AP)—A tearful-eyed young wife made the rounds of every ice cream parlor in Miami today in the hope of finding her navy officer husband whom she has not seen for 20 months.

"Sooner or later I know I'll find him eating ice cream," said the pretty, brunette wife, Mrs. Dorothy Olson, 25, who flew 4,200 miles from her home in Spokane, Wash., to spend a few days with her husband before he returns overseas.

Last Sunday, in Spokane, Mrs. Olson received a cablegram from her husband, Naval Lt. [j. g.] Francis L. Olson, 27, telling her to meet him in Miami either today or tomorrow.

The couple were to meet at the home of Mrs. Olson's aunt, Mrs. Kelly Blanton, in Miami.

But when the young wife arrived here, she found that her aunt had moved several months ago—none of the neighbors knew where.

Mrs. Olson then called naval headquarters here. Yes, she was told, Lt. Olson checked in at 6 p. m. yesterday. He was not expected back there before Monday and had left no address.

Miami newspapers and radio stations, the Red Cross, the navy shore patrol, and the Miami police department all joined in the quest for the missing husband.

But Mrs. Olson pinned her faith on ice cream parlors. "I'll find him there," she said hopefully. "You just don't know how that man loves ice cream."

U-BOAT ON WAY TO SURRENDER OFF EAST COAST

New York, May 12 (AP)—The first enemy vessel to surrender in American home waters since the outbreak of the war—the German submarine U-858—is now en route to Cape May, N. J., where it is due Monday, the navy said tonight.

Earlier the submarine had been expected to arrive at Cape May tomorrow, but the navy said it had been delayed by storms at sea.

[Guthrie Janssen, NBC reporter, reported from Cape May that "several German submarines" were expected to surrender Monday at a rendezvous point off the New Jersey town.]

Vice Adm. H. F. Leary, commander of the eastern sea frontier, said the submarine made contact with United States fleet units several days ago and is being escorted to Cape May.

In accordance with the rule promulgated by the navy and the British admiralty, the submarine, flying the black surrender flag, will come in on the surface with a large proportion of her crew on deck.

GUAM, May 13 [Sunday]—(AP)—American forces destroyed 169 Japanese aircraft, but suffered damage to one major fleet unit and several other surface ships in actions off the Ryukyus, Adm. Nimitz announced today.

On Thursday Vice Adm. Mitscher's carriers raided air fields and shipping on islands in the Amami group in the northern Ryukyus. It was in this strike that the major fleet unit, presumably a battleship or large carrier, was damaged.

This action ranged from the northern Ryukyus to American forces lying off Okinawa. A total of 72 Japanese airplanes was destroyed, including 40 over Okinawa. Ship's guns shared with carrier pilots in downing the enemy airplanes.

93 More Shot Down

The Amami raid saw Yank pilots destroying four more Nipponese planes on the ground in low level attacks and damaging warehouses, installations and a number of luggers.

The enemy returned to the attack on American shipping Friday. Altho 93 attackers were shot down, the Japanese managed to damage "several surface ships," Nimitz reported.

One American destroyer shot down 19 Japanese planes on this one day, a record for a ship of this size.

Cruisers and destroyers, covered by carrier aircraft, bombarded Minami Island about 200 miles east of Okinawa, Thursday. This was at least the third time Minami has been attacked by surface units or aircraft.

Occupy Tori Island

Unidentified troops of Lt. Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner Jr.'s 10th United States army occupied Tori Island, approximately 55 miles west of Okinawa, yesterday.

On Okinawa, 6th marine division troops entered suburbs of Naha, capital city on the west coast. Elsewhere, the 1st marine and 96th, and 77th army divisions made appreciable gains.

The 1st marine division and the 77th army division in the center of the line made progress against Japanese cave and ridge positions. On the east coast, the 96th division captured important strongpoints and straightened its line, which flanks Yonabaru air strip.

The 96th troops hold positions a mile and a half beyond the southern end of the air strip, but the Japanese have prevented capture of the field because they still hold commanding positions from which they can pour artillery onto the runway.

Use Flame-Throwing Tanks

Street fighting was under way in Takamotoji as the marines battled for entry into Naha itself after 42 days of the central Pacific's most sustained bitter ground campaign. All four divisions on the southern line are employing tanks. The 77th division effectively employed flame-throwing tanks against Japanese caves.

Perhaps 100,000 Americans and Japanese were fighting one of the most vicious land battles of the war on a front only four miles long, the width of the narrow island.

When the offensive opened Friday the marine 6th division drove to about half a mile from Naha, one time Japanese naval base on the west coast, now a pile of ruins.

U. S. DELEGATES COMPROMISE ON REGIONAL PACT

Latin Nations Hit Proposal

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., May 12—Events of great moment featured the activities today of the international conference to create a new league of nations to enforce peace. The outstanding developments were:

1. The United States delegation unanimously agreed on a proposed compromise of the controversy raging over the preservation of the Monroe Doctrine.

2. Hastily convened for the farewell attendance of British Foreign Minister Eden and Deputy Prime Minister Attlee, who are departing for London tomorrow, the representatives of the Big Five powers considered the American compromise on the Monroe Doctrine issue and the British, American, Russian, and Chinese plans for trusteeships of conquered territories.

Holds Spotlight

The American compromise held the spotlight as the diplomatic maneuvering continued behind the scenes to appease the Latin American delegations and the United States senate.

The Latin American countries are leading a revolt against the Dumbarton Oaks provision whereby the United States and other American republics could not invoke the Monroe Doctrine to repel an aggression in this hemisphere without first obtaining the permission of the proposed new peace league's security council.

The American delegation's proposed compromise provides that in some cases it would be necessary to get such permission but not in others. It defines three classes of regional activities to enforce peace and the required procedure in each case. These classes are:

1. Pacific measures: In invoking conciliation, arbitration or other peaceful means of settling an international dispute the United States and other American republics could proceed under the Monroe Doctrine and the act of Chapultepec, adopted at the Mexico City conference, acting either independently or in concert with the security council of the peace league.

Threatened Aggression

2. Forceful measures: In case of a threatened aggression or other breach of the peace in this hemisphere the use of economic sanctions or armed force could be invoked against the potential aggressor only with the authority of the security council, as provided by Dumbarton Oaks.

3. Self-defense: In case of an armed attack actually made on any nation in this hemisphere the American republics would be free to exercise the sovereign right of self-defense without asking the permission of the peace league.

This proposed compromise was evolved by Sen. Vandenberg [R., Mich.], Comdr. Stassen, Sen. Connally [D., Tex.], and John Foster Dulles, adviser to the American delegation. It was submitted today to the representatives of the big five powers — the United States, Great Britain, Russia, China, and France—as a compromise between the position of the internationalists, who would subordinate the Monroe doctrine and the act of Chapultepec to the authority of the new league of nations, and the position of the nationalists, who insist on the retention of full freedom of action to repel aggression in this hemisphere as exercised by the United States under the Monroe doctrine for 125 years.

No Action Taken

No action was taken on the compromise by the Big Five and none will be taken pending its submission to the Latin American countries which have led the battle in the conference to save the Monroe Doctrine from impairment. Some Latin American leaders said tonight they regard it as a straddle that is unacceptable to the extent that it would require the American republics to seek under certain circumstances the permission of the peace league to deal with aggression or threatened aggression in this hemisphere.

While under the compromise it is provided in only one of the three categories that the authority of the security council must be obtained, these leaders pronounced it objectionable on the same grounds taken against the original Dumbarton Oaks provision.

An example of action in this category would be a boycott of an aggressor or the use of other economic sanctions or the blockade of a harbor or the mobilization of armed forces on a boundary line to prevent a threatened aggression. It would be necessary to get the permission of the security council to take such steps.

But under the voting procedure agreed to at the Yalta conference, any one of the Big Five permanent members of the security council could veto the sanction of such measures. If, for example, Russia ever were to attempt to extend the soviet system to the western hemisphere as it is doing in eastern Europe today, the United States and the other American republics would be compelled to seek the permission of the security council to take forceful measures against the aggressor and Russia would be able to veto such defense against its aggression.

Independent of League

Under the terms of the proposed compromise, it would be only in invoking peaceful measures of settlement or after an aggressor had landed his forces on American soil, that the American republics would be permitted to act independently of the league under the Monroe Doctrine.

Members of the American delegation, however, were pleased with their compromise.

"Our minds have met," said one of them, "on this important issue. We are seeking to solve a very difficult problem. It has to be settled if this conference is to succeed. We expect final and complete success."

At Dumbarton Oaks Mr. Roosevelt and his fellow internationalists agreed with the eastern hemisphere nations to subordinate the Monroe Doctrine to the world peace enforcement plan. The internationalists contended that if regional agencies were free to act against aggression the new peace league would have nothing to do.

American nationalists inveighed in vain against the impairment of the Monroe Doctrine, warning that it would be folly to sacrifice this cardinal principle of American foreign policy to a new experiment with a league of nations which might prove no more successful than the first league.

Doctrine Transformed

Mr. Roosevelt, however, appointed an American delegation to San Francisco overwhelmingly internationalist in viewpoint and the delegation came to the conference approving of the Dumbarton Oaks provision that placed the Monroe Doctrine in leading strings.

Soon thereafter, however, the Latin American republics at the Mexico City conference induced the United States to agree to the act of Chapultepec which transforms the Monroe Doctrine from a unilateral pronouncement enforced by the United States alone to a multilateral principle subscribed to by all the American republics. It provides that any aggression upon any American republic shall be the concern of all.

The big five made little, if any, progress in resolving differences over the trusteeship plan.

Under the American proposal the Pacific islands wrested from Japan would be divided into strategic areas for the establishment of naval bases and nonstrategic areas. The trustee would be accountable to the security council for administration of the strategic areas. The British would make no distinction between areas.

The Russian proposals, while they only reduced to writing the ideas which Russian Foreign Commissar Molotov expounded in press conferences before his departure, served to throw the conference into something of a state of excitement.

Want Permanent Place

These proposals assert that Russia should be a permanent member of the proposed trusteeship council of the peace league. They declare that greater power should be given to the security council. On this, Russia is one of the five permanent members, each of which has a veto power.

Russia's proposals, which are in the form of amendments to the American proposals, stipulate that in designating a strategic area or areas which may be part or all of a trusteeship arrangement, the recommendation of the security council should be required. As Russia is one of the big five on the council, each with a veto power, this would give the soviet union power to veto any such recommendation, and would throw the door open for trading by the Russians.

Ask Membership.

On the trusteeship council to be set up in the league, another proposal of Russia stipulates that permanent members of the security council not administering a trusteeship should be members.

The Russian plan declares that the colonial peoples should be given a chance to accomplish "full national independence," instead of the phrase "self-government." It says the basic objective of a trusteeship system should be "self-determination with active participation of peoples of these territories having the aim to expedite the achievement by them of full national independence."

Where the American plan says that arrangements for an area to be placed under trusteeships should be agreed upon "by the states directly concerned," the Russian plan crosses out this phrase and substitutes the words by states "which were or are concerned in this matter." This is regarded as an indication that the soviet union proposes to have a full voice in the allocation of strategic bases or colonial territories and might open up old disputes over custody of specific areas.

China's proposals, which were submitted to the Big Five some days ago, call for the addition of the word "independence" to the American objective for trustee territories.

EDEN BORROWS 5 CTS. FROM REPORTER TO PLAY THE JUKE BOX

San Francisco, Cal., May 12 (AP).—British Foreign Secretary Eden borrowed a nickel from a reporter today so two little British boys might hear an American juke box for the first time.

The boys looked wonderingly at the juke box while Eden searched his pockets.

"Boys," he said, "I can't find a nickel, so I guess we won't play this music box."

The boys—members of a group of 60 British subjects repatriated from a Japanese prison camp in the Philippines en route to England—looked disappointed, so Eden turned to a newspaperman and got a coin.

The music started, one of those loud jazzy songs.

"Gee," said one of the boys, "do they have these music boxes in England?"

The diplomat said no.

URGES FREEDOM BE GUARANTEED IN OAKS CHARTER

Lith Representative Attacks Russia

BY FRANK HUGHES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., May 12—A proposal to amend the Dumbarton Oaks charter, which is the guide book for the international security conference here, to include some of the language and the elemental guarantees of freedom of the Declaration of Independence of the United States was made today by William F. Laukaitis of Baltimore, representing the Lithuanian American council.

Laukaitis held a press conference in the St. Francis hotel, home of the soviet Russian delegation, whose nation he charges with "wholesale extermination, bloody reprisals, confiscation of private property, deportations of peaceful citizens, and suppression of their religious freedom and individual human rights" in the three Baltic states of Lithuania, Latvia, and Estonia.

Deprived of Autonomy

These three nations were not invited to the San Francisco conference because Russia has taken away their autonomy, altho they formerly were members of the league of nations, Laukaitis said.

"Our founding fathers in their Declaration of Independence proclaimed that all men are created equal, are endowed by their creator with certain inalienable rights such as life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness, and that governments derive their powers from the consent of the governed," Laukaitis asserted.

Deviation Charged

"We hold that the same principles should be recognized by all nations and should constitute the basis for the entire international security organization. Unfortunately, the trend of affairs since the Dumbarton Oaks meeting is deviating from the course of these fundamental principles."

SEN. MORSE RIPS BAN ON AMERICAN PAPERS IN REICH

Washington, D. C., May 12 (AP)—Sen. Morse [R., Ore.] called on the administration today to "practice as well as preach" freedom of the press.

In a statement, Morse described as "most unconvincing" the "excuses and rationalizations advanced by War Information Director Elmer Davis and SHAEF" for censorship regulations prohibiting circulation of American publications in Germany.

The administration, he declared, should lift the ban at once.

"I favor very firm controls over Germany, but not the adoption of dictatorial methods which violate the principles in defense of which we are fighting this war," Morse said.

TWO TRILLIONS! THAT'S FRANCE'S BILL OF DAMAGE

BY HENRY WALES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., May 12—"Trillion" as a numerical term emerges for the first time in history outside of distance in astronomy in France's damage claims during the war which totaled 2,000,000,000,000 francs [50 billion dollars], it was learned here today. The amount is reckoned according to the gold value of the French paper franc in 1938 and 1939, which averaged 2½ cents.

Nearly half of this staggering total is imputed to damage caused by bombs dropped by the royal air force and United States air forces, and is therefore not technically a claim against Germany.

Whether the losses inflicted by American bombs will be charged to reverse lend-lease has not been decided, but it is believed the total massive sum will be levied against the reich on the ground that Hitler started the war and therefore Nazi Germany was responsible for all damages and losses, directly or indirectly, as the conflict spread.

Losses Are Analyzed

The two trillion franc total breaks down as follows:

900,000,000,000 for damages to civilian habitations.

200,000,000,000 to factories and industrial plants.

500,000,000,000 to installation, machinery, etc., in these plants.

170,000,000,000 for railroad damages.

120,000,000,000 for damages to roads and bridges.

35,000,000,000 damages to ports and harbors.

3,000,000,000 damages to telephones, telegraph and postal service.

72,000,000,000 miscellaneous items.

Another item headed Nazi and Italian "spoliation" in France created a bill for $22,200,000,000 with the Germans responsible for $20,580,000,000 and the fascists the balance.

A Huge Labor Job

France estimates it will require 14,300,000,000 labor hours to reconstruct damaged properties. Based on a 48 hour week, it will require the services of 7,000,000 workers one year, or one million workers seven years to rebuild France.

The French government also cites the following losses incurred in the war to prove that Marshal Petain's armistice in June, 1940, after nine months of war, does not mean that the Republic did not suffer serious casualties.

Here are the official figures:

120,000 members of the armed forces killed in action.

100,000 civilians killed by enemy action.

40,000 civilians killed in air raids, by British and American bombs.

Deaths from Malnutrition

30,000 civilians died from malnutrition in Germany.

40,000 civilians executed in Nazi concentration camps.

2,000,000 military prisoners of war captured by the wehrmacht.

770,000 "slave" workers deported to labor in German industry.

France's population decreased 2,600,000 as a result of the war, having been 39,600,000 in 1939 and being only 37,000,000 today.

VOTES TO LIMIT SECURITY GROUP TO 11 COUNTRIES

Committee Refuses Plea for More

BY EUGENE GRIFFIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., May 12—An international conference committee voted unanimously today to refuse the requests of smaller nations for more seats on the security council of a proposed peace enforcement organization being drafted here.

After three days of discussion, the committee approved the original Dumbarton Oaks proposal that the council should consist of one representative of each of 11 member nations. Permanent seats will be filled by the United States, Great Britain, Russia, China, and France. Six other members will be elected to two year terms by the general assembly.

The smaller nations had argued that the council should be enlarged to make it more democratic and to give greater representation to all countries whose military forces would be incorporated in a world police force. Latin American countries particularly insisted on having a more important voice in the council.

Favors Smaller Nations

The structure and procedures committee of the security council commission heard the arguments relating to proposals to increase the council memberships. Thanassis Aghnides, of Greece, acting chairman of the committee, said Egypt and one European nation, which he did not name, were on the side of the smaller nations. "But all agreed on the final figure of 11 members," he said.

Big four delegates — the United States, Britain, Russia, and China—were opposed to adding more members to the council on the ground that it would become unwieldy. The committee's vote will be referred to the security council commission for ratification.

Twelve committees and seven subcommittees are grappling with more than 700 pages of amendments offered by the conference nations to the Dumbarton Oaks proposals. Night meetings were held by many of them this week to hurry the work of writing a world charter.

Basic Principles

Committees have adopted the practice of concentrating scores of amendments into as few basic principles as possible for voting purposes. The proposal to increase the membership of the security council was one of the few questions actually put to a vote in committee.

Among the subjects under discussion are: Should international treaties be registered with the world organization, and should a nation be bound by the obligations of an old treaty that is inconsistent with the proposed organization?

What diplomatic privileges and immunities, including fiscal and customs exemptions, should be allowed representatives of the organization?

FRANCE SPURNS USE OF GERMAN FORCED LABOR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., May 12—Despite reports to the contrary, France will not ask for mass German "slave labor" to rebuild devastated regions.

The French government may utilize the services of a hundred to two hundred thousand German prisoners of war whom they now hold to reconstruct certain port areas, such as Dunkirk or Saint Nazaire, but it is expected that this labor can be accomplished well before war prisoners normally would be repatriated, according to the French spokesman here.

Altho France's stand is based on grounds that she has more than enough workers herself, the French delegation here appears to be keenly aware of the inherent distaste in the United States for forced labor, intensified as it is thru the fact that this country fought the bloodiest war in history between 1861 and 1865 on that very issue.

FRENCH FIND LORIENT U-BOAT PENS ARE INTACT

LONDON, May 13 [Reuters]—The French navy in taking over Lorient, one of the German Atlantic pockets, found the military installations intact, including the great German submarine bases, Paris radio reported tonight.

Three submarines and some 20 light German craft, minesweepers and patrol vessels, as well as a great number of small auxiliary ships were found afloat.

Only one motor boat succeeded in forcing the blockade and escaping to Spain.

FRISCO SOCIETY'S JOYOUS CLAMOR ROARS ON AND ON

Nation's Mourning Period Passes Unnoticed

BY WILLARD EDWARDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., May 12—The 30 day period of mourning for the late President Roosevelt, which was supposed to have put a damper on social festivities at the world security conference, expires tomorrow almost unnoticed amidst the joyous clamor of an unceasing round of receptions, dinners, and cocktail parties.

"Never before in the memory of the oldest living society editor has there been such a plethora of social news," breathed a local society chronicler in ecstacy. That was a strong statement, for San Francisco has been noted, since the days of the "gold mine aristocrats" of Nob Hill, for the magnitude of its formal entertainment.

Russians in Limelight

Lifting of the state department's ban on gatherings of more than 20 guests will find the Russian delegation, which has cornered most of the honors in the diplomatic field, occupying the limelight on the social stage this week. A reception for the soviet delegation, headed by Ambassador Gromyko, will be held at the St. Francis hotel by the northern California committee for Russian war relief, with a long list of society luminaries as hostesses.

The British continue to be among the most sought after as guests, their Oxford accent, in the opinion of most hostesses, more than overcoming a slight arrogance noticeable in the public behavior of a number of representatives of the United Kingdom which has occasioned some criticism in the lower crust of society.

Following are some of the major festivities noted:

DINNER PARTY—By Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, former minister to Norway. Guests included Ecuador's minister, Gallo Plaza Lasso; Mme. Henri Bonnet, wife of the French ambassador; Dingle Foot of the British delegation; Eugene Meyer, Washington, D. C., publisher; Rita Hayworth, Hollywood film star; Cyro De Feitas Valle, Brazilian ambassador to Canada, and Congresswoman Helen Gahagan Douglas.

DINNER—By Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Hager in their Berkeley home for Abdel Hamid Badawi Pasha, minister of foreign affairs for Egypt, and his wife.

DINNER—By Mrs. Georges De Latour for French Ambassador Bonnet and Mrs. Bonnet.

Liberians Are Guests

DINNER—By Mrs. Stanhope Nixon for C. L. Simpson, vice president of Liberia, and Gabriel L. Dennis, secretary of state of Liberia.

DINNER—By Mrs. Turner McBaine for the Chinese ambassador, Wei Tao-ming.

LUNCHEON—In the Burlingame home of Mrs. Samuel Knight for Ali Jawdat, minister of Iraq, and his wife and daughter.

DINNER—By Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Carpenter for Gen. Alphonse Juin, French chief of staff of national defense, and other members of the French delegation.

HIGH TEA—At the home of Mrs. Vallejo Gantner for the Hon. John McEwen and other members of the Australian delegation.

Epsteins Entertain

DINNER PARTY—By Pedro Leao Velloso, foreign minister of Brazil, for Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada. Guests included ambassadors and ministers of most of the South American republics and Joseph Paul-Boncour, French delegate.

WEEK-END PARTY—At the Saratoga Hills home of Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Epstein for members of the Czech delegation, including Jan Masaryk, minister of foreign affairs, and Vladimir S. Hurban, ambassador to the United States.

RECEPTION—For Near East notables in the Telegraph Hill home of Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Dailey. Guests included the Egyptian foreign minister, the minister of Iraq, and their wives.

Bidault Is Host

DINNER—By Georges Bidault, French foreign minister, for the heads of South American, Luxemburg, Greece, and Haiti delegations.

COCKTAIL PARTY—By Mr. and Mrs. Drew Chidester for members of the Norwegian delegation headed by Foreign Minister Trygve Lie, in the Bohemian club.

COCKTAIL PARTY—By Brazilian Ambassador Carlos Martins for Cimou Diamantopolous, ambassador from Greece.

A week-end in Yosemite valley was spent by Lord Halifax, British ambassador, and Lady Halifax, as the guests of Dr. Donald B. Tresidder, president of Stanford university.

H. B. CHAMBERLIN SON IS AWARDED 2 MORE MEDALS

Maj. Wm. C. Chamberlin

Additional honors have been awarded to Maj. William C. Chamberlin, 27, marine corps battalion commander whose father, the late Col. Henry Barrett Chamberlin, was managing editor of the Chicago Record Herald and founded the Chicago Crime commission, and whose mother, Mrs. Irene C. Chamberlin, 4418 N. Paulina st., has just finished a term as president of the Chicago Women's club, Mrs. Chamberlin learned yesterday.

Maj. Chamberlin, who was awarded the navy's highest honor, the navy cross, and the Purple Heart, for his part in the capture of Tarawa, since has been given two silver stars, the mother was advised. The first silver star was for "conspicuous gallantry" as an infantry battalion commander at Saipan; the second was won at Tinian Island, which, like Saipan, is in the Marianas group.

Maj. Chamberlin was graduated from Dartmouth college and did post-war graduate work at Columbia university. He later taught at Northwestern university, residing in Evanston at the time. His son, Henry Barrett Chamberlin III., and his wife, the former Beverly Mann, are in Seattle, Wash., where her father, Rear Adm. William Leahy Mann, is in charge of medical work for that naval district.

Austria Orders Nazi Party Dissolved, Says Moscow

LONDON, May 12 [Reuters]—The provisional Austrian government has ordered the dissolution of the Austrian Nazi party and its military formations, Moscow radio said tonight. The decree provides the death penalty for violation said the radio.

IT'S THE HEAT, 85 DEGREES, THAT WORRIES LONDON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, May 12—London sweltered today in an 85 degree heat wave. Less than two weeks ago snowstorms swept southeastern England. Thousands of Londoners flocked to seaside resorts for the victory week-end holidays. Other throngs poured out to sport events. Between 650 and 700 taxis took patrons to the horse races at Windsor. Officials made no checkup on whether "essential" gasoline was being misused.

'AIR INVASION' OPENS MIGHTY 7TH BOND DRIVE

An "air invasion" of Chicago, complete with mass parachute jumps, glider landings, aerial supply drops, and evacuation of wounded, opened the seventh war loan drive in the city yesterday. With the airport as the point of attack, 62 officers and enlisted men and one nurse put on the first event of a three day program to inaugurate the loan drive, which begins officially tomorrow.

Paratroopers jumped from both sides of a giant C-46 carrier plane for the first phase of the attack. A CG-13 glider and two CG-4A gliders landed with loads of troops, a jeep, anti-tank guns, and other equipment. Ambulance planes and gliders were used to evacuate the "wounded."

Glider Stops on Dime

A glider piloted by Lt. Joseph Molinary of St. Paul, Va., came to a stop with its nose on a dime placed on a runway, to show with what accuracy the engineless craft can be guided. The dime became the property of Werner Wieboldt, executive of Wieboldt Stores, Inc., for buying the largest total of war bonds in the day, $250,000.

Among distinguished guests present were Gov. Green; Renslow P. Sherer, state war bond chairman; Lt. Col. Michael Dobervitch of the marine corps; Maj. Howard Hutchinson of the air technical service command; Lt. Col. H. C. Miller of the army signal corps; Capt. Thomas Cullen, representing the Great Lakes naval training center, and Maj. L. F. Boozer, assistant air liaison officer of the 6th service command.

Repeat of "Airmada"

The "Airmada" demonstration, scheduled for yesterday noon but postponed until today because of inclement weather, will include between 70 and 100 planes. Altho the war department allows only a single "airmada," or eight planes, to appear in an aerial demonstration, special arrangements were made for Chicago. The "airmada" will be repeated tomorrow noon and the invasion, at 2:30 p. m. today and tomorrow. Displays of equipment will be open daily until 8 p. m.

The show is being staged jointly by the army air forces, the army ground forces, and the troop carrier command.

140,000 Salesmen

The air shows are a prelude to intensive activity planned during the "Mighty 7th" war loan drive thruout Chicago and Cook county. The local quota is the highest to date, $327,474,000. Approximately 140,000 men and women volunteer bond salesmen will attempt to reach every prospective bond buyer in the county by the end of the drive, June 30.

There will be a public rally at State and Madison sts. at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow.

TAKE BRIEF CASE FROM AUTO

Thieves stole a brief case and papers from his automobile at 105 S. Halsted st., Harry Slater, 2445 E. 72d st., reported to the police yesterday.

DOWNES TO OPEN ARMY AND NAVY OFFICERS' CLUB

Rear Adm. John Downes, retired, yesterday announced plans for the opening of a new Armed Forces Officers' club to serve as recreation headquarters for officers now and after the war. The tentative location is 130 N. Wells st.

The club will provide entertainment, educational facilities, and lectures. It will have temporary and permanent residents and will welcome officers passing thru Chicago. A special program of women's activities will be arranged.

In addition to present requirements for the club, the need will continue after the men are discharged from service, Adm. Downes said. "There are about 80,000 officers in all of the services from Chicago and vicinity," he said. "When the war is over, they will want a place to get together which provides club facilities."

$450 THEFT FROM Y. M. C. A.

Theft of $250 and $200 in checks from the cash drawer of the Hyde Park Y. M. C. A., 1400 E. 53d st., was reported to police yesterday by Marvin Wilcoxson, resident manager.

GLOBE TROTTING BECOMES A FAD WITH SENATORS

Few Averse to Seeing Far Corners of Earth

BY PHILIP DODD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., May 12—Altho the senate is legally in session, increasing numbers of senators are leaving Washington on official senate business which takes them to the far corners of the earth, a survey showed today.

The end of the war in Europe and the liberation of additional areas in the Pacific increases the range of globe trotting senators, altho few had been averse to hopping army or navy planes to fly to London, Casablanca, Cairo, Australia, or other points east and west, during the thick of hostilities.

Off on Post-War Study

Today's survey showed the following senatorial trips in progress or about to be started:

A subcommittee of the interstate commerce committee, composed of

Senators Wheeler [D., Mont.], chairman; Capehart [R., Ind.], and Briggs [D., Mo.] will leave this week-end for Europe to study the post-war use of military and naval communications equipment.

A subcommittee of the Mead war investigating committee, headed by Sen. Kilgore [D., W. Va.], and including Senators Tunnell [D., Del.], Mitchell [D., Wash.], Brewster [R., Me.], Ball [R., Minn.], and Ferguson [R., Mich.], also will take off for Europe next week to study the disposal of surplus military equipment.

A five man party, composed of four members of the military affairs committee and Sen. Russell [D., Ga.] of the finance committee, plans to leave May 25. Senators Stewart [D., Tenn.] and Maybank [D., S. C.] are included. The Republican members may include Gurney [S. D.] and Revercomb [W. Va.]. They will study redeployment problems.

Some Go to San Francisco

A naval affairs committee recently sent a subcommittee, headed by Sen. Byrd [D., Va.] to the San Francisco security conference to ask the American delegation there to demand exclusive American use of Pacific bases we have taken from Japan. It was reported today that the same group, or other members of the naval committee, shortly will make another trip to San Francisco.

Sen McCarran [D., Nev.], chairman of the appropriations subcommittee in charge of state department appropriations, is in San Francisco now.

Sen. Tydings [D., Md.], chairman of the senate territories committee, is en route to the Philippines where, he told the senate before he left, he expects to make a survey of resources and post-war prospects of the islands in three weeks.

Another senator hasn't been seen in the senate chamber for two weeks. He is Happy Chandler [D., Ky.], but he's not on official senate business. He's looking after the details of his new $50,000 a year job as high commissioner of baseball, altho he has not resigned from the senate.

No senators have been heard protesting the absence of their colleagues on the present rash of trips. Few of them would have turned down a chance to go on the journeys, present and contemplated. Besides, they insist the trips are not junkets. They say the knowledge gained on them makes them better legislators.

"People are always complaining that we senators don't know enough about what's going on outside our own states or in the world," complained one senator today—who recently returned from an official tour. "Yet, when we do take a trip on official senate business, they accuse us of wasting our time on junkets."

Maj. Gen. Henry S. Aurand in Chicago yesterday.

Maj. Gen. Henry S. Aurand, who has just returned from the European theater of war, said at a press interview yesterday that his most vivid impression of America was "not seeing rubble in the streets like that in Europe's war ravaged cities."

Gen. Aurand, who headed the 6th service command in Chicago from September, 1942, to October, 1944, is stopping at the Edgewater Beach hotel for the week-end. He served two months as commanding general of a Normandy base supply section with headquarters in Deauville, France. He is now on his way to an undisclosed assignment.

"In the movement of troops back from Europe," Gen. Aurand said, "the army is doing everything possible to avoid a repetition of the jams and delays that resulted after World War I." He paid high tribute to the army's transportation functions in the handling of supplies moving up to the front in Europe.

British to Use Nazi Labor on Roads and Other Jobs

LONDON, May 12 (AP)—German prisoners of war will be used "to help with the laying of roads and other similar jobs" for Britain's house building program, according to George Hicks, parliamentary secretary of the ministry of public works.

DEFEATED NAZIS STILL POPULAR WITH CIVILIANS

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MUNICH, Germany, May 12—Altho the German armies suffered the worst licking in their history, they have not lost their popularity with the German masses, to judge by the reaction of the people as truckloads of prisoners pass thru German towns. In Munich, Augsburg, and other places, men, women, and children were in the streets when the prisoners passed, and scurried back and forth handing bottles of wine and beer to the men whenever they had a chance. Some prisoners had steins hanging from the backs of the trucks, and the civilians eagerly watched for an opportunity to refill them.

On the highway from Munich to Augsburg, women and children stood for hours to wave at the prisoners who waved back gaily as if on a pleasure trip. Traffic was held up for 20 minutes today while GIs, in a blazing sun, changed tires on a truck filled with prisoners who looked on like members of the privileged classes, much to the delight of their waving German friends.

U. S. Southeast Asia Chief Confers with China Leader

CHUNGKING, May 12 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Raymond A. Wheeler of Washington, D. C., deputy supreme commander in the Southeast Asia theater, arrived in Chungking today for conference with Lt. Gen. Albert Wedemeyer, United States commander in China, and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek on carrying on the war with Japan. Presumably the talks will center on closer coöperation in the two theaters.

200 FIGHTERS DISCHARGED AT FORT SHERIDAN

1st Vets Released Hold 87 to 126 Point Ratings

High Point Man

Atlanta, Ga., May 12 (AP)—Here's how Sgt. Ibry Garner, 31, of Andalusia, Ala., amassed his 158 points—high thus far for the nation—to win discharge from the service under the new point system: 55 months' service, 55 points; three dependent children, 36 points; 27 months' overseas combat service, 27 points; bronze star medal, 5 points; seven battle stars, 35 points.

With smiles on their faces and discharge papers in their pockets, more than 200 veterans of overseas fighting walked out of Fort Sheridan yesterday the first group released in this area under the army's 85 point system. Approximately 45 of them were Chicago men.

"It's a great day," each remarked.

They were part of 2,500 who were returned to civilian life yesterday at 17 separation centers thruout the country and were the vanguard of 1,300,000 men to be released by the army on the basis of service, combat records, and parenthood, within the next 12 months. In addition, 700,000 soldiers will be released because of wounds, overage, and other factors.

Wisconsin GI Is No. 1

The distinction of being first on the R-day rolls at Fort Sheridan went to T/5 John M. Grant, 24, of Omro, Wis., whose release, officers said, was the first in the country under the point system. He had 107 points on the basis of 55 months in service, 37 months overseas, and 15 points for combat awards.

"Mom doesn't know yet that I have been discharged," he said. "It's going to be a real Mother's day surprise for her when I walk in."

The men released from Fort Sheridan had point ratings which ranged from 87 to 126. They had been in service from 30 to 64 months. All served in the European and Mediterranean theaters.

Peorian Shares Highest Rating

The highest point holders in the first group discharged—each with 126—were Corp. Richard R. Lockhart, Ironwood, Mich., and Sgt. Charles D. Hering, 1009 Laramie st., Peoria. Hering served 64 months, including 42 overseas and earned 20 points for combat. Lockhart was in the army 50 months and served 34 overseas. He got 30 points for his combat record and 12 as the father of one child. The point system grants a point for each month of service, one for each month oversees, five for each combat award, and 12 for each child [up to a limit of three] under 18 years.

Most of the men, all of whom had been home on temporary duty furloughs, had expected to be sent to the Pacific or to be assigned to duty in this country. One group of 11 was sent to a port of embarkation Tuesday but later was returned to Chicago under sealed orders.

Processing Requires 36 Hours

There are approximately 400 more men at Fort Sheridan who qualify for release and will be discharged in the next few days. Processing requires 36 hours. Each man is given his pay, the first $100 of his $300 discharge pay, transportation expenses at 5 cents a mile, discharge papers, and a service button.

Almost all said they would contribute their help to the crushing of Japan by taking jobs in war plants or working on farms.

Tech. Sgt. Kenneth Williams, 25, of 309 South blvd., Oak Park, was a student at Ripon college, Ripon, Wis., when he entered the army Jan. 13, 1942. He expects to return to school to finish his last year. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Williams, knew he had 87 points and would be discharged but they didn't know when.

Home and Marriage

"For me, R-day also means matrimony day," said Master Sgt. Rudolph W. Kolenic, 27, of Muskegon Heights, Mich. He and Miss Stephanie Pastucha, also of Muskegon Heights, had planned to be married after the war. "There's no need now to wait," he said.

When Staff Sgt. Cecil B. Barnes, 29, of Wheaton reached home yesterday his wife, Dorothy Marie, thought he was on a three day pass. It didn't take him long to break the news that he was "out for good." During Barnes' 56 months in the army, 42 of them overseas, his wife lived in the home of her father, John E. Albrecht, 1811 N. President st., Wheaton. He is a Du Page county deputy sheriff.

Delivers News in Person

Sgt. Edmund E. Rotermund, 30, of 1126 S. Lombard av., Oak Park, brought the news home in person to his wife, Wilma. He had expected to be sent to the Pacific area. His 51 months' service included 37 overseas. Combat awards brought him another 20 points, to raise his total to 108.

Another Oak Parker in the group was Tech. Sgt. John T. Hambrook, 31, who lives with his mother, Mrs. George W. Hambrook, at 646 S. Humphrey av. He entered the army in April, 1941, and went overseas a year later.

Beg Your Pardon

THE TRIBUNE recently quoted the Rev. V. M. Ardas, spiritual director of the Croatian Catholic union in Gary, Ind., as placing the responsibility of the death of 200 Roman Catholic priests on a peoples' court established by Dr. Ante Pavelich, chief of nazi established Crotia. He laid the blame to the peoples' court of Marshal Tito, the Partisan-communist leader of Yugoslavia.

HITLER BOMBING PART OF PUTSCH TO SEIZE POWER

High Command Out of It, Survivor Says

[Copyright: 1945: By the New York Times]

ZURICH, Switzerland, May 12—The July 20, 1944, plot on Hitler's life only incidentally involved wehrmacht [German army] officers, Hans Bernhard Gisevius, last survivor of the "Bendlerstrasse plotters," disclosed here today.

His statement was given to contradict German Commentator Kurt Dittmar's assertion last week that high command officers had finally gone into action against the Fuehrer after discovery of nazi excesses in nazi concentration camps.

Himmler in Dark

Contrary to previous information from German quarters, Gisevius said Gestapo Chief Himmler was not linked with the plot and was not aware of its existence until three hours after the explosion which nearly cost the Fuehrer's life.

Chief instigators of the plot and previous ones, Gisevius said, were himself, Hans Oster, chief of the "Abwehr" [German army intelligence]; Dr. Karl Goerdeler, and one Arthur Nebe.

Later this nucleus was joined by Count Helldorf, chief of the Berlin police, Adm. Canaris, another Abwehr chief, and Gen. Fromm, who at the last minute turned on the plotters when he learned the attempt had failed.

As plans for the July plot matured steering committees were set up and then a provisional government committee of five "consuls" to assume power for the three or four days it was expected would be needed for the Putsch's government members to reach the capital.

Government Listed

The government list, as drafted—its discovery after the plot signed the death warrant of all but Gisevius who succeeded in escaping back to Switzerland—was as follows:

Chief of state—Gen. Beck.
Reichschancellor—Goerdeler, National Liberal.
Vice Chancellor—Wilhelm Leuschner, Social Democrat.
Interior—Leber, Social Democrat.
Secretary of state for interior—Count Friedrich von Schulenburg, National Socialist [Nazi].
Minister of economy—Paul Lejeune-Jung, People's Conservative party.
Minister of justice—Joseph Wuermer, Centrist.
Minister of education—Trot zu Solz, Centrist.
Minister of finance—Loeser, National Liberal.
Minister of foreign affairs—Erwin von Schulenburg [presumed to be the father of the secretary of state].
Minister of war—General Oster and Olbright, seconded by Secretary of State Count von Stauffenberg [who bought his position in the government by agreeing to place the bomb].
Reichminister to the chief of state and reichs commissioner for the restoration of public order—Gisevius.

The new government vested the supreme command in the hands of Witzleben, who was also to direct operations on the military level for the overthrow of party military formations.

REROUTE PACIFIC SHIPS TO SPEED SHIFT OF TROOPS

San Francisco, Cal., May 12 (AP)—"Large numbers of United States troops will be transshipped from Europe direct to the Pacific thru the Panama canal," Commodore J. B. Carter, assistant chief of staff of operations for Fleet Adm. Nimitz, said tonight in a Blue network broadcast from Guam.

"Other large numbers," he added, "will go to the Pacific coast after short furloughs and be reëmbarked there. Since V-E day the schedules of ships in the Pacific have been rearranged so that there will be a minimum of delay in their arrival at staging points on the Pacific coast. The flow of combat ships from the Atlantic to the Pacific already has started.

"To meet future needs, a large number of cargo ships now in the Atlantic will be diverted to the Pacific. When United States armies finally go into action they will be protected and supported by the largest and strongest navy that ever existed."

PANAMA CANAL READY FOR SHIFT OF WAR SINEWS

We Can Take It, Says the Chief

BY PETER BRENNAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BALBOA HEIGHTS, Canal Zone, May 12—The sharp upswing in traffic toward the Pacific, expected shortly, can be handled in stride, Comdr. Stewart A. Manahan, Panama Canal marine superintendent, told THE TRIBUNE today.

"We will be very busy," he said, "but we can take it. How many ships it is possible to handle daily remains a war time secret but 6,289 were sent thru in the peak year 1929. Tonnage for that year was 27,585,000. This year, THE TRIBUNE was told authoritatively, it could handle 50,000,000 if necessary.

Defense Works Completed

"Since 1929 the canal has had an opportunity to enlarge—not the waterway—but its facilities, the hundreds of adjuncts necessary for smooth, increased operations. Hence it is possible to step up these transit figures in an emergency," Manahan said.

Toll paying commercial vessels have largely disappeared since Pearl Harbor but the canal has had many busy days and nights routing transports and ships carrying supplies to the Pacific. Protective measures such as bombproof locks and numerous defense installations, already underway when the war started, have been mostly completed.

Important Supply Base

Also the canal has been transformed from merely the only water route to one of the most important service and supply bases for oil, food, repair parts, etc., and these now comprise, as its busy harbors testify, one of its biggest activities.

All commercial vessels using the canal are searched from top to bottom before being routed thru. This policy often has resulted in several hours of delay in traffic but there has been no evidence of sabotage, real or attempted, discovered so far.

10 SUBMARINES SURRENDER AT BRITISH PORTS

LONDON, May 12 (AP)—Coastal patrol aircraft have reported sighting large numbers of Nazi U-boats bobbing up in the Atlantic and North sea ready to surrender and by late today at least 10 had entered British ports with another five standing by to be received.

About 100 of the estimated 200 to 300 U-boats the Germans had in their fleet were believed to have been operating in the Atlantic when Germany surrendered.

Two Give Up at Gibraltar

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, May 12.—Two Nazi submarines, the U-541 and U-485, which surrendered to the British navy, arrived at Gibraltar today, escorted by a British destroyer. The submarines were tied to buoys inside Admiralty harbor.

GEN. CLAY'S RISE RAPID; MAJOR AT WAR'S START

Lt. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, 48, who ha. been named Gen. Eisenhower's deputy in the latter's capacity as a member of the allied four power control council for Germany, is a West Pointer [1918]. A major when the United States entered the war, he was assigned to the general staff, and in two years rose to the rank of major general. He was director of material for the army services forces and later deputy director in charge of production programs for the office of war mobilization and reconversion.

Last March, President Roosevelt announced Gen. Eisenhower had requested assignment of Clay as civil affairs administrator in occupied Germany. President Truman on April 18 nominated Clay to be a lieutenant general. Clay while in the OWMR stressed military needs and brought criticism from the OWMP civilian advisory committee of excess military intervention in affairs of the home front.

He served on Gen. MacArthur's staff in the Philippines in 1937. Assigned to the civil aeronautics administration in 1940, he was in charge of the defense airport program.

"IF ONLY THERE WERE Music Capsules IN OUR K-RATIONS"

AFTER a stubbornly-fought engagement the 253rd swept across their sector of the Saar and "set up housekeeping" in the shell-torn village beyond. . . .

"When day was done," wrote a former Chicago engineer, who participated in the drive, "we found that we were in possession of three German radios that we didn't have when we started. . . . It's the first music we have had since we landed on the continent. A fellow doesn't realize what a wonderful morale-builder Music can be until he's been without it for several months." . . .

It's a well-known fact that an Army moves on its stomach . . . but it would be worth knowing how much that mobility might be increased if it were possible to mix a little music in that Army's daily diet. . . . A high-stepping March . . . a Love-song or two . . . some of the Dance hits of High School days . . . the songs of Faith which every soldier clings to unquestioningly.

Today when you turn on your favorite radio programs (in the living room or the sets in other rooms) or play a record on your Capehart, your Magnavox or Victrola—think of those men who are out there keeping America a place where one may still Sing.

CHICAGO YANK'S 60 DAYS BEHIND GERMAN LINES!

Emerges Wearing Boots of Gestapo Captain

BY JOSEPH HEARST

Washington, D. C., May 12—Lt. Walter D. Jensen Jr., 6012 Harper av., Chicago, had just put his Thunderbolt fighter plane into a bombing dive over Forbach, France, when a German anti-aircraft shell ripped away a fourth of his left wing. Moments later a second burst hit below the cockpit and Jensen, cut by showers of broken instruments and his left ankle fractured, bailed out and landed in enemy teritotry.

For two months he lived behind the German lines, limping and crawling along ditches by night, hiding by day, until eventually he found shelter with a friendly French family. They hid him until he could reach the American lines.

Kills Gestapo Captain

Jensen came back wearing the fine leather boots he had taken from the body of a German Gestapo captain he killed when one of his hiding places was discovered. In his pockets were notes he had taken on the location of German ammunition dumps, command headquarters, gun emplacements, and other enemy installations. With this data to guide them, American tanks and planes did a thoro job on the Nazis southwest of Saarbrucken.

Jensen is 27. His father is connected with the Hartshorne Motors, Inc., 930 N. Clark st., Chicago. He attended Morgan Park High school and the Art institute.

With 60 missions flown with the 36th fighter group of the 9th air force to his credit, Jensen is back in the United States preparing for a new assignment. And is looking forward to the day when he can do something really nice for the French family that probably saved his life. He figures the 3,000 German marks he took from the dead Gestapo captain and gave to them is just a down payment on his debt.

Aids Patton's Forces

It was Sept. 22, 1944, when Jensen and his fellow pilots of the 22d squadron took off from a field in France to give support to the ground forces of Gen. Patton's 3d army near Nancy.

"We were loaded with two bombs each and carried a belly tank," Jensen said. "We spotted 40 to 60 German Tiger tanks in one area and strafed them, but we were saving our bombs for something better. Near Forbach we spotted a highway jammed with vehicles. The first flight started its dive thru a hole in the clouds. The flak began to break all around us."

Jensen's left wing was hit and he called to his wingman that he was pulling out and that he should cover him.

Plane Explodes

"I looked over my shoulder and saw the wingman's plane explode," he said. "Then I worked the plane out of the dive but by then I was down to about two or three thousand feet. Then the second burst got me and I started climbing out. I didn't have much time, for I hit the ground almost as soon as the chute popped. Blod was running down my face and my hands were cut. I realized later that my left ankle was injured but it didn't bother me at the time for I was scrambling to get free and hide."

Jensen landed not more than 500 yards from where eight or 10 German anti-aircraft batteries were blasting into the skies so he knew the Germans had spotted him. The main Saarbrucken-Metz highway was less than 100 yards away, but between it and Jensen was a small wooded area bordered by a drainage ditch.

"I ran for the ditch and rolled into it," he said. "The water was covered with slime, weeds, and leaves. I stretched out and, just keeping my nose above water, found it provided good concealment. I didn't have to wait long for the search to start for within 15 minutes several trucks drove up and soldiers released a score of dogs in the area."

Only Nose Above Water

Jensen, only his nose above the stagnant water, listened tensely as the dogs, barking and yapping, covered the area seeking his trail. He could hear men tramping back and forth near him. One stepped so close he could feel the ground give under his weight. They finally gave up.

"I stayed in the water, just my head out, until it must have been midnight," he recalled. "I decided it might be safer to stay there, where they had searched, than to move, and it was three days later that I began crawling cautiously along the hedges toward the southwest. I had no food, but in those first three days I wasn't hungry. Most of the time it rained, so I was soaked."

For 27 days Jensen didn't speak to any one as he skirted enemy lines, villages, and farmhouses. Sometimes he detoured miles from his line of direction toward Nancy to slip past German posts. He saw plenty, and he noted it.

"I knew pretty well where I was, so when I saw an enemy ammunition dump I jotted down the location," he said.

Lives on Snow, Turnips

During these days Jensen's diet consisted strictly of snow, branch water, and turnips which he dug from the fields.

"I got to be an expert on turnips," laughed. "I could plunk them like a housewife does a watermelon and tell whether they were good."

The meager diet was taking its toll, however, and Jensen was extremely weak when, one dawn, he spied a dilapidated cowshed.

"Ordinarily I wouldn't have gone near it, but I was tired and wet and cold, and maybe I was beginning to lose hope," he said. "Most of the roof was caved in, but one corner was dry. I rolled into the dirty straw and went to sleep. When I awoke I discovered a cabbage patch outside the shed. I crawled out to see if any had been overlooked.

Feasts on Cabbage

"I found two red and two white cabbages. I ate cabbage for two hours, and nothing ever tasted better."

Jensen was wondering if it would be safe to stay in the shed when he saw two boys approaching.

"I didn't know whether they would be friendly or would spread an alarm," he said. "When they saw me they just stared. I smiled and tried my not very good French on them. That didn't work so I tried some German phrases. Both boys looked blank. Then they looked at each other, pointed at me, and in chorus said, 'Americanski.' I nodded and grinned. I felt a lot better."

Haltingly, because of the language difficulties, the injured pilot and the two ragged 8 year olds made friends.

"We used sign language and then it developed that both knew a few words of French and German. One boy was a Pole and the other a Russian. Their fathers had been forced into service with the German army, they said. I told them I was hungry and they said they would bring me food. When they went away I wondered if I were a fool to wait in the shed and risk capture. But I was so tired I didn't have the will to move on. Soon after dark one of the boys returned with some hard stale bread and green pears.

"Where he had gotten the food in an area where every ounce counted, I don't know. He stayed while I ate. Then he slipped into the night. I waited thru the next day but the boys didn't return, and that night I left my cowshed and started on again."

Periods of Delirium

For the next seven or eight days Jensen hid in the woods or kept to the ditches. He was almost exhausted physically. There were periods of delirium. He was due for a lucky break, however.

"On this particular day I was lying in a wooded section on a little knoll," he said. "There were many Germans in the area and there was a village not far away. I felt I couldn't last much longer. Suddenly I froze with terror at the barking of a dog. It was little but I knew its yapping must be carrying to the village.

"Then, coming cautiously thru the underbrush, I saw a man. As soon as he saw me he said, 'You American flyer. I been hunting you.' He was French and I guess he saved my life.

"He told me he lived at the edge of the village and pointed out his house. He said that when it was dark he'd come back and take me to his house. He was friendly, but again I went thru all the anguish I had experienced when the boys went away. Just before dark I saw him coming. With him were his daughter, 13, and his son, 11. He gave me bread, sausage, and a bottle of schnapps."

"When I had finished," Jensen went on, "he handed me a pair of civilian pants and an old jacket. I put them on and then he got me on his back and carried me the full distance to his house. I knew then that I was in friendly hands, for no enemy would have taken on such a chore."

"This family took a terrible risk in sheltering me. I had seen one house where the family had been discovered sheltering an American. The family, including four children, were mowed down with a machine gun. My friends said that if I was discovered we all might as well make a fight for it. Then the husband handed me an American .45 revolver. It was in my blouse from then on."

The third or fourth day it was decided Jensen could get around fast enough to use a cellar hideout and his host showed him a narrow partition behind the wall.

"I sat on the floor, shoved myself back, stood up, slid a section into place, and there I was," Jensen said. "Several times the Gestapo flashed their lights over that wall but they didn't see anything suspicious."

It was about this time that Jensen met his host's cousin and his nephew. The nephew was 16 and a member of the underground. "He always had three or four grenades in his pockets," Jensen said. "He lived in Metz and moved thru the German and American lines apparently at will."

Gets German Identification

Then the French decided Jensen should have a German identification folder.

"The nephew arranged it in Metz," he said. "When they handed me the folder I discovered my name was Michelle Porehon. Fortunately, I never was questioned.

"One night the worst almost happened. It was about 2 a. m. and raining hard when the dog started barking. I started for the cellar but was too late. As I reached the bottom stair I was caught in the flash of the Gestapo captain's light. I fired without hesitation. When we examined the body we found two bullets had hit the German in the head and three in the chest.

"We tried to be calm. Apparently the shots had not been heard. I took the captain's wallet, handed over 3,000 German marks to Yvonne, and kept his identification papers and his picture. I also took his fine leather boots, which I needed. I don't know how Yvonne disposed of the body.

"Yvonne's nephew had volunteered to escort me to the American lines but at the last moment he had to return to Metz and I went with two friends of Yvonne's.

"We moved along a railroad and took shelter under a concrete culvert. There were about 30 German infantry men there, so we stayed to one end of the culvert as much as possible.

"If any conversation was in order between us and the Germans my friends did the talking. We knew the Americans were getting close from what they said and from the increased shelling. One shell hit a house near-by. Another hit near the culvert. The Germans pulled out.

"During a lull I looked around and across a tributary of the Moselle. There, on a road not more than a hundred yards away, was an American tank. Well, that was what I had been looking for, and when I saw that big star on her I started running. I hit the water—the stream was about 50 feet wide—and was swimming and wading across when a soldier popped up in the tank turret and started shooting at me with an automatic rifle.

Yells Save Him

"Bullets were hitting the water around me and I was yelling and trying to identify myself. I guess he must have heard me yelling in English, for he climbed down, still covering me, and walked to the edge of the stream. He was a corporal. I told him who I was and that I had been shot down.

"'Well, come on up here, then, he said, and I climbed out of the stream. That was Nov. 28, just 68 days after I had started that bomb run over Forbach."

WHAT ACK ACK UNIT DOES WHEN NOT ACK ACKING

This One Kills Japs on the Ground in Luzon

BY DONALD STARR
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

SOUTHERN LUZON FRONT, P. I. May 11—"We found this anti-aircraft outfit sitting on our beach at Legaspi," said Brig. Gen. Hanford MacNider, commander of the 158th regimental combat team, "and since there were no planes we put them to work killing Nips on the ground. They have become the fightingest outfit in the army."

Lt. Martin Katz, Hartford, Conn., commanding the 120 man outfit, extended an invitation to accompany the patrol just lining up in the road to go after some Jap stragglers reported a mile away. The grins on the faces of the huntsmen indicated that this was going to be fun in comparison with earlier action in which they turned 40 millimeter anti-aircraft guns, which never were designed for ground fire, on enemy troops in the area. By firing just over the head of the Nips, the fragmentation proved effective.

Sword Troubles General

Lt. Katz does not know how many Japs his boys have killed, but the tally certainly exceeds their own numerical strength. They have lost one killed. They have knocked out enemy guns from 75 millimeter dual purpose types to rocket projectors.

A captured samurai sword was presented to Gen. MacNider, who was troubled because "I don't think I have any business with one which I didn't capture myself."

The lieutenant had to push forward Pvt. Elmer Walla, 4322 Crystal st., Chicago, who blushed when his heroism as a medical aid man was recounted. More than once Walla has advanced under enemy fire to give first aid to the wounded.

Illinoisans in Battery

Illinoisans in the battery include Pvt. Meyer Kohn, 3340 Division st., Chicago; Pvt. Benjamin Koenig, Saint Anne, Ill.; Tech. 5th Grade Frank Leavelle, 19 W. Superior st., Chicago; Pvt. Clarke Green, Maple Park, Ill.; Andrew Gaydos, 5334 S. Hoyne av., Chicago, and Tech. 5th Grade Robert Crum, Mount Carmel, Ill.

The battery is not without a reputation as anti-aircraft experts despite their success as ground fighters. They take pride in their Leyte record, where they shot down 28 planes, confirmed and credited, and an equal number damaged and probably destroyed.

LAUNCH CARRIER TARAWA; 100,000 SEE CEREMONY

Portsmouth, Va., May 12 (AP)—The 27,100 ton aircraft carrier Tarawa, named for the historic battle in the Gilbert Islands in 1943, a turning point of the war in the Central Pacific, was launched today at the Norfolk navy yard before a crowd estimated at approximately 100,000.

The carrier was hailed by Maj. Gen. Julian C. Smith of the marines as "a living symbol of America's determination to see this war thru to a successful end."

The Tarawa's momentum was accelerated by the use of 45,000 pounds of wax on the building ways but was checked after she entered the water by 700 tons of chain drags attached to her sides to prevent her stern from crashing into wharves on the opposite side of the narrow river.

G I Joe in the Pacific

By Arthur Veysey

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

TARAWA, May 7 [Delayed]—Tarawa, to which the war came with such fury, is now so quiet that travelogue commentators would call it a tropical paradise. But to the guys here it's a prison. They're "in" for 18 months.

The big news here is about the private who the other day picked up his barracks bag, threw into it his collection of khaki clothes stripped of sleeves, legs, and other nonessentials, walked out onto the pier and squatted.

"I'm here until the next boat comes. I'm leaving," he announced.

The next boat wasn't due for 30 days. The guy sat for two days. At the end of the second day his commander had him carried to the airstrip, put him aboard a passing plane, and sent him back to the United States.

The island had got him.

Every Day the Same

Some of the guys here say, "Lucky guy." Others say, "Poor guy." They want to go home, but they want to go home whole.

Tarawa has only 577 acres, less than a square mile. The air field takes up half of it. The rest is a jumble of tents and huts.

Every day is the same: Arise at dawn, wash down pancakes and canned meat with coffee or Tarawa water, which looks like dirty lemonade and has a taste all its own; repair planes, or make out papers, or do a stint at KP. If a ship has just come in, there is fresh meat for supper—otherwise it's canned.

The Same Old Movie

Before supper you stretch out on the blazing white coral behind a hut or tent—there are less than a dozen trees still standing on the island—or behind one of the two-foot thick concrete pillboxes that cost so many American lives. Or maybe you go for a swim behind the fence erected to keep out the barracuda. If you've just got here and are eager, you may play baseball or volleyball; but the chances are you will just sit.

Right after supper you pick up the chair you made out of a box, and tote it out to the cleared space before the movie screen. Until dark the movie men play records over a loudspeaker, and at dusk it's the movie. Sometimes there is the same movie four or five nights running, but—what the heck! It passes the time.

Mail Is Best Thing

At present the men of Tarawa are stationed here for 18 months. Then they are supposed to go back home.

The best thing about Tarawa is the mail. Sometimes the planes bring mail twice a day. Two or three days is about the longest they go without. The second best is the breeze, which blows almost constantly over the island.

Tarawa is cleared of the natives except for a labor camp, over which the British flag flies. A few hundred yards away, however, is another small island, on which only natives live. The Americans, always ones to go to town on week-ends, used to go to visit the native village. But that is banned now. The boys claim that isn't showing much of the one world spirit. But the ban stands anyway.

FLEEING JAPS HIT FROM ALL SIDES IN HUNAN

CHUNGKING, May 12 (AP)—Chinese troops have fallen on retreating Japanese from all sides on the Hunan front following up the smashing of the Japanese drive on the American air base at Chihkiang, 250 miles southeast of Chungking, the high command said tonight.

Three towns were taken on the main Chihkiang-Paoching highway, including the important hub of Taohwaping less than 25 miles west of Paoching, main base of the Japanese drive.

Farther west behind the pincers the Chinese on Thursday took Tungkow 70 miles east of Chihkiang. They went on and surrounded the highway town of Kaosha, about five miles farther east where the Japanese made four attempts to break out. Kaosha fell the next day after the Japanese lost more than 600 casualties.

OFFICIAL SAYS FEW CANADIANS WILL FIGHT JAPS

MOOSOMIN, Sask., May 12 (AP)—Defense Minister A. G. L. McNaughton told a public meeting last night that Canada did not intend to send huge numbers of men to the Pacific "to slug it out hand-to-hand with a foe perhaps better fitted than we to survive in the jungle war," but "we will assist to smash the Jap forever with a minimum of men and a maximum of machines and explosives."

Canada's share in the Pacific war has been planned in the closest consultation with the allies, McNaughton said, adding he felt "our share will be just and fair."

TRUMAN THREAT OMITS HIROHITO, JOURNAL NOTES

Hints Allied Agreement on Peace Gesture

Tells of Peace Offer

LONDON, May 13 [Reuters]. —Peace Overtures were made by the Japanese thru Moscow to the United States and presumably to Britain before President Roosevelt's death, Kenneth Crawford, the London Sunday Times correspondent in Washington, reported today. The offer was not unconditional, Crawford said. The Japanese wanted to retair Manchukuo and Formosa as well as some islands, while offering up their army, navy and airforce. "The proposition was so unsatisfactory it was not even answered" Crawford concluded.

Washington, D. C., May 12 (AP)—The Army and Navy Journal today said President Truman had "opened the door to a Japanese request for peace" by giving assurances that the people are not to be destroyed.

But the service publication said it did not follow that Mr. Truman's remarks, made in his Victory in Europe proclamation, indicated any deviation from the purpose of his predecessor, Franklin Roosevelt, "to require Japan to evacuate China and surrender all the territory she acquired from that country, and to restore independence to Korea."

The Journal also saw significance in the omission from the President's statement of any demand for ousting of Japan's Emperor Hirohito.

Believes Allies Informed

The Journal commented that it was unlikely the President would have pledged that the Japanese people would not be destroyed "without the prior knowledge [of that pledge] of Great Britain." "Moscow also certainly was advised of Truman's intention," the Journal said.

No Threat to Emperor

"Mr. Truman in his interpretation of unconditional surrender for the Japanese, stated that it meant for them the end of the war, termination of the influence of military leaders, provision for the return of soldiers and sailors to their families, their farms, and their jobs, and the independence of their country.

"Significantly omitted was the expression of any intention to oust the emperor or to abolish the throne, an omission which will appeal to the conservative palace entourage which never wanted the war, and which is anxious to terminate it even tho the cost be loss of territory, abandonment of the war lords' east Asia co-prosperity sphere, and denial of the power to possess a navy, a military air force and armies, and the industry to provide and support them."

FLORIDA CRASH OF B-29 KILLS 9 OF CREW; 2 HURT

Tampa, Fla., May 12 (AP)—Macdill field authorities announced today that nine service men were killed and two injured when a B-29 Superfortress from that base crashed at midnight last night while attempting to land at the field. None of the dead was from the middle west.

2 Killed in South Dakota

Hot Springs, S. D., May 12 (AP)—Wreckage of a cub plane and the bodies of Robert Danford, 23, Aledo, Ill., the pilot, and his brother-in-law, Glenn Strom, 16, Hot Springs, were sighted today in a canyon a mile west of the airport here. Searching parties set out for the scene. The two left the airport early Friday. The pilot was a son of T. N. Danford, Aledo.

NEW YANK FORCE GAINS 14 MILES ON MINDANAO

40th Division Nears Del Monte Air Field

MANILA, May 13 [Sunday]—(AP)—The big Japanese Del Monte airdrome in north central Mindanao came under the guns of the United States 40th division Friday, Gen. MacArthur announced today, after the Yanks made a 14 mile advance from their invasion beachhead.

Elements of Maj. Gen. Rapp Brush' division, which landed at Macajalar bay Thursday and advanced four miles the first day, pushed south along Sayre highway, taking the Alae road junction and reaching a point 60 miles from the 31st division which is fighting northward along the same road.

Skilful air support made the work of the doughboys easy. Thirteenth air force planes fire-bombed the Japanese positions flanking the road, driving the enemy back while Yank infantrymen dashed in and captured machine gun and mortar fortifications.

Repulse Night Attacks

Del Monte is the site of the biggest pineapple plantation in the Pacific, outside of Hawaii, and has been developed into a formidable air base by the Japanese.

Maramag air field was secured by the 31st, the bulletin said.

The American 24th division fighting north of Davao city near the eastern Mindanao coast repulsed several Japanese night counterattacks and pushed the Nipponese into the hills between the Talomo and Davao rivers.

Yank and guerrilla forces fighting in the mountains of the Manila watershed in east central Luzon are within two miles of closing their pincers on Japanese forces in the vicinity of Ipo Dam.

Gain Mile on Tarakan

Australian and Dutch forces pressing the invasion of Tarakan Island, petroleum center off the northeast coast of Borneo, advanced one mile north of the Djoeata oil fields, meeting only scattered Japanese resistance. These allied forces already have cleared one oil field of the enemy and taken an air field.

Widespread destruction on Formosa resulted from blows by Philippine based bombers and fighters, which staged low level night attacks on Taihoku factories, and then came in for daylight raids on plants at Kari, Okayama, Kagi, and Mato. Railways and rolling stock also were hit.

Japanese air fields near Canton were put under aerial attack for the second straight day with 125 tons of bombs. Shipping and rail lines from Shanghai south into French Indo-China, where the naval base at Saigon has been virtually destroyed, also were attacked.

Aussies Land in Guinea

The Australian drive on Wewak, Japanese base on the New Guinea east coast, was accelerated with the landing of 6th division units east of the city. Other units of the Aussie division are approaching Wewak from the east. MacArthur said Australian navy and air units, and United States army air corps planes, supported operations in the Wewak sector.

The drive on Wewak, by-passed in earlier allied offensives toward the Philippines, is aimed at seizure of the city and capture of air strips.

Uses More Guerrillas

Increasing use of organized Filipinos against remaining Japanese forces on Mindanao and Luzon was announced by Gen. MacArthur Saturday. One guerrilla action "dislocated" Japanese in northern Mindanao for a United States 40th division landing Thursday at Macajalar bay.

This Filipino unit was commanded by Col. Wendell Fertig, United States office who has led Mindanao guerrillas thruout the war. Fertig was reported some time ago engaged also in reorganizing the Philippine commonwealth army.

Another Filipino force participated in a determined attack by the United States 43d division, strongly supported by bombers and fighter planes, on Japanese held Ipo dam on Luzon, an important unit of Manila's water supply system.

MIDWEST YANKS FIGHT WAY OUT OF JAP AMBUSH

Go to Rescue of Unit on Mindanao

BY WALTER SIMMONS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MINDANAO, P. I., May 7 [Delayed]—The 24th division is taking casualties in rooting the frenzied Japs from heavily overgrown country reminiscent of Leyte's Ormoc valley, where the 24th also fought.

In one company alone 14 replacements who recently joined are all dead. The situation is complicated by Filipino traitors who are fighting with the Japs and aiding them with espionage.

The heaviest fighting has raged near Mintal, a little cluster of shacks nine miles northwest of Davao. Mintal was occupied from the rear and held precariously. The main Davao-Mintal road has yet to be cleared.

Chicago Yanks Active

Fanatical Japs waving weapons often come charging down this road. A machine gun platoon including Privates Albert Minarik, 7641 S. St. Lawrence av., Chicago, and Allen Loeser of Springfield, Ill., has mowed down more than 100 of them. An 81 mm. mortar platoon has fired day and night protecting our perimeter which is under an almost constant small scale assault. In the platoon are:

Privates Cornelius Cronin, 103 S. Kedzie av.; Raymond Prindiville, 144: S. Sawyer av.; Frank Rinaldi, 2020 W. Taylor st., and Jasper Giovinco, 2630 S. Lowe av., all of Chicago; Staff Sgt. Charles Douma of Morrison, Ill.; Pvt. Lawrence Ponton of Kankakee, Ill.; Corp. Steve Barron of Alanson, Mich., and Corp. Courtney Whitaker, Anderson, Ind.

Lt. Vincent Chukar, 1220 W. 151st st., East Chicago, Ind., a medical supply officer, was leading a truck column which was ambushed at night by a Jap machine gun. The truck driver sitting beside him was killed.

Fights Out of Ambush

Lt. Chukar hit the dirt and assembled his scattered men while the battle raged in pitch darkness and the Japs ran down the line with demolition charges, destroying four trucks and damaging others. Among the men were Pvt. Edmund Sokol, 4083 Archer av., Chicago, and Pvt. William Craig of Yale, Mich.

A platoon including Privates John Maloney of Green Bay, Wis., and Kenneth Price of North Madison, Ind., spearheaded C company, which was moving down a road to set up a block. Isolated by an ambush and heavily cut up, the platoon fought its way back to rejoin the company while one Yank laid down a protecting fire. In turn, C company was cut off and was not relieved until 26 hours later, when A company struggled thru after three unsuccessful attempts.

Lead Final Charge

Eighteen men, among them Sgt. David Clear of Frankfort, Ind., and Pvt. Charles Schnetzler of Madison, Wis., led the final desperate charge. They held the line while the dead, wounded, and fatigued men were carried out. At the last minute they were left behind and had to fight their way back. In A company were these Chicagoans: Privates Henry Buikema, 7233 S. Morgan st.; George Mares, 1230 S. Washtenaw av., and John Trapp, 5338 Leland av.

Pvt. Thomas Costas, 6228 Harper av., Chicago, is an ammunition driver who consistently goes beyond the front lines to bring out wounded.

Corp. John McGinnis, 6300 Wayne av., Chicago, who used to play end on the Notre Dame football teams of 1941 and 1942, is an assistant rifle squad leader. He led his men thru a mine field.

JIMMU THE SUN GOD, GETS PLEAS TO SAVE JAPAN

San Francisco, Cal., May 12 (AP)—Japan turned to prayers to Jimmu, the sun god, for "victory" today—Tokyo radio announcing special services all this month at 110,000 shrines—while claiming war successes at Okinawa, in the Philippines, and on Tarakan Island.

A broadcast said the Nipponese would pray for "tiding over the crisis of adverse war developments."

Other enemy broadcasts said Japanese aircraft sank or damaged two United States ships of unspecified category and a navy carrier in the Okinawa area yesterday and that "sea surface units" sank two medium sized transports in Philippine waters Thursday night.

Tokyo announced the United States had advised Japan that there was only one survivor of the Nipponese relief vessel Awa Maru, which was sunk by an American submarine. The United States state department confirmed this report and said the survivor, Kantaro Shimado, 45, steward, was being held as a "protected person" at Guam.

'LITTLE AMERICA' SOON WILL VACATE LONDON QUARTERS

LONDON, May 12 (AP)—A "Little America" situated around Grosvenor Square, in the heart of London's fashionable Mayfair, will be largely vacated soon. Almost every building around the square has been occupied by United States army forces.

The great ballroom of the Grosvenor hotel was transformed into a consolidated officers' mess. Because meals were served in such volume and on an assembly line basis it became known as "Willow Run." Homes of lords and ladies were headquarters for administrative units. Many buildings were used as billets.

The army administrative staffs in London will be reduced rapidly. The British ministry of public works is preparing to reclaim and recondition the buildings for return to their owners.

REIMS, France, May 12 (AP)—Reims, where the historic surrender of the German armies took place, made Gen. Eisenhower an honorary citizen today and conferred upon him the golden keys of the city.

SAW COMRADES BEHEADED BY JAP CAPTORS

New York, May 12 [Special]—The picture in today's newspapers of a Japanese with a sword held high preparing to behead an allied airman did not shock a 21 year old marine, survivor of the Bataan death march, who is recuperating at St. Alban's Naval hospital in Queens.

"I personally witnessed several such beheadings," said Pvt. Herman Silk of San Francisco, Cal. "A couple of men killed were my friends. One of them got it for communicating with the Filipinos; another for trying to escape."

Forced to Watch

Silk related that American prisoners of war in a Japanese camp were forced to watch the beheadings of a number of their comrades.

"There are worse things I'd rather not tell," he continued. "I don't think you could print them anyhow. Stories of personal mistreatment and cruelty. Beyond anything you could imagine. The Japanese aren't human."

Silk was among the 511 men at Cabanatuan who were freed by Lt. Col. Henry A. Mucci and his Rangers in a raid Jan. 30. Six feet 2½ inches tall, he weighed 170 pounds before the war. During his imprisonment he went down to 90 pounds. He is back to 150 now.

Before starting on the death march, the marine said, he had been lashed to a post and flogged steadily for half a day. At the end of the beating, the green camouflage paint of his uniform ran red with blood.

Water, Rice Diet

After the death march Silk worked for 27 months on the air fields of Manila, living on one cup of water and a handful of rice a day. He said the American captives were forced to run the three miles to work and back. In addition, the Japanese would order the men out of bed on an average of three nights a week and make them exercise, thus causing many of the exhausted men to die.

Silk said the Cabanatuan raid came in the nick of time, as many of the prisoners were scheduled to be shot the next day.

Australia Will Continue Its Man Power Controls

MELBOURNE, Australia, May 12 [Reuters]—Thomas Holloway, Australian minister of labor and national service, said today that man power controls could not be lifted before the end of the Japanese war. He added that he was opposed to military conscription.

JAPS WITHDRAWING FROM BURMA LASHED BY BRITISH FLYERS

CALCUTTA, India, May 12 (AP)—British air forces, flying from their base at newly won Rangoon, lashed at withdrawing Japanese yesterday to clear the way for the invasion of Thailand and Malaya.

Land forces nearest Thailand's border east of Toungoo ran into stubborn resistance, however, as they hounded the enemy trying to quit Burma. Heavy fighting also was reported farther south near the top of Martaban gulf on the route leading south to Moulmein.

The Southeast Asia command headquarters today reported that planes of the eastern air command have laid mines in enemy waters. The 4th British corps estimated that the Japanese already have lost more than 25,000 killed in the lost battle of Burma. An announcement said 16,730 slain were counted and calculated that the total number would exceed that by 50 per cent.

PRAISES MARINE DIVISION FOR ONE DAY ON OKINAWA

BY THOMAS MORROW
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

WITH U. S. FORCES ON OKINAWA, May 11 [Delayed] — One day's break-thru by the 1st marine division, which had been fighting the cave and terrain warfare for nine weary days, moved Brig. Gen. Pedro A. del Valle, commander, to commend the men of the division.

"To all troops of the 1st marine division and attached units," the commendation read, "the commanding general takes pleasure in commending you for your gallantry, intrepidity, and unflinching determination. Your conduct has added laurels to the marine corps and earned the gratitude of the country. I am proud to command a unit which maintains its glorious tradition."

Climb 350 Foot Peak

The keynote for the day's success was set when two platoons of Japanese, for reasons obscure except to the Japanese mind, presented themselves in front of a regiment to be obliterated by artillery, mortar, and machine gun fire.

A climb almost straight up over coral rocks to a desolate peak 350 feet high commanded a view of the pocket which had been holding up the division. A deep ravine, lined with caves on both sides, spit machine gun fire each time troops were sent into the cut.

Mine Kills 9 Yanks

Phosphorous shells covered the ravine with smoke as the marines cautiously moved upon a cave. Day-long activity, in which fire teams moved from cave to cave, removed the Japanese gunners. Troops were posted around the ravine to see that fresh enemy forces did not return to man the guns during the night.

Around the rock-protected observation post three dead Japanese sprawled. A burying party, commanded by a marine military policeman, began the work of burying them in a cave 50 feet away. Shortly after our party left the observation post, one of the burying party accidentally kicked off a land mine. Nine were killed.

A resting contingent of the reconnaissance company included Pvt. Floyd Danerb, 228 Welty av., Rockford, Ill., a former Golden Gloves fighter. He was proud of the company record of 60 Japanese killed with only three casualties.

RED ARMY LESS MOBILE, YANKS, BRITONS LEARN

Russian Strength Lies in Infantry Power

PARIS, May 12 (AP) — The Red army's strength lies in overwhelming infantry power which travels light, but American and British armies are better equipped, more mobile and are far more mechanized.

While much has been heard of the famed Red army artillery, nothing has been seen to compare with the flexibility of United States massed fire control.

These are some of the conclusions drawn from observation in answer to the question: Is the Red army the world's most formidable fighting force?

In recent weeks as the Red army fought its way to meet the allied forces some of the mystery about it has been lifted. Along the Elbe, American and British military men have gained a pretty fair view of the Red army in action as Germany fought Russians right down to the river in clear sight of the allied forces.

Air Coördination Looser

Here are some other impressions: Close Russian air coöperation with the ground forces did not appear to pack the hitting power of American and British efforts.

It is apparent that despite the tremendous distances the Red army has been able to cover it is not able to move with the speed that American forces are able to make on the offensive. A large proportion of Russian guns and transport are horse drawn. This is particularly true in infantry divisions.

The soviet strength in moving over vast distances has been in its overwhelming infantry and light supply arrangements. The Russians live off the land, and judging by what has been seen of the Red army thus far its supply tonnage per division must be less than half of what it takes to supply an American force in the field.

Many Anti-Tank Weapons

There is a great preponderance of anti-tank weapons and automatic fire weapons with the infantry. The Russians use small anti-tank guns in place of the tanks and tank destroyers which Americans attach to infantry divisions.

A large proportion of Russian infantry also carries tommy guns instead of rifles.

Every possible fighting man is put on the actual front. Russian divisional headquarters and other headquarters staffs are much smaller than American or British headquarters, and communications are much more sketchy.

The Germans have said they were defeated by the Russians because they were overwhelmed by men and tanks at critical points, with the infantry attacking regardless of losses.

Credit "Spirit" of Men

Russian officers also say they feel that the "spirit" of the army had more to do with defeating the Germans than equipment.

The Russian army seen thus far on the move looks like a huge gypsy camp with soldiers hanging on running boards of captured cars, draped over the fenders and lying on wagons.

The Russians appeared to depend solely on ground observers to direct their artillery and mortar fire. In the final battle at Tangermuende both were extremely spotty against easy targets.

One thing in which the Russians are far superior to the Americans and British is the art of camouflage. One could walk right over a tank before seeing it.

German Pockets

REDS CAPTURE 700,000 NAZIS; MOP UP POCKETS

LONDON, Sunday, May 13 (AP)—Russian armies have captured more than 700,000 enemy troops and 63 Nazi generals in mopping up scattered resistance on the eastern front since Germany's unconditional surrender Tuesday, Moscow said last night.

Thousands of these troops were being moved eastward by the Red army. They were bound for Russia for the work of restoring ruined soviet cities, villages, and factories. "Before them now is no role of idle gentlemen," the soviet newspaper Izvestia said.

The only area on the eastern front where some German troops still resisted was in Czechoslovakia and Austria. But three Russian armies had closed a ring around the last remnants of Field Marshal Ferdinand Schoerner's "middle army group" in Czechoslovakia and the trapped Germans were being rounded up in a 1,200 square mile pocket.

Clean Up in Alps

In Austria, another soviet army was clearing dispersed units of Nazi Col. Gen. Otto Woehler's army from hideouts in the Austrian Alps, but the last enemy surrender resisters in the two countries were giving up the fight and surrendering.

In Czechoslovakia and Austria a total of 475,000 German captives had been seized. Along with the prisoner haul taken from Latvia to Czechoslovakia, the Russians bagged quantities of equipment and supplies.

Moscow's nightly war bulletin gave no fresh news of fighting advances, but reported that the German surrender in the Baltic pockets east and northeast of Danzig and Gdyzia and on the Danish island of Bornholm, off Sweden's southeastern tip, had been completed. A total of 60,846 captives including 12 generals were checked into cages.

145,000 in Latvia

On the Courland peninsula of Latvia, other Russian forces were continuing the roundup of the remnants of 30 trapped Nazi divisions and the bag exceeded 145,000 men, including 28 generals, Moscow said.

The violators of Germany's unconditional surrender were being slashed unmercifully into small pockets by vengeful Red army forces forced to fight on four days after the fall of Hitler's third Reich.

NO WATER IN BERLIN

The Moscow radio said last night that "there still is no water" in Berlin and the problem of getting food to the capital is critical.

The broadcast, reported by the OWI, said the Russians have put Berliners to work cleaning up the city and are encouraging the resumption of "normal business activities." The report said "Berliners shortly will receive new ration cards," and that "business life is slowly getting under way."

REPORTS BIG 3 MAY MEET ON GERMAN SOIL

LONDON, May 12 (AP)—The Sunday Times said today the next meeting of the Big Three — President Truman, Prime Minister Churchill, and Premier Stalin—might be on German soil, and possibly in some Prussian country house near Berlin.

The Londan Sunday Chronicle said Stalin had rejected London as the site of the conference.

A hint that diplomatic relations among the three big powers have reached a delicate stage came this week from Churchill when he cautioned commons against a foreign affairs debate at this time.

The Sunday Observer and others described Russia as still suspicious of her western allies.

ILLINOISAN'S 2 GRENADES END 2 JAP GUN NESTS

WITH 148TH INFANTRY ON LUZON, P. I., May 11 [Delayed]—(AP)—Lt. France Vancil, Sparta, Ill., played a hero's role yesterday as the 148th regiment took two hills against strong Japanese resistance in the Balete pass sector of northern Luzon. Two machine guns had caused numerous American casualties. Accompanied by an automatic rifleman and two scouts, Lt. Vancil knocked out both. He threw a phosphorous grenade into the first, then got the second with a fragmentation grenade. Just before Vancil hurled it, the rifleman brought down a Japanese who was aiming at the lieutenant.

60 British Relief Ships Leave for Channel Islands

LONDON, May 12 [Reuters]—A great mercy mission, consisting of some 60 relief ships and troop transports, with naval escort, has set out from Plymouth for Britain's Channel Islands, now relieved of their German occupation. The 7,000 soldiers on board the ships were to help the starving British men, women, and children, and to herd the 25,000 Germans on the islands into prison camps.

NORTH ITALY TENSION GROWS OVER PARTISANS

New Government Issue Also Big Problem

BY P. E. BRIQUET

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

CHIASSO, Switzerland, May 12—There is increasing tension in northern Italy as two ominous problems loom in the future of that scarred country: constitution of a new government to replace that of Premier Ivanoe Bonomi, and a demobilization of the Partisans, according to information reaching here from Italy.

The first problem is causing many journeys between Rome and Milan. From Milan Gen. Cadorna, commander in chief of the Partisans in upper Italy, flew to Rome with the Action party leader Parri. At present Parri appears to be one of the most probable successors to Bonomi.

The Action party, among the northern leftists, "opposes any reshaping of the present government, and wants a complete change of ministry when Bonomi goes."

Against the Monarchy

Parri's present mission shows the leftists would consider his appointment as a concession to the rightists, while dealing a direct blow at the monarchy. Parri and the Action party are definitely against the monarchy.

Cadorna went to Rome to discuss vexing parliamentary and demobilization problems.

Numerous delegations are going from Rome to Milan, including various members of all parties and such leaders as the Socialists Pietro Nenni and Emilio Lusso of the Action party, and 12 southern syndicate leaders.

Such contacts are necessary as the Catholic party now opposes Bonomi's resignation, while some observers say that any ministerial change should follow, not precede, creation of a definite plan for the economic rehabilitation of the country.

Oppose Hurried Change

The influence of the Catholic party is strong enough to maintain Bonomi in office at present. American and British representatives in Rome have not been officially consulted, but are known not to favor any hurried change in the government.

Demobilization of the Partisans is still encountering great difficulties. It is evident that these armed forces are likely to cause serious trouble.

[A Reuters dispatch from London said that two principles had been approved in a conference between Premier Bonomi, his ministers, and leaders of the Freedom Volunteers of northern Italy. He said the agreement provided speedy admission of Partisan forces into the regular army and allocation of funds to aid rehabilitation of demobilized Partisans.]

Argument for Partisans

Benedetto Moscatelli was reported today to be marching east with 6,000 Communists against Verona, a Catholic party stronghold on the route to the Yugoslav border. The allied armies are taking a neutral attitude toward this move.

The Communist party favors incorporation of the greatest possible number of Partisans in the army.

One of the strongest reasons put forward by those who oppose demobilization of the Partisans is that they are necessary to prevent a return to fascism and to continue "cleansing operations."

ARGENTINE AID VOICES ACCORD WITH U. S. IDEALS

Gen. Juan Carlos Bassi, director of Argentina's military training, said in Chicago last night that his country is in "full accord" with ideals of the United States and will follow this nation in helping create a practical and enduring peace. Gen. Bassi was spokesman for 15 Argentine delegates en route to the San Francisco conference. They stopped briefly before boarding a United Airlines plane. Alejandro Del Carril, Argentine consul in Chicago, greeted the delegation.

REPORT DOENITZ TURNS HIMMLER OVER TO BRITISH

U. S. 7th Army Seizes SS Army Chief

New York, May 12—Heinrich Himmler "is now reported to be in our hands," CBS reported from Paris today.

"Himmler is understood to have been held by Adm. Doenitz in the Flensburg area under house arrest, and Doenitz is now believed to have turned him over to British forces in that area," the broadcast said.

Joseph Darnand, former chief of the Vichy militia, was captured in northern Italy with 200 former militiamen, a British broadcast recorded by the OWI said. The Paris radio said he was taken May 6.

Capture SS General

WITH THE U. S. 7TH ARMY, May 12 (AP)—Col. Gen. Sepp Dietrich, commander of the 6th SS panzer army, and his wife were captured today by the 636th tank destroyer battalion, 36th division.

Master Sgt. Herbert Kraus, Cleveland, O., recognized Dietrich after military police placed him in a prisoner cage.

"Dietrich doesn't look anything like an army commander—he's more like a neighborhood grocer," Kraus said.

Urges Hanging of Von Papen

MOSCOW, May 12 (AP)—Commentator Nikolai Polyanov declared in the newspaper Komsomol Pravda today that "justice demands" the hanging of Franz von Papen, nazi diplomat captured by American forces. He named Von Papen specifically in an article saying "the time has arrived to get busy with those criminals who started the war in Europe."

Reports British Angry

LONDON, May 12 (AP)—The News Chronicle said today that reports of the reception Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering received on his surrender to the United States 7th army had angered the British people.

The editorial said the British particularly were angered by a report that Brig. Gen. Robert Stack of the United States 36th division shook Goering's hand.

[An Associated Press dispatch from Kutzbuhel, Austria, on May 9 said both Gen. Stack and Maj. Gen. John E. Dalquist, 36th division commander, were present when Goering was received. The dispatch mentioned a handshaking ceremony, but the principals were not identified.]

Mechanics' Strike Halts Dixie Greyhound Lines

Memphis, Tenn., May 12 (AP)—A walkout of about 300 mechanics and service men disrupted service on Dixie Greyhound lines today. Earl W. Smith, vice president, said service was halted from Memphis to Nashville and Chattanooga, south to Birmingham, Ala., and north to St. Louis and Evansville, Ind. The mechanics are members of the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric and Motor Coach Employes of America [AFL]. Ben Avery, international representative of the union, said in Paducah, Ky., the dispute arose over failure of the company to recognize an agreement for job advancement.

PETAIN'S TRIAL DEMANDED BY FREED REYNAUD

PARIS, May 12 (AP).—Paul Reynaud, last premier of France, demanded today that Marshal Petain and Gen. Weygand be brought to trial in order to bring out "the whole truth of France's capitulation to the Germans.

Reynaud was liberated by American forces from a Nazi prison at Itter, Italy, and returned to Paris on Wednesday.

"We must have Petain and Weygand brought to trial to get the whole truth of France's capitulation in 1940," he said. "I am here to give witness against Petain.

"Everybody would like to know the facts of 1940, and I am willing to bring them forth."

Refused to Capitulate

"In defeat," Reynaud asserted, "I was surrounded by the men who wanted to capitulate—Petain, Weygand, all the generals and most of the government leaders."

He said President Lebrun asked him to remain in office during the capitulation, but that he refused.

"Why didn't the government of France move to Britain like the government of Holland and Belgium," he was asked.

"I wanted that," Reynaud replied, "but no one else did. Two arguments were brought up against moving the government to Britain. One was the total lack of military preparation that should have been arranged by Weygand. The other was that the government of our country could not have been run from outside, and all we would have been doing would have been saving the ministers' heads.

Morally Slapped Petain

"To this I gave in on June 16 and resigned. The next day Petain asked for an armistice.

"I was arersted with Mandel [George Mandel, late minister of interior]. When they delivered us to the Germans I morally slapped Petain's face by saying, 'Would you deliver your former chief to the enemy?'"

Reynaud said he often told his Nazi captors "You won't only lose the war, but you'll be crushed."

He said in 1943 he told a German SS [elite guard] colonel who boasted that Russia was "beaten":

"You may have big victories in Russia but you will never surpass the Urals, and even if you did beat Russia, do you think the United States of America would get down on her knees and ask forgiveness of you?"

ASSERTS FRENCH PLEA TO FIGHT JAPS REJECTED

Admiral Tells of Requests to Allies

PARIS, May 12 (AP)—Adm. Pierre Barjot of the French general staff said today that the French wanted to fight the Japanese "and we don't care where," but that repeated requests by the government to send troops had been turned down by the allied combined chiefs of staff.

"We can't understand the reason," the admiral added.

Barjot said France had four divisions ready to go to the Pacific. The French completed the arming of a battalion of commandos over a year ago and formally requested last November that it be sent to the Pacific, he said. The unit was specially equipped and trained for jungle fighting.

Wait 3 Months for Answer

"It took three months to get an answer," he said, "and when the answer arrived it was negative."

The French, he said, again requested permission to send troops to the far east last March when fighting flared in Indo-China between the Japanese and the French garrison.

Complications apparently have arisen in part from ambiguity in marking the geographical limits of the respective commands of Adm. Mountbatten, allied commander in chief in southeast Asia, and Lt. Gen. Wedemeyer, American commander in China, Barjot said.

Indo-China, he said, apparently lies on the theoretical border between the two commands.

The admiral said the French were referred from supreme headquarters allied expeditionary force to the southeatst Asia command, to Gen. Wedemeyer, to London, and to Washington, D. C., in presenting their requests.

French Warn Japs

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, May 12—The De Gaulle government tonight warned Japan that any Japanese guilty of acts not in accordance with international law against French citizens and natives in Indo-China will be considered as war criminals and treated as such.

NELSON RESIGNS AS PRESIDENT'S ENVOY ABROAD

E. A. Locke Takes Over Economic Missions

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., May 12—Donald M. Nelson today resigned as the President's personal representative to foreign governments on international economic affairs. President Truman named Edwin A. Locke Jr., Nelson's assistant, as his successor.

Donald M. Nelson [top] and Edwin A. Locke Jr.

The former war production board chairman had been unhappy in his post despite White House rank at cabinet level, because his services were little used beyond two trips to study conditions in China, where he organized a Chinese WPB.

"The New Deal's favorite business man," as Nelson was known, is preparing to return to private business. He became WPB chairman shortly after Pearl Harbor, coming from the vice presidency of Sears, Roebuck & Co., mail order house.

Served with NRA

Nelson had been intermittently associated with the New Deal since the defunct national recovery administration was instituted a dozen years ago. His post as special adviser came as a result of an internal blow up in WPB last summer.

Nelson's executive vice chairman, Charles E. Wilson, resigned in August, charging that Nelson's personal staff had made unfair attacks upon Wilson and created dissension which hampered WPB functioning. Nelson resigned a month later and was replaced by J. A. Krug.

Since his return from China Nelson had been out of the capital almost continuously with his bride, the former Marguerite Coulbourne, 26, college beauty contest winner. Nelson, 56, was divorced by his first wife in January.

[A spokesman for Sears, Roebuck & Co. in Chicago said the company had no comment to make on Nelson's plans.]

Mr. Truman said Locke's mission is to last from three to six months, long enough to wind up the affairs of the program Nelson launched in China.

Letter to President

In submitting his resignation, Nelson wrote the President:

"After my return from several trips to Russia and China, I had long and private talks with President Roosevelt about our economic relations with other countries. I shall be glad at any time to tell you what we discussed in these conversations."

President Truman, accepting the resignation reluctantly, noted that Nelson had been in Washington since May, 1940, "at great personal sacrifice, rendering patriotic and effective service in helping to build the vast war machine which has finally spelled victory in Europe for the cause of decency."

BISHOP CHARGES HE WAS DRIVEN OFF ITALIAN SOIL

VATICAN CITY, May 12 (AP)—Carlo Margotti, archbishop of Gorizia, has returned to Rome following his release by Yugoslav troops who arrested him when they entered Gorizia on May 2 and kept him in custody five days.

He said today that a Yugoslav political commissar informed him that "we have decided to free you but you are considered forever banned from Slovene territory."

[Gorizia is north of Trieste, in northeastern Italian territory whose ownership is a subject of dispute between the Italians and Yugoslavs.]

Margotti said the commissar informed him that his expulsion had saved him from a trial that "undoubtedly would have meant being condemned to death." He denied that he had been sentenced to execution. He said that immediately after his arrest he was questioned by the commissar and told that the charges against him included responsibility for the deaths of many Slovenes. "Had the circumstances been different," Margotti said, "I would have laughed in the commissar's face."

MONTY SITS FOR PORTRAIT WHILE BATTLE RAGES

BY JAMES SLOAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, May 13—Gen. Eisenhower was proposed by the Sunday Times today for high honor from parliament on the same basis as the chiefs of British forces.

"Many shoulders were shrugged when it was first proposed that the British forces should be under his command," the Sunday Times confessed, because "we did not know enough about him to five full confidence at first, and there were British soldiers whose character and record were worthy of the highest position.

"Fine Service to Cause"

"Whoever it was who first thought of him for the highest command did a fine service for the allied cause. All ranks in the forces will be gratified and the country will give its acclaim if there is conferred on Gen. Eisenhower a high British honor which will permanently mark this country's admiration and thanks."

Monty's Portrait Painted

The Sunday Dispatch revealed that Field Marshal Montgomery found time while directing the British battles in the Falaise gap of northern France last summer to pose for a portrait painted by James Gunn, one of Britain's Royal academy artists.

The Dispatch, which is presenting the portrait to Monty's mother as a Mother's day gift, carried a story in which the artist told how he was summoned by one of Monty's aides and flown in a lend-lease plane to his Falaise headquarters, so that he could preserve the British army chieftain in oils. He lived at his headquarters three weeks and painted three portraits, Gunn said.

Huge Nuernberg Swastika Coming to U. S. as Trophy

Washington, D. C., May 12 (AP)—The bronze swastika before which the Nazi faithful performed rituals in the party's shrine city of Nuernberg is coming to the United States as a war trophy. The war department said today Gen. Patton had requested permission to send the giant crooked cross here as a trophy. He is expected to turn it over to the army war college.

IT'S A GREAT DAY FOR ANNA JARVIS, NOW 81, BLIND

She Fought Long, Hard for Mother's Day

Philadelphia, Pa., May 12 (AP)—Anna M. Jarvis is old and blind and too enfeebled to worry greatly how people are observing Mother's day, which she founded and incorporated 31 years ago.

Miss Jarvis, 81, an inmate at the Marshall Square sanatorium in nearby West Chester, has forgotten much about those long years of bitter feuds with florists, the greeting card industry, and candy makers "who tried to distort the real meaning of Mother's day."

"She's become mellow and is happy most of the time in knowing that Mother's day is firmly enough established to go on without her prodding," Howard S. J. Sickel, chairman of the Anna M. Jarvis committee, explained.

Fought in Court and Out

"But she was a real scrapper in her younger days," Sickel said as he recalled her many fights in court and out against what she called commercialization of the holiday she began.

An intelligent, attractive woman of deeply sentimental nature, Miss Jarvis started the Mother's day movement in 1907 in tribute to her late mother, Mrs. Anna Reeves Jarvis, daughter of a Methodist clergyman at Grafton, W. Va., where Anna was born.

Anna's family meanwhile had moved to Philadelphia where she began writing letters to governors, teachers, clergymen, prisons, army camps, the White House, members of congress, clubwomen, editors, and even to royalty in other countries.

Day Is Proclaimed

Her correspondence met with favorable response. During the next few years governors of several states proclaimed a Mother's day on the second Sunday in May.

On May 7, 1914, a joint resolution was adopted in the house of representatives designating the second Sunday in May in honor of mothers. The senate concurred, and on May 9 President Wilson proclaimed the day for "a public expression of our love and reverence for mothers."

Now confined to a wheel chair in her sunny room at the sanatorium, Anna looks to the Jarvis committee to carry on her work and perpetuate the ideals of what she felt was her personally owned holiday.

Mother's Best Gift—News of Yanks!

Mrs. Nell Lefebvre reading glad tidings yesterday before pictures of sons, George (left) and Daniel.

Happy Day for Her

Mrs. Nell Lefebvre 1933 Grand av., has received "the finest Mother's day gift in the world." She has learned that one son, Staff Sgt. George Lefebvre, has just been released from a German prison camp in Austria. A tail gunner, he was shot down over Schweinfurt.

Another gift which brought her joy, she says, is a letter from her son, Staff Sgt. Daniel Lefebvre, a member of the infantry now attached to the allied commission in Rome, telling how he was awarded the silver star for gallantry in action.

39 YANKS LEFT BEHIND BY JAPS FREED IN BURMA

RANGOON, Burma, May 12 (AP)—Twenty United States army air force officers and 19 enlisted men, abandoned by the Japanese as unfit to walk away from the Rangoon central prison, were evacuated May 4 by the 15th Indian corps, which had occupied the Burma capital the night before. Among them were Lt. Ray A. Wentz of Springfield, Ill., and Sgt. Don Z. Davis of Litchfield, Ill.

With the Americans left behind were 29 British officers. Seventy-five other American officers and men were among 400 prisoners of war marched away by the Japanese April 25 in a withdrawal northward toward Insein, where most if not all were believed rescued by troops of the British 14th army.

Sgt. Major John Finnerty, 30, a member of the royal Inniskilling fusiliers who had spent three years and 14 days at the prison, said the Japanese used "refined torture" methods on the prisoners.

He said new arrivals were thrown into solitary confinement and kept without water until they were too weak to respond to orders, providing excuses for atrocities by being unable to move. The Irishman said in three years 1,000 prisoners had died of beri-beri and dysentery.

On April 29, the prisoners said, the Japanese guards ordered "lights out"—altho there never had been any lights. The next morning the guards were gone and the prisoners found a note in which the guards said they were afraid they had not treated the prisoners very well, adding "if we meet on another front we must all fight bravely."

LETTUCE FOR 4, 74c; PARISIAN WOMEN ANGRY

BY ROBERT SAGE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, May 12—Anger mounted among Paris housewives today when they returned to the markets, which had been closed for five days, to replenish their food stocks. They found the prices of fruits and vegetables had doubled since last week.

Lettuce enough for a plain salad for four persons cost 74 cents. Asparagus, which sold for 34 cents a pound last week, was priced at 70. Cherries, the only fruit available, were more than $1 a pound.

The explanation of the jump lies in the food ministry's decision to discontinue the fixing of ceiling prices for farm produce. With a legal price set, the middle men did not buy fruit and vegetables or sold them to the black market. Now, with the sky the limit, the open market price is virtually on the black market level.

KIN OF LAVAL WON'T DEFEND HIM AT TRIAL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, May 12—Pierre Laval's son-in-law, Count Rene de Chambrun, member of the bar in New York and Paris, said today he would not defend the former premier of France. De Chambrun, an American citizen and a descendant of Lafayette, is the son of Gen. Jacques de Chambrun who was attached to Gen. Pershing's staff in World War I.

"I do not think it would be possible for me to take his defense in court," Rene said. "I am confident the trials will be fair and full justice will be done."

Jose Laval is the count's wife. De Chambrun's mother is the former Clara Longworth of Cincinnati, O.

VETERANS FINED IN BRAWL OVER PROPER CLOTHES

CALCUTTA, May 12 (AP).—Two veteran B-29 combat flyers have been fined by an army court martial after a brawl that arose when their regulation uniforms were not considered fancy enough to admit them to the ballroom of the new U. S. army officers' club at the Kanarni estates here.

A navigator paid $100 and a co-pilot $50.

The incident highlighted widespread dissatisfaction among India-Burma combat officers with the swank demanded before they can rub elbows with their rear area brethren at the Kanarni estates, under noncombat officer management.

How It Started

The "battle of the bush jacket" comes in the now it can be told class, since steps have been taken to remove the main causes of dissatisfaction.

It began when the navigator and co-pilot, each with more than 400 hours of combat flight and three combat medals, arrived in town on leave and appeared at the Kanarni club in regulation cotton shirts, standard garb all over the theater of action.

They were barred and informed they must wear either tunics, which are out of question in Calcutta's Turkish bath climate, or bush jackets, a nonregulation sort of long-skirted Norfolk jacket for hot weather borrowed from the British and optional in this area. The brawl followed.

Combat officers had long complained that the bush jacket ruling virtually reserved the club, which cost plenty of money, for typewriter troopers who had a corner on available bush jackets.

Brig. Gen. Robert Neyland, commander of base section 2, and other authorities here have held that the dress requirements contribute to better behavior.

The Kanarni management still is sticking to the bush jacket requirement but has come down to the extent of putting in a stock of the jackets which outposted officers can rent for one rupee nightly.

Wieboldt Employees Launch "Mighty Seventh" Drive to Sell More Bonds Than Ever Before!

Spurred by the bitter fighting in the Pacific, they pledge their 347 fellow-workers—now in the armed forces— to redouble their efforts

On this Sunday, proclaimed by President Truman as a day of thanksgiving and prayer, more than 3000 Wieboldt employees rededicate themselves to sustain their stride in the War Bond effort. They know, as you know, that tho half the world is liberated, only half the job is done. As it swings to the Pacific, America's firepower needs Bond-power, too!

That's why, in the next weeks, they will ask you on the phone, at your home, in the six Wieboldt stores, to share in the stern task ahead—to buy bonds and more bonds!

Every Wieboldt Employee Will Be Given a Day Off to Sell Bonds. When They Ask You, Lend It to End It!

Wieboldt Employees War Bond Selling Record

- They have sold, and written up 87,250 individual War Bonds!
- In the last four Bond drives their quota was $5,000,000. Since Pearl Harbor they have sold in excess of $32,000,000.
- Over 3000 Employees in each campaign sold their quota and more!

BRITAIN EXPECTS ELECTION HINT BY CHURCHILL

Premier Broadcasts on Anniversary Today

LONDON, May 12 (AP)—Britain anticipates that Prime Minister Chuchill may give a hint during his anniversary broadcast Sunday night [2 p. m. Chicago time] of when it can expect its first general election in 10 years, the longest stretch this country has gone in modern times without choosing a parliament.

[W-G-N and the Mutual network will broadcast the address.]

There is almost unanimous opinion the election will be this year, probably either in July or in October. August and September generally are ruled out for voting as that is harvest time.

A hot fight aside from party platforms appears developing around Churchill's dual position as both leader of the Conservative party, a post he accepted five months after becoming prime minister, and leader of the nation's war effort.

Ready to Fight Premier

Labor ministers in the coalition cabinet have stated that while they have pledged allegiance to Churchill the war leader they stand ready to fight Churchill the political leader.

Churchill's personal popularity is sure to be one of the Conservatives' strongest cards. The Labor party organ, the London Daily Herald, already has struck the opposition note by calling for a campaign based on social issues rather than on the popularity of party leaders.

Both major parties have proposed a "cradle to the grave" security program, the most sweeping this country ever has known, but are lined up squarely on opposite sides on the extent of post-war reform.

The Conservatives are sounding the theme of "free enterprise" while the Laborites are calling for drastic nationalization of industries such as coal mines, power and inland transport, and for government control of the Bank of England.

By-Elections Indecisive

The only chance party strategists have had to sample the sentiment of voters has been in by-elections. These are somewhat indecisive as a barometer since all major parties in the coalition cabinet have been supporting government candidates.

Under the election truce, when vacancies occur in parliament thru death or resignation, the party that held the seat is allowed to fill it, altho Independents and the left wing Commonwealth party have offered challenges.

One of the biggest political upsets of the war saw the defeat of a Conservative backed by Churchill and other members of the cabinet at the hands of a Commonwealth candidate in the usually solid Conservative Chelmsford district nine days ago.

Foreign policy is not expected to be an important campaign factor as all parties are committed to the Churchill government's wartime role in the international field.

Herbert Morrison, who was Labor party chairman and now, at 57, is minister of labor in the coalition, has been mentioned as his party's possible choice for the premiership.

Dictation Queen

QUEBEC LUXURY TAXES ASSAILED AS TOO DRASTIC

Even Weddings Are Hit, Is Charge

BY GORDON ROBERTS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

QUEBEC, May 12—A sharp drop in weddings and a corresponding decline in the heavy birth rate may be expected in Quebec province if all prospective bridal couples feel the way one countryman does about the new 6 per cent luxury tax.

The tax, supposed to be for the aid of health and education, has been in effect since April 27. Taxable goods include shaving brushes and razor blades, toothpaste and toothbrushes, shoelaces, face creams and lotions, cleansing tissues, and many others that can hardly be classed as luxuries.

He Summarizes Effects

L. P. Lizotte, representing the rural district of Kamouraska, ironically summarized the effects of the tax in relating to the Quebec legislature the reasons given by one of his constituents for postponing his wedding, scheduled for July.

Lizotte told an attentive house, with practically all members present except Premier Duplessis, that his constitutent had complained:

"The Union Nationale [Duplessis government] has taxed marriage. I wanted to buy an engagement ring and a marriage ring; both are taxed, thanks to Mr. Duplessis. I planned a honeymoon, but for that I needed a valise; valises are taxed by Mr. Duplessis."

Suggests Tax on Love

Something to drink at the wedding celebration, he continued, would call for himself and bride and all the in-laws getting ration books at $1 each, plus the 6 per cent tax. Wedding presents, such as radio, gramophone, electric iron, and electric washing machine would all suffer the 6 per cent. So would the bride's prospective fur coat, silver fox set, handbag, imitation pearl necklace, and toilet articles.

Lizotte said he could think of only one thing not yet taxed; love. Speaker Tache of the house commented that the bridegroom might have to pay the amusement tax on that.

8,000 Tons of Supplies Drop to Resistance Forces

LONDON, May 12 [Reuters]—The 38th group of the tactical air force dropped 8,000 tons of supplies to resistance movements during the German occupation of Europe, it was officially revealed here tonight. The Partisans in Norway received supplies of all kinds including guns, ammunition, jeeps, medical equipment, as well as troops.

CAPITAL STIRRED BY REPORTS OF STALIN MESSAGE

scribed Stalin's note to Churchill as "very outspoken."

Urges "Common Sense"

On Capitol hill, Rep. Sumner [R., Ill.] declared she had absolute confirmation of THE TRIBUNE story and called for common sense diplomacy in dealing with Russia and Britain.

At the White House, Eben L. Ayers, press secretary, said President Truman had seen THE TRIBUNE story and that the chief executive "had no comment on it." Ayers said he could not confirm whether such a note had been received by the President, asserting he had no information on the subject.

Not until official state department sources revealed that Stalin had communicated with Mr. Truman directly was the Stalin note acknowledged here. They said the note dealt solely with the Polish question, but would not confirm or deny the report that Stalin had advised the President that further discussion of the Polish question is useless on its present basis.

"One Foot on the Skids"

In disclosing that she had confirmed the reports of the contents of the Stalin notes from private sources, Miss Sumner said:

"I feel like making a speech entitled, 'Excuse me, but I told you so.' Our New Deal way of life with the British and the Russians is one foot on the skids and the other on a banana peel.

"However, the world is not going to come to an end just because we have received another 'stinker,' as they call Stalin's catty notes, of which this is not the first, tho it is the first published.

"We must stick to our guns until the Japs surrender—maybe within a few weeks, since the Japs surely want to avoid the dose of Russian punishment Germany is going to get.

"We must really become strong. To be strong we must stop giving away our strength, give up indulging in such programs as Bretton Woods and Dumbarton Oaks.

"The San Francisco performance has only made the Russians more jealous of the British. Jealousy and fear of the British is one motive for the Russian moves to dominate the world. It's high time we tried using common sense."

PETER MASEFIELD TO U. S.

LONDON, May 12 [Reuters]—Peter Masefield, 31, former air correspondent of the Sunday Times, has been appointed civil air attache to Halifax, British ambassador to the United States.

3 SAILORS SAVED NEAR OKINAWA VISIT FAMILIES

Three Chicago sailors who survived the sinkings of three American warships off Okinawa Island yesterday rested and enjoyed home food with their families after months of fighting the Japanese.

They are Seaman Ralph Hansen, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Hansen, 8946 Escanaba av., rescued after the sinking of the destroyer Calhoun on April 6; Seaman Anthony Morelli, 31, of 1120 S. Albany av., member of the crew of the lost U. S. S. Skylark, and Edward A. Rasky, 31, a petty officer 3d class, of 1057 Foster av.

Morelli's wife, Marie, hardly recognized her husband because he wore a smart new goatee. He also had three bronze stars.

DRIVER GETS YEAR'S PROBATION

William Murphy, 18, of 8111 S. Peoria st., whose automobile struck another car April 26 at 87th st. and Ashland av., injuring three persons, was placed on a year's probation yesterday by Judge J. M. Braude in Boys' court on a charge of reckless driving.

RUSSIAN DOUBLE DEALING

Russophile Americans who resent any criticism of soviet principles or practices explain the increasing difficulties other nations are having with Stalin's government, now that Josef's worst troubles are over. They say that the Reds naturally distrust the capitalistic countries and with good reason dating as far back as communism's birthday in 1917. We unbelievers are supposed to have attacked the Red infant and tried to destroy it before it was out of its three cornered pants.

When that statement has been trimmed down to the proportions of truth there is not much left of it. The first American mission to Red Russia was a friendly one. The commissioner was Edgar Sisson, once on THE TRIBUNE's editorial staff and during the war George Creel's assistant. Mr. Wilson sent him to Petrograd with a quarter million dollars to do whatever could be done to keep the Russian revolutionaries in the war. Before he could get there Lenin seized power, creating a most peculiar situation for an American propagandist. Nevertheless, there was a period of guarded coöperation.

Mr. Sisson showed American propaganda films in Petrograd theaters and thruout Russia. He persuaded Lenin to send Wilson's 14 points speech by wire to Trotsky at Brest-Litovsk and had it printed everywhere in the country and plastered on the billboards in the hope that the Russians could be persuaded not to make an ignominious peace with the Germans. We were but faintly aware of what Mr. Lenin intended. It was the liquidation of property and property owners in Russia and the introduction of bolshevist revolution in every other country.

When the Russian terror developed according to plan, the countries which had been fighting Germany made some futile efforts to help the counter-revolutionaries, known as the White Russians, and picked wrong horses. The era of armed opposition to the bolshevists by external enemies was as brief as it was ineffectual. The whole episode was soon seen to be picayune. Too much was attempted with too little.

The existence of the Red union confused, distracted, and sickened the state policies of western Europe for over 20 years. Distrust and fear of Hitler were counter-balanced by distrust and fear of the Communists. Security alliances were made without confidence and were valueless. The British and the French knew the reason for Hitler's anti-comintern alliance, but altho seeing thru the arch-Nazi they more than half believed him, and the communist attitude justified them. Even when Stalin was drawn into the anti-Hitler orbit it was without faith or trust.

Poland declared that it could not permit Russia as an ally to send troops across its territory, fearing that if they entered as friends they would remain as occupiers. That fear can be judged in the light of present events. Altho Russia was an ally of Czechoslovakia, it was not invited to Munich and was not included in the guaranties given the Czechs, another sign of the fateful distrust.

The greatest factor in the confusion of international policies in Europe prior to the war was caused by well grounded suspicions of Russian intentions. Great Britain and France fumbled in the Rhineland, in Austria, in Spain, in Czechoslovakia, and against Italy because they couldn't pick their most dangerous opponent. Twice in the 28 years of the life of what is now called the union of soviet republics Red communism has released a horde of German soldiers, supposedly the enemies of Russia, against western Europe.

The first time was early in 1918, when the Reds made a disgraceful peace with Germany, and the second near the close of 1939, when Stalin made his disgraceful alliance with Hitler. In each instance, only German miscalculation or stupidity prevented a disaster in which we would, or could, have been involved. In 1918 the German command did not withdraw from the eastern front the divisions no longer needed there, which might have made the spring and summer offensive against the French, British, and Americans a success instead of a near miss. In 1941 Hitler's fine sense of treachery prompted him to turn on his Russian collaborator, who had signed a treaty with him in 1939. In both instances the communist dictatorship sought opportunity to exhaust or ruin the capitalistic world while it conserved its men and resources for purposes which can hardly be mistaken.

The distrust of Russia has justification thruout the whole record of the soviet union. From its beginning the communist dictatorship has inculcated a hatred of the outside world by a process of indoctrination which could not be equaled even by the training of the Hitler youth. Nazi schemes of world conquest never had the scope of the Russian. Stalin pretended to modify the aims of Lenin and Trotsky and withdraw from interference in the politics of every other country. Nevertheless the cells and the partisans remained active everywhere, taking orders from Moscow. These Communists now constitute a large and active party in every European country and we have had our own experience with them here.

In spite of all this, we have tried to treat Russia as a friend and an honorable ally. Under lend-lease 362,000 vehicles have been sent to the Russian armies. We gave them the tools of victory. Last year alone Stalin got 144,000 vehicles from us, including 6,000 tanks, 1,800 self-propelled guns, 3,300 armored scout cars, 1,200 half tracks, and 1,700 ordnance service vehicles.

The Russian armies have traveled to victory in American vehicles and with American armor. Yet we are told that the Stalinites have a reason to suspect this capitalistic country and that their double dealing has its justification.

POSTAL PAY

When a postman pushes your doorbell he delivers a letter and doesn't ask you to vote for any one. That may be why, under an administration that has never been notable for economy, postoffice employes are still paid on a basic scale fixed in 1925. The average letter carrier gets about $40 a week, the average clerk in a larger postoffice, $41. Substitutes average 20 per cent less.

The only change in postal pay rates to meet the increased cost of living which has so agitated the New Dealers in other circumstances was a $300 annual bonus, voted postal workers two years ago. The authorization for this expires in June. The postoffice employes, thru their unions, are asking a permanent increase of $400 a year in base pay, plus a scale of annual increases in the early years of service.

The cost of these increases, embodied in the Burch bill, would approximate $100,000,000 a year for about a quarter of a million postal employes. The sum is considerable, but it would be hard to find a group of payrollers more deserving.

IT'S PEOPLE WHO PAY TAXES

The house revenue committee at Springfield has by a large majority reported favorably the Armstrong bill, which denies tax exemption to public housing projects.

The legislature should, without delay, accept the committee's recommendation and pass the bill. Its failure to do so would erect a barrier against investment of private funds in housing in Chicago. The private, taxpaying investor, whether he contemplates building rental properties or a home for himself, will hesitate to risk his money if he faces the prospect of bearing not only his own share of the tax load but also the tax load of an increasing volume of tax exempt public housing.

The legislators were undoubtedly moved to approve the Armstrong bill by the discovery that tax exemption does not seem to benefit the very poor alone, for whom it presumably is intended. One member, Rep. Marzullo, asserted that in his district families with incomes as high as $3,000 a year are living in tax exempt public housing projects.

Misconceptions about tax exemption are so tenaciously held that we thought it might be useful to print a letter which we received during the current controversy from Clarence W. Beatty Jr., and to examine Mr. Beatty's arguments. His are the standard arguments of public housing advocates, ably presented. They appear today in the Voice of the People.

Mr. Beatty says that too much is being made of tax exemption because the sites of housing projects, present and proposed, have been poor taxpayers under private ownership. His figures can be relied upon, since, as a special assistant to the attorney general, he has had charge of condemnation of land in the Chicago area by federal authorities, both for housing developments and military reservations.

The figures do show that tax delinquency was higher in slum areas cleared for public housing than it was in Chicago at large. Conversely, however, they show that property owners in even these depressed areas were paying a far larger proportion of their taxes than they were evading.

For example, Mr. Beatty says that delinquent taxes on the Brooks site on the west side, at the time of acquisition, were $77,024, which is a fraction more than 10 per cent of the total purchase price of $764,586. At the time that this site was assembled, between 1939 and 1941, the unpaid taxes and penalties on any property that had quit paying taxes after the 1928 tax strike were just a little less than the assessed value, then 37 per cent of the so-called full value fixed by the assessor. Thus the Brooks site had, on the average, actually paid two or three dollars in taxes for every dollar that it still owed.

But, Mr. Beatty asserts, taxpayers on privately owned property still would suffer no loss from tax exemption accorded the federally financed housing projects if local officials would only accept the so-called service fees entered in lieu of taxes. These fees are far less than the taxes would be on the improved properties, but more, by Mr. Beatty's figures, than was collected on the sites before condemnation. Service charges of $143,971 have been offered, whereas pre-condemnation taxes, not all of which were collected, were $106,766 for an equal period.

This ignores the fact that four of the eight projects mentioned were built on vacant land, and the site of a fifth, the Jane Addams homes, included at least one full block of property already tax exempt [the former quarters of the Jewish People's institute]. The housing authorities in Chicago, as elsewhere in the nation, were interested primarily in public housing and, only secondarily and to a far less degree, in rehabilitating high priced slum land.

There is thus no sound basis for comparison of tax paying ability as between the project sites, a conglomeration of vacant property, tax exempt property and slum dwellings occupied by people of extremely low incomes, and the same areas after improvement by modern buildings and occupation by a larger number of tenants with considerably higher average income. Land doesn't pay taxes. Brick and mortar don't pay taxes. It is people who pay taxes, whatever the formality of assessing and collecting them. In the instances of the housing projects there are more people of tax paying ability living on the land today than there were when the land was condemned and given tax exemption.

BASES FOR NAVY

[Following is an address delivered last night by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of The Tribune, and broadcast on the Chicago Theater of the Air over W-G-N, WGNB, and the Mutual Broadcasting system.]

BY COL. ROBERT R. McCORMICK

There is a great deal of talk about naval bases going on. Let us see what is known about them.

In sailing ship days, these were places where ships could be debarnacled and reëquipped with ropes and spars, and where supplies and ammunition could be stored. Since the British navy during the sailing ship period was usually preponderant, the British took hostile bases pretty much at will, while protecting their own bases more by sea power than by local defense. The notable exception was Gibraltar, on the coast of Spain, which the British have held for centuries, and which has withstood several sieges, notably the one of 43 months during our Revolutionary war.

With the arrival of coal, the term "coaling stations" came into the vocabulary. These were harbors where ships could take on coal in all weathers. The British collection of islands all over the world gave, and still gives, great advantages to her navy.

The best known coaling station, I suppose, is the one in the Falkland Islands which the British occupy and the Argentines claim title to. There, during the first World war, Adm. von Spee of Germany surprised the British battle cruiser squadron while coaling. If Von Spee had been a man of quick courage, he would have rushed his cruisers into the harbor with no telling what results. As it was, you remember, he turned away from larger, faster ships, and lost his entire fleet, less one small cruiser, and his life, without doing the British ships any damage whatever.

As I have told you in previous lectures, we acquired Hawaii and Samoa as coaling stations; the first to connect the Philippines with San Francisco; the second with Cape Horn.

With oil supplanting coal as steamship or motor ship fuel, and with the great achievements of our navy in refueling at sea in all weathers, fueling stations have become of less importance, and now, with our tremendous facilities in the way of floating dry docks, repair ships, and even hotels, bases are unimportant, but only so long as we are dominant at sea, because these floating facilities cannot protect themselves and must be protected by the fleet. They are unlike harbors which, when sufficiently armed, defend themselves and the ships within them from gunfire.

In the mistaken belief that they were entirely safe from all attack, our battleships were tied up in Pearl Harbor and became victims of Japanese air attack. As far as I have been able to learn, anti-aircraft fire is not sufficient to protect ships in harbors or out of harbors. It helps, but must be supplemented by fighter planes.

Not the least important factor of bases in modern warfare, perhaps the greatest factor, is in furnishing landing fields for airplanes. This fact was illustrated especially at Midway and Guadalcanal. These were epochal naval battles; the first one conducted entirely by airplanes; the other involving both carriers and gun-shooting ships. In both of them we had the advantage of land based planes. At Midway, the Japanese had four carriers—we had three and Midway Islands. At Guadalcanal our ships had a great advantage in the land based airplanes used as scouts, fighters, and bombers, and a further advantage that the harbor of Tulagi enabled us to use PT boats.

A base air field suffers from the disadvantage that its location is accurately known, while that of a carrier has to be discovered. On the other hand, unlike the carrier, it cannot be sunk, and, with our methods, bomb craters in the air strips can be speedily repaired.

At the time of Pearl Harbor, only the island of Oahu in the Hawaiian chain was garrisoned, and that one insufficiently. The garrisons at Guam, Wake, and Midway were nominal. The Japanese did seize Guam and Wake, and could have seized Midway. Had they done so, the consequences would have been very serious.

Midway and Wake Islands may be as good as any for commercial aviation, but neither of them can be made strong enough to be defended.

These places could become commercial ports in peace time. Only Guam can be sufficiently fortified and garrisoned to assure its being held while the navy and air forces were going to its rescue from wherever they might be. If Midway and Wake Islands were captured, the rescue of Guam would be difficult. The most defensible spot in the Pacific, as well as the best naval and air base, I am told, is Truk, which was given to Japan as a mandate in the last war by the British, with all of the islands previously held by the Germans north of the equator, Australia and New Zealand taking all such islands south of the equator.

Truk's communications have been irregular since the battle of Midway in June, 1942. Truk has been cut off since the capture of Guam and Tinian in July of last year. Its garrison must be in a bad way.

The Army and Navy Journal of March 31 last said: "In British circles there is even talk of establishing a base at Truk."

We also have Samoa in the southern Pacific, which gives us a second landing place between the Pacific coast and New Zealand and Australia.

It is to be remembered that the entire Samoan archipelago was at one time held in joint occupancy by the United States, Great Britain, and Germany. Commercial rivalry and racial antipathy almost led to war. A settlement was obtained by dividing the island between America and Germany, Great Britain receiving compensation elsewhere in the Pacific and in Africa.

In the North Pacific we have, of course, the Aleutian Islands, which are reached from Seattle. This city is located in what was the Oregon country lying between California and Alaska. For many years it was under the joint administration of America and Great Britain. Quarrels between American settlers and British officials nearly led to war, to avoid which the country was divided, giving Britain British Columbia, and America the territory of Oregon, which was later made into the two states of Oregon and Washington.

You will remember that the westernmost of the Aleutian Islands were captured by the Japanese and afterward recaptured by our forces. From them we have been bombing the Japanese Kuril Islands.

I take it that the reason why we have not invaded any of the latter islands has been Russia's opposition—the Russians not wanting us any closer to Siberia and, for that matter, Manchuria.

The Northmen rovers were the first discoverers in the Atlantic. They discovered Iceland and Greenland 1,000 years ago. The Portuguese discovered the Azores in 1432. Everybody knows that Columbus discovered the Bahama Islands 60 years later and that five years after that John Cabot discovered Newfoundland.

For a long time tropical islands were extremely valuable for the production of sugar. Sugar is produced in so many ways, and so many places now that the Caribbean Islands have little economic importance.

Newfoundland and Greenland are practically barren islands.

As you know, we have the right to military occupation of the British-held islands in this hemisphere, but have not acquired that right over French and Dutch owned islands. All the islands in the Atlantic ocean and Gulf of Mexico are strategically important. Newfoundland, Greenland, the Azores, Bermuda, and Trinidad are the most important.

As commercial aviation will bring prosperity to all islands it touches, we can imagine that the populations of all of the islands will be seeking to have them made bases rather than to exclude flying lines.

RETURNING MOTHER'S LOVE

EACH of us pays homage, on this particular Sunday, to the one who gave us life. We are reminded of all the care and devotion that this most wonderful of women gave to us. Her influence probably played the biggest role in the molding of our character and the building of our ideals. Thus we can understand Abraham Lincoln's solemn assertion, "All that I am or ever hope to be I owe to my angel mother."

You were her baby—obtainable only thru months of discomfort and uncertainty. Of course, we don't remember our first few years on this earth but she will never forget them. Those 2 a. m. feedings, the last minute visits to be sure you were covered, the eternal solicitude that attended every whimper or sign of discomfort. Her concern over our early training was not without difficulties and tireless effort.

How proud she was to hear that first word, to see that initial step, and to watch her creation grow. During this period she was constantly on the alert for our safety. It was only natural that we became tied to her apron strings and relied upon her for everything.

In our childhood days she comforted us when we were wounded—in spirit or in the flesh. We recall an attack of whooping cough when, for several weeks, we lay sick in bed feeling utterly miserable. The coughing spells, lasting several minutes, were so hard that nothing dared stay on the stomach. With each paroxysm our head felt as tho it would burst.

The doctor helped but the touch of mother's hand upon the fevered brow was more potent than all the medicine in the world. No one could adjust the pillow quite so deftly, make it feel so cool; no battery of expert nurses was more capable of bringing calm and cheer. She was always within calling distance—a source of comfort—particularly at night when the need was greatest. Who could not recover with care like that?

As we reached our teens, she continued to supervis our activities, pointing out continually the difference between right and wrong. She realized that if we didn't learn then we never would. We occasionally envied companions of our own age who could do anything they pleased but, more often than not, our protests were overruled. We bowed to her wishes and respected her authority.

Gradually new responsibilities were added and the response frequently surprised even ourselves. With more leeway we were able to exchange thoughts with others, express our ambitions, and participate in play at camps and on hiking expeditions. When we became more mature it was only natural for her to feel a little sad that she was being left behind but that was life—part of her maternal obligation.

To remember her on Mother's day helps us to show our appreciation. A better way is to live up to her dreams and visions; to carry on the high inspiration she gave us and the standards she tried to instill into us.

LOOSE KIDNEY

J. A. V. writes.: What are the symptoms of a floating kidney?

REPLY

The kidneys are imbedded in fatty tissue which helps to anchor them to the back walls. In some individuals who are not so well padded, organs are capable of moving, which may cause a dragging pain in the groin and tenderness in the involved area. Gaining weight is of benefit. Surgery is reserved for the more serious type.

BIG FIBBER

Mrs. M. writes: Is there a cure for a habitual liar? If you question him, he tells a bigger one than before. Is this a sickness or what?

REPLY

If he believes his own stories, or no motive can be found, a psychiatrist should be consulted. In some cases the habit is associated with mental deterioration.

SHE RECOILS

J. T. writes: I can't get over a feeling of disgust when I see worms or caterpillars. This means that every spring I am miserable. Have you any suggestions?

REPLY

Gaze at the sky as you walk. Then you probably won't see the "critters." This is a mental state that you yourself must overcome.

LEG DISCOMFORT

D. J. writes: What is chauffeur's foot?

REPLY

A numbness of the right foot, associated with cramps in the calf. It may be observed in any one after driving for some time, due to pressure on the nerves in the leg.

KIDNEY INFLAMMATION

Mrs. J. writes: Could a recurrence of pyelitis in a child be blamed on getting chilled?

REPLY

Anything that weakens resistance invites infection.

HEART DEFECT

Mrs. W. writes: What is a blue baby?

REPLY

One born with a certain type of congenital heart disease.

TURNABOUT

Mrs. T. writes: What is meant by dextrocardia?

REPLY

A heart that is located on the right side. In most of us, this organ is situated toward left center. It functions, regardless of its position.

TAX EXEMPTION AND TAX DELINQUENCY

Chicago, April 9—A study of the slum areas now occupied by public housing projects in Chicago will show that a good part of the owners of the properties went on a tax strike before public housing got a so-called tax exemption. Tax delinquencies on the sites of Jane Addams, Ida B. Wells, Frances Cabrini, and Robert H. Brooks, the slum clearance projects, prove this.

About 10 per cent of the cost of acquiring the site of the Ida B. Wells project went to pay delinquent taxes. The entire award for one parcel of land went to pay part of the taxes accumulated in 20 years.

The tax delinquency on the Robert H. Brooks site was nearly 40 per cent for 1939—total tax, $18,780. Taxes unpaid a. date of purchase were $9,416. The purchase of the site cost $764,568. The accumulation of delinquent taxes amounted to $77,024.

Surveys indicate that taxes on occupied slum properties range from 5 to 9 per cent of the rents paid by the slum dweller. In other areas, the taxes probably amount to 15 or 16 per cent of the gross rents. Why not be realistic about this problem of the revenue—taxes or service charge—required for the support of the police and fire departments, the schools, the parks, etc.?

The eight housing projects comprising 177 acres—119.9 slum acres—from tenants of low incomes, produce more in service charge than the property did in private hands. The total is $143,971, compared to $106,766 of taxes assessed, but not collected. At 10 per cent, the service charge is about twice the taxes actually collected.

I agree with you that "a slum wouldn't be a slum if the land and buildings on it were worth much." It is quite true that slums cost the community more than the revenue that is paid by them.

Why not be practical about this service charge. It hasn't been paid. Why hasn't it? Is it politics or what that prevents the service charge from being paid? CLARENCE W. BEATTY JR.

PLAN FOR LIQUIDATION

Chicago, May 3—To prevent a third world war, suggestions have been made that Germany should be occupied for a long time. Here is another suggestion which will obviate the long occupation of Germany. This occupation, we are well aware, will be fraught with many difficulties, misunderstandings, and jealousies, not to mention the tremendous expense involved. Besides, our boys want to come home.

Since the countries in proximity to Germany have been the chief sufferers, and Germany has been the offender, and since there may be many anti-Nazi Germans who are innocent, let us erase the German government from the roster of nations just as we do with a criminal member of society. Then let the territory be divided among the allies who were overrun and suffered most. After the war criminals have been dealt with, let the remaining German civilians choose where they want to live, whether in Poland, Czechoslovakia, Austria, Hungary, Italy, France, Belgium, Holland, Denmark or Norway. A TEACHER

Friend of the YANKS

G. H. asks: "How many states paid a soldiers' bonus to veterans of World War I. and what bonus will Illinois pay to veterans of World War II.?"

Answer: Twenty-one states paid bonuses to veterans of World War I. They were Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Vermont, Washington, and Wisconsin. An Illinois commission has been named to study proposals and make recommendations for bonuses for World War II. veterans, but action will be delayed until the end of the war.

J. M. L. asks: "Can I change the beneficiary of my national service life insurance before I am discharged?"

Answer: You may change the beneficiary of your insurance at any time and without knowledge or consent of the present beneficiary. If possible, the insurance division, veterans' administration, should be notified on form 336, but a letter will have the same effect. A change of beneficiary may not be made by will.

THE GRATITUDE DUE US

Waterloo, Ia., May 8—I am sad on this V-E day morning. My son, who has spent more time in the European war than most veterans of World War I., recently departed for the South Pacific. This morning the Canadian commander stated on the radio that his men are going home to peace time pursuits.

Mr. Roosevelt advised the trusting American people that the grand strategy of the allied nations was to defeat Hitler first and then the other powers would in turn help us to defeat Japan. Now we find these powers artfully dodging the dirty job in the Pacific and tossing practically the entire job into our lap. True, Britain is offering token assistance, and Russia is willing to help in return for our further scuttling of the Atlantic Charter, and giving them Corea and Manchuria, which do not belong to us and which we have no moral right to offer.

It is a great tragedy that, when Russia and Britain were certain of becoming German colonies at Stalingrad and at Dunkirk, Mr. Roosevelt did not bind these nations to do as much for us as we have done for them, or else to withhold at least our billions of lend-lease, to say nothing of our armed might, which ultimately decided the war. Cannot President Truman and congress still get Russia, England, France, Holland, and others to show the gratitude which they owe America, or is only the worst to be expected by the patriotic, patient, and generous American people? If so, they will soon revert to the isolationism advocated by our first President, George Washington, who seemed to foresee just what is now happening. How is it that those at the San Francisco conference, who demand three to six times as many votes as America and were the largest benefactors of lend-lease, cannot throw in as much strength against Japan as their voting strength would indicate? A. F. MORTON

EXAMPLE FROM IWO

IN THE PACIFIC, April 25—During the last few months I have been shocked to read of strikes and threatened strikes in the United States. I have heard observations and discussions of the men around me, and I know that I am not expressing my opinion alone but that of many of the men fighting out here.

The picture of the marines on bloody Mount Surabachi on Iwo Jima must be a thrilling and familiar sight to most Americans. I saw those marines fight and die to raise that flag. I saw them pinned down in their foxholes under enemy fire. I saw the cemeteries with their white crosses offering mute testimony to their loyalty and courage.

Yet, I saw no strikes to increase their wages. I saw no strikes to shorten their hours of hardship. I saw no strikes because conditions were not to their liking. I saw no strikes because the production of courage was speeded up beyond normal output.

Why, then, must such chaos and confusion exist back home? Surely our flag being planted on enemy soil pictures the way for all Americans to take. How could the road to a speedy victory be more obvious? THOMAS S. RYAN, Lt. [j. g.] U. S. N. R.

TOO YOUNG FOR FIREARMS

Clinton, Ill., May 5—My son, Sgt. Joy O. Burton, is a waist gunner on a bomber in the European theater and is now on furlough. He has completed at least 35 missions over Germany and has won the air medal with four oak leaf clusters and has been commended for his cool-headedness in action. He is 20 years old, a husband and is about to be a father. Yesterday he went to a store in our town and tried to buy some rifle shells. Believe it or not, he was told he would have to get the consent of his father because he was too young to go hunting! ROBERT O. BURTON

FIELD RATIONS FOR GLOBAL PLANNERS

Chicago, May 3—I see in this morning's TRIBUNE that the British and Russians who are guests of San Francisco hostesses have been given a tentative rating of 12 red points each per meal, making 36 points per guest each day. My son has just come home on a 16 day furlough and the OPA has given him 36 red points for 16 days—2¼ points per day, less than one point per meal. Americans last, as usual. E. M. J.

DRAFTING TECHNICIANS

Chicago, April 24—After reading about the way Germany and Great Britain have refused to draft their research men and engineers, don't you feel it is about time the United States stopped drafting these important men to make foot soldiers out of them? These men are the very ones who will be able to make employment for the rest of us. J. W. C.

THE CONTINUING TASK

Chicago, May 8—V-E day has come. What will be its fuller meaning? Five million mothers will breathe again; they will brush the tears from their eyes for a respite at least. Several million wives will look forward with eagerness to the possibility of beginning to live once more. Little children will shout in the streets, "Daddy is coming home again!"

These are the happier aspects of V-E day. Thank God for them, but there are other aspects which we must face courageously. More than 250 billions of dollars are "owed to ourselves." This is more than a $1,600 debt for each man, woman, and child in the United States. More than a million lads will have become casualties to war. White crosses will begin to fade on many islands, and on many continents. In spite of this, no world problem will have been solved; no world peace will have been won. For wars do not solve problems. The men who come home will know that; let us at home not forget it.

The problems of the war were economic, political, and ideological. We fought because we had not the courage to stand up to these problems that give rise to war, and solve them by hewing to the line of justice rather than to the line of power. Now the problem is bigger, and the heat of hate is hotter. It will be harder to solve it now than it would have been before the war began, but if it is not solved, the war will have been more than futile; it will have but irritated the cancer which gnaws at the heart of the world.

No, at V-E day the enemy is not yet defeated, for the enemy is war itself, and the passions which father it—greed, hatred, injustice, intolerance.

We should embody an earnest searching for the light of Him, who said, "Peace on earth, and good will toward men." LEONARD COLE

THE CASE OF EZRA POUND

Berwyn, Ill., May 6—Ezra Pound, who was a poet and one of the founders of the imagist school, has been captured in Italy and is branded a traitor to his country. He took it upon himself to deride, despise, and make verbal warfare on the United States, using radio facilities which were furnished him by our enemies to disseminate his propaganda of hate.

Pound could not rise against the democratic system of individual effort; whereby each man reaps the just portion of what he sows. For all his individualism, Pound just couldn't take it, so he ran like a tumbleweed before the wind he could not face. True, the United States has been cold to her great poets, but Walt Whitman found no welcome mat at the door of fame, and still he absorbed defeats and made the substance of America his. To be weak in the face of adversity is the lot of most of us; to fight adversity with whatever strength we have is the God given right of all of us. Ezra Pound would not, or could not, fight.

That he is a traitor to the United States is regrettable. That he is a traitor to his intellect—which was sharp and erudite to an amazing degree—is a far greater misfortune. More than a traitor's name, Ezra Pound shall henceforth be a warning to us all. Better that all poets should die unheard than that they should die cursed in the eyes of all men. PAUL F. ANDERSON

HER HUSBAND FREED

Downers Grove, Ill., May 2—I would like to thank THE TRIBUNE correspondent personally that brought me the good news of my husband's liberation from the German camp in Mooseburg. Since that is impossible I want to do the next best thing, and that is to thank the paper he represents for taking a truly great burden off his parents' hearts and mine.

Your paper is doing a wonderful service to thousands of us here at home whose task it is to wait, by taking an interest in the prisoner of war angle. I'm sure the list of freed prisoners you print so often brings great happiness to many, many people. MRS. W. F. WIDLER

"SECRET" DIVORCE

Chicago, May 7—A good friend of mine recently married a man who had been married before. [1] He obtained a divorce from his first wife secretly, he says, without her being notified. [2] Is my friend's marriage legal? S. N.

1. If her failure to receive notice was due to his filing a false affidavit that he did not know her address, this would invalidate his decree.

2. If the divorce was invalid, then the new marriage would be invalid. Your friend should investigate the facts.

"HERE'S YOUR CHIP, OLD CHAP!"

or, how one excavation led to a lot of china

YESTERDAY—A little man in "dishes" went digging in England—just so a lady could give a party. And that's how our fabulous china section began. It all started back in the early 1900's when a wailing hostess swept into "china" (then—a few counters and a lot of after-dinner coffee cups). "Do something," she wept, "I'm going to give an anniversary party. I want service plates, the most unusual, wonderful service plates—and Chicago doesn't even know what a service plate is!" So we sent our man to the Staffordshire potteries, England. He actually excavated in the backyard of the Wedgwood works. He found a tiny chip of an old Wedgwood design unique and unusual. He had it reproduced... the lady had her historical party... Chicago had service plates. And our china section grew...

TODAY—it's the greatest china section in the world. There's everything from a Lenox service made for President Woodrow Wilson, a Wedgwood service for President Theodore Roosevelt—to a service plate made for Madame Melba. China from the first pieces made by the original Josiah Wedgwood—to complete collections of Lenox, Wedgwood, Minton, Spode, Cauldon, Crown Derby, Worcester, Coalport, Royal Doulton, Castleton—more china to choose from than in any china section anywhere in the world.

TOMORROW—holds our promise! We've answered your needs in the '90s—in a difficult today—and we intend to have the answers in the oomplicated postwar world ahead. That's our job, our responsibility, our promise to you—who made us what we are today. (Chapter VI of the story "Marshall Field & Company and Early Chicago.")

PICTURES SHOW HEROIC WORK OF DOCTORS IN WAR

An exhibit of paintings depicting the role of army medicine in war time, sponsored by the Abbott Laboratories of North Chicago, will open today in the Corcoran galleries in Washington, D. C. The exhibit later will be shown in Chicago.

Painted by a dozen of the nation's foremost artists on the European and Asiatic battle fronts, the pictures are a tribute to army doctors, nurses, and enlisted corpsmen who, as part of the army medical corps, have coöperated to establish the lowest death rate for the wounded in history.

There's something familiar about the Bank of Guam
Yes—it's another Quonset Hut

Not long ago the Bank of Guam consisted of ten crates, stowed with others in the hold of a ship bearing supplies to advanced base headquarters of the Pacific Ocean area. In these crates were the component parts that make up a Quonset Hut—lightweight Stran-Steel framing, metal roofing and siding, nails, bulkheads, electric wiring and fixtures, ventilators, windows, door panels.

At that point, no one in this wide world could have told how this particular group of ten crates—this particular Quonset Hut—would serve. It might have become a barber shop—or a barn . . . a barracks building—or a bakery . . . a communications building—or a bomb assembly shed. "You name it, we'll build it" is the Seabees' attitude when the Quonset Hut crates hit the beach!

And so, it became the Bank of Guam!

Tens of thousands of Quonset Huts have been produced by the Great Lakes Steel Corporation to house men, materials and operations at our Pacific bases. So varied are their uses, so vast their application, that they have become the very symbol of American progress against Japan . . . the milestones on the road to Tokyo.

SOLDIER FREED FROM GERMANS RETURNED; DIES

Hardships in Prison Camp Fatal to Chicagoan

PVT. JAMES SUCATO, 24, of 850 S. Loomis st., who was a prisoner of war at Bad Orb camp, in western Germany, from last Dec. 11 until liberated by American troops on April 15, died yesterday in Gardiner General hospital of complications resulting from hardships endured in combat and while a prisoner.

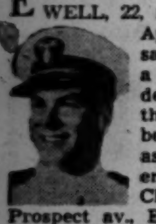
Pvt. Sucato was captured in Luxembourg. He returned to New York last Sunday and was released from Fort Sheridan to return home on V-E day. He entered the hospital Friday night. During his imprisonment he lost 50 pounds but gained 70 pounds after liberation, his family said.

He was a son of Samuel Sucato.

MAJ. FRANK M. HOLCOMB, 29, who was reported missing in action, was killed Jan. 30 in France, the war department has notified his widow, Katherine, 7159 S. Michigan av. A liaison pilot with the field artillery, he served 16 months in Africa, Italy, and France. Other survivors are his mother, Mrs. O. E. Schepman, 942 E. 80th st., and a sister. He had been awarded the bronze star and air medal.

PVT. HERBERT A. POKORNI, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pokorni, 2149 Irving Park rd., was killed in action in Italy on April 17, his parents have been notified. He attended Lane Technical High school and formerly was a machinist.

ENSIGN WILLIAM B. CALDWELL, 22, reported missing on April 24, and later said to have survived a Jap suicide bomber destroyer attack on the Calhoun, now has been definitely listed as missing, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Caldwell, 391 Prospect av., Elmhurst, have been notified. Survivors of the attack said that the ship was struck by the suicide bomber at the station where Ensign Caldwell was assigned. He is a graduate of York Community High school in Elmhurst and the University of Michigan. His father is personnel manager for Sears, Roebuck & Co.



CORP. KURT RAGNAR JOHNSON, 32, of 9429 S. Kenton av., Oak Lawn, a painter, was killed in action in Germany on April 18, his widow, Clara, was informed yesterday. Survivors include a daughter, Corrine, and his mother, Ellen.

LT. BERTRAND E. MAJOR, 26, an attack bomber pilot, missing in action Jan. 9 in Luzon, was killed on that day, his widow, Lucille, 3646 Wilton av., has been notified. His commanding officer wrote Mrs. Major that Lt. Major was on an operational flight when mirror flashes from stranded air crew members were observed on the ground. The pilot circled the scene until a rescue could be made. Later his plane crashed and exploded.

PVT. CLAUDE WALTERS, 24, a member of the 10th infantry, 3d army, was killed in action in Germany on Feb. 8, his widow, Janet Barbara, of 7241 Stony Island av., has been notified. He formerly was a tool and dye maker for the J. and J. Tool company. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Walters, 4464 Lake Park av.

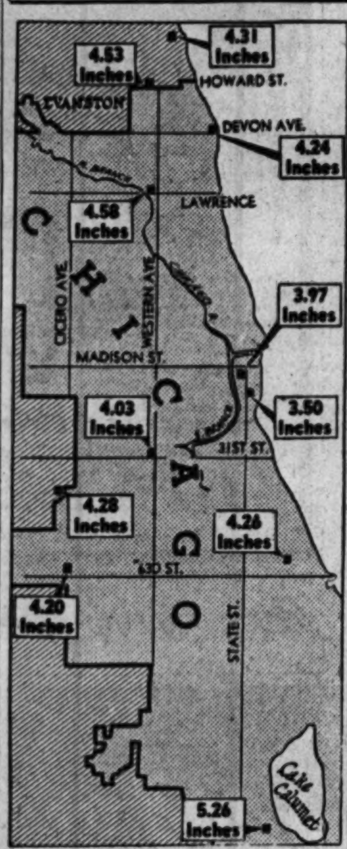
PVT. FREEMAN M. NEWMAN, 30, who resided in Aurora when he joined the service two years ago, was killed in action on the German front April 15, his widow, Hazel, now living at Pana, Christian county, has been notified.

ELMER JOHNSON, 19, a fireman first class in the navy, was killed May 3 in an airplane crash at sea, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Johnson of Chebanse, Iroquois county, have been notified.

April Rainfall



Variations in total rainfall last month, as measured in various parts of the city.

Rainfall in Chicago during April was measured variously at from 3.50 inches to 5.26 inches, depending on the location, the weather bureau reported yesterday. During April for the first time measurements were taken at 11 places, including one in Evanston, instead of three places as formerly.

The low reading, taken at 910 S. Michigan av., was 0.47 inch less than measurements taken at weather bureau headquarters in the federal building, only about a mile away. The high reading was taken at 126th st. and St. Lawrence av.

The official precipitation figure was 4.20 inches, measured at the airport, 6200 S. Cicero av. April was the first month since May, 1944, to have higher than normal rainfall, normal being 2.54 inches.

Toman's 69th Birthday Is Spent at Tax Office

John Toman, member of the board of tax appeals, observed his 69th birthday yesterday by putting in a full day in his office. Toman said that his wife, Bertha, and daughter, Mrs. Irene Witous, would cut a cake when he returned home. "I will really celebrate my birthday when my son, Lt. Comdr. Andrew J. Toman, returns from the Pacific," he said. Toman's home is at 4056 W. 21st pl.

DANES PREPARE TO EXPORT FARM PRODUCTS AGAIN

Nazi Occupation Cost $4,500,000,000

BY EINAR CHRISTIANSEN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, May 12—After a week of celebration, Denmark is ready to work desperately for a happy future. Five years of occupation by the Nazis cost the country $4,500,000,000. Requisition of goods and labor amounted to more than $3,500,0000,000 and destruction, wear and tear to schools, barracks, highways, the transportation system, etc., almost $1,000,000,000.

The total is equal to one year's national income. In other words, every fifth day the country has been working for Germany without pay.

Agriculture Intact

Denmark's farming industry remains largely intact and export of bacon, eggs, and butter can be resumed on short notice. A Danish delegation has gone to Stockholm to negotiate with British representatives on exportation of these articles.

Meanwhile the government is preparing for trade negotiations with the United States, especially with regard to oil and gasoline.

Henrik de Kauffmann, Danish minister to the United States, who returned from San Francisco, Cal., said at least $500,000,000 worth of essential goods are required by Denmark. Of these, he said, coal, machinery, and rubber probably would remain scarcest.

Coal Shortage Severe

The coal situation is serious, with the state railways compelled to limit service to three days a week. If the occupation had continued all traffic would have suspended this week. However, the Germans did not succeed in re-exporting 20,000 tons of coal requisitioned from Danish stocks. This will enable the railways to maintain skeleton service for another two months.

All trade between Denmark and Germany has been carried on thru a clearing account in the Danish National bank. Since coal practically was Germany's only export article, while Denmark's entire production of eggs, butter, meat, fish, etc., went to Germany, the account shows a Danish credit of roughly $2,500,000,000.

Government Runs Smoothly

Politically, Denmark happily avoided the fate of Greece and Belgium. The change-over from an occupied to a free country so far has gone smoothly. The new government consists of 18 members, half from the old parties, half from resistance movements. All are working without noticeable friction.

Denmark's first communist minister, Axel Larsen, back from a German concentration camp, said King Christian is the highest symbol of the resistance and will be looked upon by the whole population with greatest respect. Foreign Minister Christmas Moeller, a Conservative, has expressed hope for friendly coöperation with Russia.

Border Unchanged

The government has proclaimed that there will be no change in the border, and has promised restoration of Danish defenses, punishment of collaborators [so far 5,000 have been arrested in Copenhagen], a housing subsidy of $272,000,000 to check unemployment, just distribution of food, extension of social legislation, government grants to fighters for liberty and their widows, and confiscation of war created fortunes.

TORTURE TEXT FOUND IN DANISH NAZI QUARTERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, May 12—In the headquarters of some Danish collaborators [Hipos] police have found a handbook titled "How To Make Prisoners Confess." Its 21 pages are filled with pictures showing how to crush the hands, feet, or knees and includes such subjects as how to tear off a prisoner's ears. Its final chapter dwelt on "How To Kill."

Partisans have seized a Danish commander who was a member of the Hipos, Capt. Noren, as he was trying to cross the border in a German uniform. In clearing out former German barracks, Danish partisans found many shells loaded with gas as well as shells filled with a mysterious liquid which developed a poisonous gas when it mingled with the air.

APPEALS COURT WILL HEAR WARD CASE TOMORROW

Oral arguments in the government's appeal from the ruling last Jan. 27 in which Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan declared illegal the late President Roosevelt's order for the seizure of the Montgomery Ward & Co. plants will be heard tomorrow by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

Altho the justice department's request for the Supreme court to hear the appeal direct from the District court, and thus by-pass the Court of Appeals, was turned down, the importance of the issues involved is expected to bring all five members of the appeals court onto the bench to listen to the arguments. The judges are Evan A. Evans, Will M. Sparks, J. Earl Major, Sherman Minton, and Otto Kerner. Their decision may be expected before the court recesses for summer vacation early in July.

The seizure order was issued last Dec. 27 and carried out the following day.

Asst. Solicitor Gen. Hugh B. Cox and several other department of justice attorneys are to arrive in the city today to argue the government's case. Attorneys Stuart S. Ball and Harold A. Smith will represent Ward's.

MONTY IS GIVEN WILD OVATION IN COPENHAGEN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, May 12—British Field Marshal Montgomery was wildly cheered on a four hour visit to Copenhagen today. The route between the Kastrup air field where Montgomery's plane landed and the king's castle was lined with 13,000 partisans.

After lunch with the royal family Montgomery visited the former Gestapo headquarters, Dagmarhus, now headquarters of the British expeditionary force.

[Britain renewed diplomatic representation in Denmark with the appointment of Rodney Gallup as charge d'affaires in Copenhagen, the Associated Press said. Appointment of Sheldon Thomas as United States charge d'affaires was expected. Copenhagen felt that reëstablishment of diplomatic relations foreshadowed the reception of Denmark among the united nations.]

Deluxe DRI-AIR

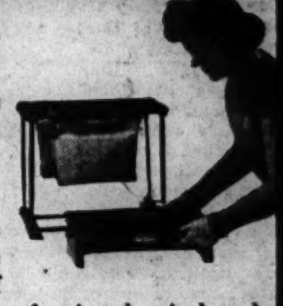
Take excess moisture right out of the air of basements, playrooms, storage rooms.

Wherever clammy dampness threatens clothing, furniture, foods, tools—wherever rust, rot, mildew or musty odors are a problem . . . just set a DeLuxe Dri-Air unit down and let it do the rest!

YOU CAN SEE IT WORK

The active chemicals in the Dri-Air unit will absorb the excess moisture—silently, quickly, and with amazing efficiency. The excess water will be deposited in the removable water-proof tray in the bottom of the unit, where it can be emptied occasionally.

Continues its action as long as excess moisture is in the air . . . just pour in more chemical as needed.



SAFE—HARMLESS

The De Luxe Dri-Air unit is a compact, modern invention. Its specially-built, Walnut-finish frame holds twin chemical containers made of treated mesh material, each holding five pounds of active chemical, and providing a DOUBLE area to take moisture out of the air. At the bottom is the water-proof tray, so easily removed for emptying. Good for years of uninterrupted comfort and service, at remarkably low cost.

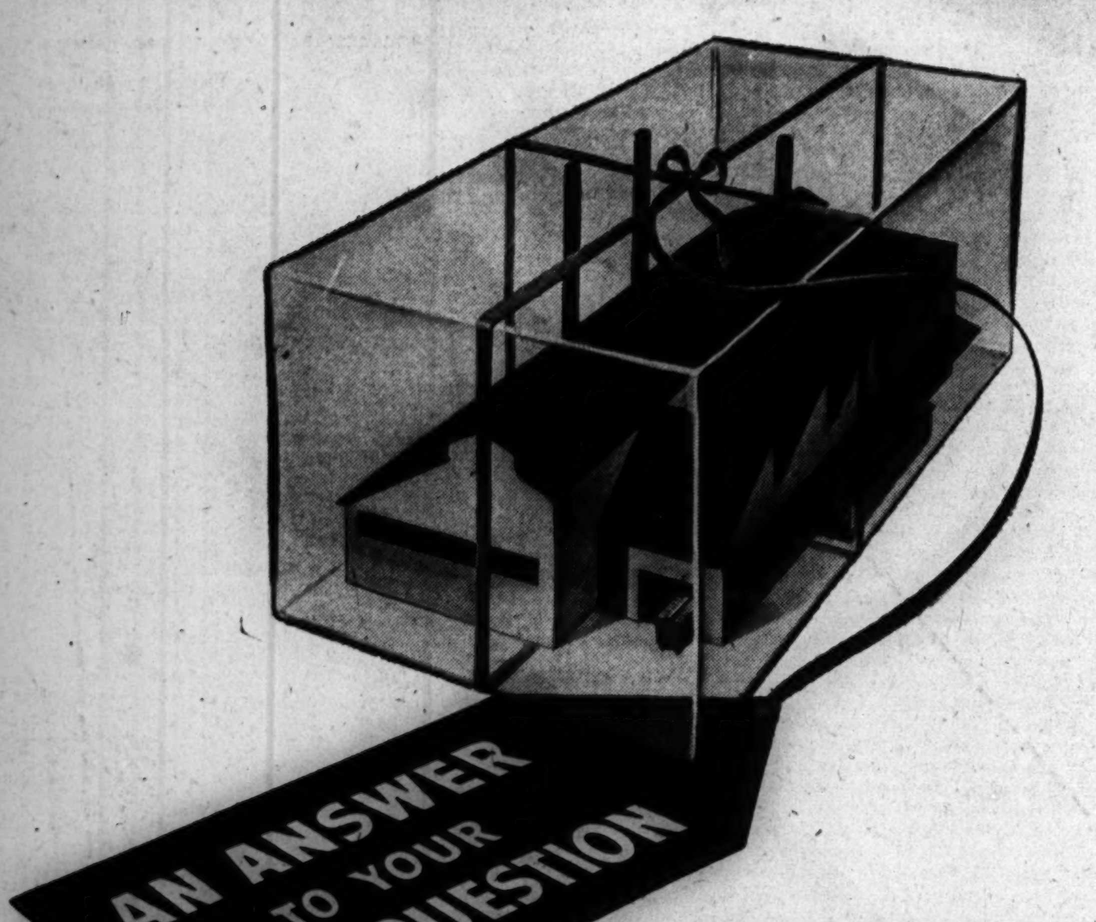
MAKE THIS PLANT PART OF YOUR PRODUCTION LINE!



How can I get into post-victory production faster?

THE Martins Ferry Division of Blaw-Knox Company offers you a complete "production package," ready, able and willing to assume full responsibility for turning out all or part of your product.

The entire efforts and facilities of this division have been devoted solely to mass production of complex armament for the U. S. Navy, and this division can give its undivided attention to your work when the War is won. The engineering staff and nearly 3,000 skilled men and women working with the most modern equipment will take you "over the hump" of reconversion without capital expenditure—without loss of time.

Our engineers will gladly discuss with you the advantages of employing an auxiliary manufacturer to cope with the problems that lie ahead . . . Write for an interview at your convenience.

This plant occupies 25 acres, providing 315,000 sq. ft. of manufacturing floor space, two spur tracks, loading dock and receiving platform, capable of holding six cars on loading platform, two under cover at receiving platform and five on the outside. Martins Ferry Division of Blaw-Knox Company is located at Martins Ferry, directly across the Ohio River from Wheeling, W. Va.

To help win the war is our first objective. Until that is assured, ordnance material is the order of the day. Do you need help? If so, get in touch with us at once!

HOTEL MURDER QUIZ TURNS TO HIGH SCHOOL SET

Hunt Goes On for Friend of Slain Youth

A widespread investigation of juvenile delinquency in north side high schools was sought yesterday by police as they continued to search for Donald Jay Cook, 15, of 1031 Bryn Mawr av., in connection with the bludgeon murder of Morton Stein, 16, of 4932 N. Kedzie av. Stein's stabbed and beaten body was found Friday morning in room 733 of the Stevens hotel.

Police, endeavoring to learn where the two youths, who had been living in the hotel since last Sunday, had obtained money to dress and entertain, said they would seek help of school and juvenile authorities in questioning pupils at Senn High school, where Cook was a pupil, and Von Steuben High school and Washburne Trade school, which Stein attended.

Father Heard at Inquest

Meanwhile, the inquest opened yesterday at the county morgue was continued until May 25 at the request of Capt. Thomas Duffy after Alfred Stein, a chauffeur and father of the victim, testified he had not seen his son for three months.

Stein protested against the taking of pictures by news photographers at the inquest and on two occasions jumped from the witness chair and started for the door, but was called back by Coroner Brodie.

Cook, it was learned, was reported missing to Summerdale police April 25 by his mother, who said at that time that her son hadn't returned home after leaving the house at 8 a. m. on April 10.

Fail to Use Own Names

The two boys registered at the Stevens hotel on May 6. Cook signed as Robert Levitus and Stein as Harold Grodon, both of New York City. From New York police it was learned that they had registered at the Rex hotel there on April 26.

Stein's body was discovered at 8:15 a. m. Friday by a hotel maid who ignored a "do not disturb" sign which had been hung on the door. The body had been stuffed in the closet.

The body remained unidentified until late Friday when police traced two telephone calls to Miss Shirley Allen, 15, of 5327 Winthrop av., a Senn High school bobby socks girl. She told police she had spent most of Thursday in the hotel room with the victim, but that nothing improper had occurred.

Lt. Philip Breitzke of the homicide bureau disclosed that Miss Allen was subjected to a lie detector test for two hours yesterday, but reported the test was incomplete. She was taken to the juvenile home, where she is being held. Mrs. Isabel Edwards, the mother of Cook, also was questioned by Breitzke and Duffy, but the information obtained from her was not disclosed.

At first Cook had been identified as Donald Edwards, but police explained that Cook's mother, Mrs. Edwards, has been widowed twice and that her first husband's name was Cook.

PROF. COMMONS OF WISCONSIN U. DIES AT 82

Madison, Wis., May 12 [Special]—Prof. John R. Commons, a member of the University of Wisconsin faculty for 28 years and former head of its economics department until his retirement in 1932, died in Raleigh, N. C., on Friday at the age of 82, former associates here were advised today.

The nationally known economist joined the university faculty in 1904 after serving on the staffs of Wesleyan and Oberlin colleges, the University of Indiana and Syracuse university. He was often the storm center of criticism, being regarded as a radical in many circles. During his teaching career he wrote some 16 books and scores of shorter articles.

After resigning as the head of the economics department at the university in 1932, he lived on his nearby farm and later moved to Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Six weeks ago he took up residence in Raleigh.

In 1930, Prof. Commons' son, John, a former university instructor, disappeared from Madison. His whereabouts were a mystery for 14 years, until some 10 months ago he was found in Hartford, Conn. He had been declared legally dead on Nov. 3, 1938. The son later joined his father in Florida and was with him when he died in Raleigh. Burial services will be conducted in Madison Monday.

Flags Top Staffs Tuesday as F. D. R. Mourning Ends

Crepe streamers may be removed from flags at sundown tomorrow, the end of the period of official mourning for President Roosevelt. Flags which have been at half staff and which are normally taken in at sundown may be flown from the top of the staff beginning Tuesday morning.

VOTERS TO GET FIVE BALLOTS IN JUNE ELECTION

Bond Issues, Transit Problem Are Up

Chicago voters will be handed five ballots when they enter the voting booths at the regular judicial election on June 4. Despite a coalition judicial ticket, all polling places in the city will be open because of the special propositions to be voted on.

When the voter enters the polling place, he will be handed the following ballots:

1. Judicial ballot containing unopposed candidates for 20 Circuit court judges, one Superior court judge full term, and three Superior court judges to fill vacancies. Under coalition, the Republican nominees were withdrawn and only Democratic nominees will appear on the ballot.

Vote on Transit Merger

2. Proposition to create a metropolitan transit authority. On the same ballot will be the proposition to grant the authority permission to purchase and operate Chicago's surface, elevated and subway systems.

3. City bond issues totaling 26 millon dollars, including 5 millions for slum clearance, 2 millions for playgrounds, 15 millions for post-war airports, 2 millions for police and fire department buildings, 1½ millions for purchase of refuse disposal equipment, and $500,000 for garages. The bonds, if approved, will bear 1½ per cent interest, will be callable at any time, and will begin maturing in 1947.

4. Park improvement bond issue of 24 million dollars, with 6 millions to be sold annually for four years beginning in 1946. This is the start of the 10 year 60 million dollar program to provide 43 new parks, 18 new fieldhouses, extension of Lincoln park north to the city limits and improvements to other existing parks.

5. Proposition to amend Municipal court act so bailiffs and clerks can be given salary increases. If approved, pay boosts, which can be as much as $1,000 annually, must await inclusion in the 1946 budget.

Some Towns to Vote Later

Elmwood Park is the only Cook county community outside Chicago which has taken steps to vote on the metropolitan transit authority at the June 4 election. Other towns within the scope of the authority are expected to vote on this proposition at special elections later.

John S. Rusch, chief clerk of the board of election commissioners, said all polling places in Chicago and Elmwood Park will be open. In other towns outside Chicago but under jurisdiction of the election commissioners approximately one-fifth of the usual number of polling places will be open.

Michael J. Flynn, county clerk, reported all 68 precinct polling places in Evanston, where there is a municipal judge contest, will be open. In the remainder of Cook county under Flynn's jurisdiction 34 polling places will be open, providing one voting place for each township with two or three for the larger ones.

RAIDS UNCOVER HUGE POULTRY BLACK MARKET

The area office of price administration, striking at what it called the most flagrant black market in Chicago, in the next few days will file more than a score of criminal actions and injunction suits against south side poultry dealers, Marion W. Isbell, area director, said yesterday.

Isbell's statement came after three days of surprise raids on more than 50 dealers between 35th and 63d sts., from State st. to Cottage Grove av., in which 14 Negro OPA agents said they discovered "appalling" conditions.

The investigators, acting on hundreds of complaints from customers, said they found scrawny chickens selling for as much as $1.50 a pound, open black market operators doing business under the eyes of city police who regulate long lines of customers, and diseased poultry sold under insanitary conditions.

Investigators Trained for Drive

"Ever since the meat shortage became acute," Isbell said, "the poultry black market has been active. It is flourishing all over the city, but is at its worst on the south side. It is one of the most difficult to control, but we have trained 20 or more investigators especially for this drive and hope to do some cleaning up."

Isbell said a city policeman was found standing inside the door of a store in which chickens were being sold for $1 a pound, admitting 10 customers at a time. At another store, he said, a policeman was stationed outside the door, watching a line of 150 waiting customers.

In a small basement apartment, occupied by a man, his wife, three children, and two dogs, several dozen chickens were found roosting on beds, in the kitchen, and on chairs, investigators reported. Customers bought live chickens for $1.25 to $1.50 a pound, and carried their Sunday dinners out by the neck.

Unweighed Chickens Sold

Other investigators told of watching a customer pay $1.55 for a chicken which weighed 1 pound and 9 ounces, on which the ceiling should have been 71 cents; of storekeepers who sold only to known customers, who stood in line hours for the privilege of taking a live chicken from a coop on payment of $3 or more, without being allowed to weigh it.

"One of the most flagrant violations was being perpetrated by a store that on Wednesday sold, for 60 cents each, admission cards entitling the holder to stand in line on Saturday to buy a chicken at three times the ceiling price." Isbell said. "It may mean that we found the meanest violators of all the war right in Chicago."

The OPA already has obtained injunctions against some south side dealers, Isbell added, but now hopes to be able to take criminal action against many. Most of the poultry is bought in the early part of the week from Indiana farmers, and is sold only on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, he said.

POINT VALUES GO UP ON LARD, SHORTENING, COOKING OILS TODAY

Ration point values for lard, shortening, and cooking and salad oils were increased last night from six to 10 points a pound, it was announced at office of price administration headquarters in Washington, D. C.

The changed point values will be effective at 12:01 this morning, the announcement said. Industrial users of fats and oils will also receive decreased allotments for the current quarter.

The increased point values were made necessary by the greater shipments of fats and oils to liberated countries, OPA said.

COUNTY POLICE SEIZE 10 IN RAID AS RACING OPENS

Not long after horse racing was resumed yesterday afternoon, Lt. Anton Paulus and Deputy Sheriff Leo Cadieux of the Homewood county highway police raided an alleged handbook at 12330 Halsted st., Calumet Park. They arrested Anton Krapil, 47, owner of the Village Inn at that address, as keeper, and seized nine men as customers.

AUTO KILLS BOY IN FRONT OF HIS OAK PARK HOME

Scott Childs, 7, of 738 N. Grove av., Oak Park, was fatally injured yesterday when he was struck by an automobile driven by John E. Millizen, 518 N. Grove av., as he ran across the street in front of his home. He was pronounced dead in West Suburban hospital. Millizen, who is superintendent of the Illinois Research hospital, was not held. Scott was a son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Childs. His father is stationed in Florida with a naval unit.

James Sippe, 51, of 3253 Clark st., died yesterday in the Illinois Masonic hospital of injuries suffered the previous day when he walked against the side of an automobile at 3233 Clark st. The car was driven by James Lively, 52, of 5009 Ravenswood av.

An unidentified Negro, between 30 and 40, who was found lying in the street on May 3 at Monroe st. and Western av. and who was believed to be the victim of a hit-run automobile, died yesterday in County hospital.

DEATH NOTICES

—In Memoriam—

ANDERSON—In loving memory of Pfc. Eric Anderson, who gave his life for his country on May 13, 1944.
MOTHER, FATHER, IRVING, ELLEN, AND ELSIE.

BEJGER—Adamina Bejger. In loving memory of our dear wife and mother.
Our hearts still ache with loneliness,
Our eyes shed many a tear.
God only knows how much we miss you
As it ends this first sad year.
LONESOME HUSBAND AND CHILDREN.

BENZIN—Julia Benzin. In memory of mother, who passed away two years ago.
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Always tender, fond, and true.
There is not a day, dear mother,
That we do not think of you.
AMELIA BOERNER AND DAUGHTER.

BOONE—Agnes M. Boone. In loving memory of our beloved wife and mother, who passed away three years ago today, May 13, 1942.
THE BOONE FAMILY.

BYKOWSKI—Anne Bykowski. In loving memory of my dear mother, who passed away 16 years ago this Mother's day.
In my heart your memory lingers,
Sweetly tender, fond, and true.
There is not a day, dear mother,
That I do not think of you.
LOVING DAUGHTER, JO ANN KEIL.

BOBEK—Mary Ann Bobek, May 13, 1943.
Friends may think we have forgotten
When at times they see us smile;
Little do they know the heartache
That our smile hides all the while.
How often do we tread the path
That leads us to the grave
Where rests the one we love so well
But whom we could not save.
Long days, long nights you bore your pain
Waiting for a cure, but all in vain.
God saw that you were suffering
And that the hills were hard to climb
So He closed your weary eyes
And whispered peace be thine.
LONESOME MOTHER, DAD, and BROTHER.

COHEN—Blanche Cohen. Our dearly beloved mother and grandmother, who is spending her first Mother's day away from us—In heaven. ALICE, MAURICE, SHEILA, AND NANCY BROWN, PVT. MARVIN I. COHEN, OVERSEAS.

DEUTSCH—Celia Deutsch. In loving memory of mother on Mother's day.
BERNICE, EVELYN, AND BETTY.

DOWNEY—Ellen Terry Downey. Not just for today, mother, do we think of you; you are always in hearts and minds.
YOUR LOVING CHILDREN.

FUCIARELLI—Ted Fuciarelli, May 13, 1942.
I mourn for him in silence,
No eyes can see me weep;
But many a silent tear is shed
While others are asleep.
LOVING WIFE, P. ROSE FUCIARELLI.

GLUCKLICH—Emma Glucklich.
It's not on Mother's day
We miss you, Mommy dear,
It's every minute of each day,
In every day of the year.
LOVING DADDY, BERNARD, RUTH, AND IRENE.

KIZAUR—Joseph Kizaur, May 13, 1938. In cherished memory of our dear one.
LOVING WIFE, SONS, GRANDSON, AND DAUGHTER-IN-LAW.

MATSON—Alina M. Matson. In loving memory of our dear mother, who passed away two years ago, May 13, 1943.
We often think of those happy days
When we were all together;
Your loving smile and cheerful ways
Will live in our hearts forever.
LOVING DAUGHTERS.

MICHAELS—Josephine Michaels, May 9, 1941. In memory of our lovely, sweet mother, who is always in our hearts.
HER ADORING CHILDREN.

MITCHELL—Ethel Julia Mitchell. In memory of our dearly beloved wife, mother, and grandmother, on Mother's day.
Memories are treasures no one can steal;
Death leaves a wound no one can heal.
You live with us in memory still;
Not just today, but always will.
Loving Husband, Daughters, and Grandson.

MORTON—Lt. Jules Morton of A. E. F., World War I., 22d anniversary of his passing occurs on May 13, 1945. A devoted son, loyal friend, and brave soldier, his memory remains enshrined in the hearts of all who knew him.
PETER MONDANE.

MORTON—Samuel J. Morton. In loving memory of our dear son and brother, who passed away 22 years ago today.
MOTHER, SISTERS, and BROTHERS.

COLLEGES READY TO TAKE CARE OF DEMOBILIZED GI

U. of C., Loyola, De Paul Set for Big Enrollment

The University of Chicago, Loyola university and De Paul university are prepared to take care of the large extra enrollment of students which partial demobilization of the army and navy may bring them this fall, a survey completed yesterday disclosed. Northwestern university can handle a moderate increase.

As far as buildings and teaching staff are concerned, the University of Chicago anticipates no difficulties since both are adequate for a much larger enrollment than the present. In the cases of students who do not have homes in Chicago, however, there may be a housing problem.

U. of C. Opportunity

A spokesman for the university pointed out that the college of the University of Chicago offers veterans who do not have school credits or whose credits do not reflect the actual knowledge they have gained in the service or elsewhere an opportunity to obtain a higher education without first going back to a secondary school.

Students are admitted thru tests designed to learn whether they are capable of doing college work with profit, instead of on the basis of credits, it was explained. After admission other tests place them on the college level where they can work with the best effect.

The office of the dean of students at Loyola said the university had building space for more students than are now enrolled and that, altho many faculty members are in service, replacements are being made.

N. U. Problem Is Space

De Paul, which was among the first universities to give special attention on a large scale to veteran students, has the building space and faculty to care for a large increase in the future.

Northwestern's difficulties largely are matters of building space, both for residence and teaching. The university's building program has been held up by the war and the new dormitories which a great increase in registration would require are still in the blueprint stage. The navy is gradually relinquishing the buildings it has been using for training, but more are needed. Classroom space, too, must be increased. A new humanities building for the Evanston campus and an evening class building for the downtown campus are part of the building program, but neither will be ready for the first large influx of ex-service men.

Northwestern has had about 400 faculty members in war service, but they gradually will be returning to the school as demobilization continues.

Hail Hospital Vets

Miss Mabel C. Carmon, William Ruffer (center), and Edward Ballard with certificates presented yesterday.

Fifty-five veteran employes, with 10 years of service or longer, were honored yesterday at Lying-In hospital and dispensary of the University of Chicago in a special ceremony which was carried to a nation-wide radio audience.

During the ceremonies, Mrs. Clifton M. Utley, president of the women's board of the hospital, presented certificates and pins to the employes, including a diamond pin to Miss Mabel C. Carmon, 5722 Maryland av., supervisor of the birth room. During her 38 years at the hospital, Miss Carmon has supervised the birth of 78,168 babies, including 12 sets of triplets, a 2 pound 1 ounce baby, and her own niece.

A father and son team, William and Peter Ruffer, building and grounds department employes, also was honored. William, the father, who lives at 1725 Granville av., has been employed at the hospital for 30 years. His son, Peter, of 6310 N. Campbell av., is a veteran of 25 years.

MUSIC FESTIVAL OFFICIALS HEAR THEATER OF AIR

BY EDWARD BARRY

Two of the city's best known entertainment and inspirational institutions came into close association last night when the W-G-N Mutual Chicago Theater of the Air played host to officials and personnel of the Chicago Music festival at the broadcast of Herbert's "Sweethearts" in Medinah temple.

Among the festival personalities introduced to the capacity audience were Philip Maxwell, Henry Weber, Dr. Edgar Nelson, Capt. Howard Stube, and Fred Miller. The renowned soprano, Edith Mason, long an enthusiastic festival supporter, was in the audience.

Young Singers Present

So were innumerable young musicians and singers who annually take part in these Soldiers' field events. Maxwell disclosed that 1,200 tickets already have been sold for the festival luncheon which is to be held in the Stevens hotel Aug. 17, the day before the festival.

The melodies of "Sweethearts" were presented ingratiatingly by musical forces consisting of Marion Claire, Thomas Hayward, Penny Perry, and the W-G-N orchestra and chorus. Henry Weber conducted.

To Miss Claire and Mr. Hayward went such love tunes as "For Every Lover Must Meet His Fate" and the title song, "Sweethearts." Miss Perry provided the saucy ditties which were effective as contrast.

Story of a Laundress

The task of putting the plot of the operetta before the audience was largely that of the speaking cast. "Sweethearts" tells the story of the comely Belgian laundress whose life is brightened by a romance with a mysterious and noble visitor from across the frontier.

Speaker of the evening was Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE. The text of his talk is on the editorial page.

2 SONS KILLED IN WAR, 3D WILL RETURN TO U. S.

First Lt. Austin J. Walsh, 29, sole surviving son of Mr. and Mrs. John Walsh, 7529 Ridgeland av., who have given two sons to their country in World War II., has been ordered returned to permanent duty in the United States, the war department said yesterday.

"This is the finest Mother's day gift I'll ever have," said Mrs. Walsh yesterday. She said her son is now finishing five years in the army. He is stationed in New Guinea and his last letter said he was still "waiting news" of orders sending him home. He has been in New Guinea for 18 months.

The Walsh family's other sons were killed in action.

REV. SULLIVAN, OTTAWA DEAN, IS DEAD AT 72

Ottawa, Ill., May 12 (AP)—The Very Rev. Daniel Joseph Sullivan, 72, dean of Ottawa Catholic churches and pastor of St. Columba's church for 12 years, was found dead today in his pastoral residence.

His body was found by his assistant, the Rev. Stephen Gould, who said Father Sullivan had been suffering from heart disease.

Father Sullivan came to Ottawa from St. John's Catholic church in Peoria and prior to that had served in Pekin, Ill.

A native of Chicago, he was ordained to priesthood in 1900 at Cincinnati, O. He was an assistant pastor at St. Patrick's church at Danville, Ill., and studied in Washington, D. C., before becoming pastor of St. Joseph's church in Pekin.

Funeral services will be conducted at St. Columba's church at 10 a. m. Tuesday. There will be a pontifical requiem high mass with the Most Rev. Joseph H. Schlarman, bishop of the Peoria, Ill., diocese, as celebrant and many other church dignitaries officiating.

Surviving Dean Sullivan are his sisters, Sister Mary Fidelis, registrar at Rosary college, River Forest, Ill.; Mrs. Louis O'Brien of Bloomington, Ill., and Mrs. Theresa O'Connor, widow of Edward O'Connor of Chicago, and a brother, William J. Sullivan of Effingham, Ill.

Getting Up Nights Makes Many Feel Old Too Soon

If you're feeling out o'sorts, Get Up Nights or suffer from Burning Passages, Backache, Swollen Ankles, Nervousness, Rheumatic Pains, Dizziness, Circles Under Eyes and feel worn-out, the cause may be non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles. Worry, Colds, working too hard, or over-eating or drinking may create an excess of Acids and overload your Kidneys so that they need help to flush out poisonous wastes that might otherwise undermine your health.

Help Kidneys Remove Acids

Nature provides the Kidneys to clean and purify your blood and to remove excess Acids. The Kidneys contain about nine million tiny tubes or filters through which the heart pumps blood about 200 times an hour, night and day, so it's easy to see that they may get tired and slow down when overloaded.

Nearly 20 years ago a practicing physician's prescription called Cystex was made available to the public through drug stores, making it easy and inexpensive to help thousands suffering from non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles [illegible] ways: 1. Help the Kidneys remove excess acids which may become poisoning and irritating. 2. To palliate burning and smarting of the urinary passages, and bladder irritation. 3. Help the Kidneys flush out wastes which may become poisonous if allowed to accumulate, thus aiding nature in stimulating an increase of energy, which may easily make you feel years younger.

Liberal Trial Offer

To prove that Cystex may be the very medicine you need accept this fair-play trial offer: Get a supply of Cystex from your druggist today. Take it exactly as directed and watch for quick help, a rapid increase in pep, more youthful feeling and a new joy in living. You must be completely satisfied and highly delighted or you simply return the empty package and your money back is guaranteed.

Tear this out. Take it to your druggist. Be sure to get genuine, guaranteed Cystex which is scientifically produced under the direction of a licensed physician, and used by millions throughout the world. Three guaranteed Cystex sizes—35c, 75c, $1.50.

U. OF I. TO OFFER RADIO WORK TO UPPER CLASSES

Establishment of a radio curriculum in the University of Illinois school of journalism to provide professional training for juniors and seniors was announced yesterday at the monthly meeting of the board of trustees in the University club.

Park Livingston, president of the board, said the radio students will utilize equipment of the university's radio station WILL and will be taught by personnel of the station and of the journalism school. He pointed out immediate needs of the radio industry for 500 trained persons with the expectation of 1,000 openings a year in the future.

New adjustments for war time summer sessions were approved by the trustees. For the eight week term, Illinois residents will pay $25, while nonresidents will pay $50. Students registering for four credit hours or less will pay $3 an hour if state residents and $6 if nonresidents. Graduate students will pay $12 for one unit or less if state residents, nad $24 if nonresidents.

Salute to U. S. ARMY ORDNANCE!

We salute the Chief of Ordnance, his staff and the nearly one-half million Ordnance troops trained for combat and technical work, on the occasion of the 133rd anniversary of U. S. ARMY ORDNANCE, now a part of the Army Service Forces.

ESTABLISHED during a time of national crisis more than a century ago, Army Ordnance has ever since carried the responsibility of producing fighting equipment for our Army.

During these 133 years, Army Ordnance has been closely linked with the history of our nation. Its record is one of distinguished accomplishment.

After World War I, Ordnance made plans contemplating the "teaming up" of Ordnance and American industry to more efficiently and effectively produce the weapons and other fighting equipment that might be required to meet any future emergency.

How well this plan succeeded is shown by the record of the past three and one-half years, and the part it has played in complete victory in Europe.

Since Pearl Harbor (and including 1945), Ordnance will have supplied to our Armies, and to forty Allied foreign nations, well over forty-three billion rounds of rifle and machine-gun ammunition; more than one billion artillery projectiles; more than seventeen million rifles and pistols; nearly three million machine-guns; some 600,000 artillery weapons; three and one-half million vehicles — including 100,000 tanks.

Impressive as they are, these big figures tell only part of the story of Ordnance accomplishment. Ordnance furnishes also mines and explosives for the entire Army; bombs and armament for our Army Air Forces; fire control and optical equipment, helmets, spare parts, tools and countless other items; quantities of firepower to the Navy and Marine Corps.

Never before had the world seen anything remotely comparable with this vast and record-time production of war equipment.

The relationship that has developed between U. S. Army Ordnance and American private industry has meant much in the fight to restore peace to the world. It can be a factor of large consequence in helping to insure peace for the future.

Chrysler Corporation — as a participant in the Ordnance-Industry "Teamwork for Victory" — salutes U. S. Army Ordnance and its proud record of distinguished service to our country.

13,673 BET $684,384 AS RACING RETURNS TO CHICAGO

ESPINO GOLD, QUIZZLE WIN AT SPORTSMAN'S

Drop in Handle, at Gate

Wager $1,153,415

SETTING a new opening day record for New England tracks, 25,000 fans thronged Narragansett park in Pawtuckett, R. I., yesterday and wagered a total of $1,153,415 for the nine race card. Mrs. Lottie Wolf's 5 year old Bar Willow and Max Marmorstein's 5 year old Castleman won the $10,000 Inaugural purse, which was run in two sections when it drew 25 overnight entries.

[Details on next page]

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN

Thorobred racing came back to Chicago yesterday after a four month national hiatus and brought with it to Sportsman's Park, the half mile oval in Cicero, 13,673 patrons, fair weather, and a program of eight well run events which drew a mutuel handle of $684,384.

Despite the government imposed black-out of the sport on last Jan. 3, the crowd was far below the anticipated attendance which President John L. Keeshin predicted would approximate last year's record opening day throng of 22,463 which set a wagering record of $824,054.

Feature Run in 2 Races

The card was featured by the $2,500 inaugural handicap which was split into two divisions because of a heavy entry list. Mrs. Fred Nugent's 8 year old Espino Gold accounted for the first division of the handicap with a two length victory over Happy Hour farm's Happy Pilot. A. S. Higgins' 7 year old Quizzle took the second half of the seven furlong event for 3 year olds and upward.

The first division drew a field of eight thorobreds familiar to Chicago racegoers. Jockey Eugene White, who had the leg up on the winner, rated him well and rode over the early leaders as they hit the home stretch. Happy Pilot, ridden by J. W. Martin, finished a half length in front of Mrs. Robert McGarvey's Night Shadow, the favorite. The winner paid $25.80, $11, and $6 across the board.

Quizzle Wins Second Heat

Quizzle proved to be a lot of horse in the second flight and under the steady handling of Jockey Kenny Robertson flashed past the judges five lengths in front of J. M. Hutchins' Observer, ridden by Billy Nichols, which nosed out Mrs. T. M. Pruett's King Epithet for the place. This section of the Inaugural drew a field of 10.

One accident marred the day's festivities. Jockey Andy Lo Turco took a header in the third race when his mount, Dixie's First, the favorite, stumbled and fell in the back stretch while running fifth and in the clear. Lo Turco was just shaken up, but gave up his remaining mounts.

Illinois Owner Wins Two

W. H. Bishop of Anna, Ill., saw his colors flash past the judges first in two consecutive events, Country Boy, ridden by Nichols, taking the third and Venci, with Willie Gillespie up, accounting for the fourth.

The longest price of the afternoon, $26 to win, was posted after the running of the second half of the daily double when Mrs. P. Leon's Dr. Bones, ridden by Joe Cavens, beat out Mrs. J. L. Oglesby's Keyman. The first half of the double went to Happy Hour farm's Fetchings Bar, piloted by J. W. Martin. Fetchings Bar returned $7.60 and the daily double was worth $127.20.

Two Tigers, a 3 year old first starter owned by Henry Tikulski and ridden by Paul Glidewell, scored a five length victory in the $1,800 River Forest purse, fifth race on the card and the day's secondary feature. Mrs. L. Lapuyade's Lovely Trace, the pace setter, lasted for the place as Hilltop Stock farm's Woodfin came up fast to take third. The winner was the favorite and returned $5.60 for a straight ticket.

BANGERT SETS NEW SHOT PUT, DISCUS MARKS

Columbia, Mo., May 12—(AP)—Bill Bangert of Missouri, national A. A. U. shot put champion, set new meet and new all-time Missouri records in shot put and discus today as the Tigers defeated the University of Kansas 79½ to 49½ in a dual track and field meet.

Bangert tossed the shot 53 feet 3¾ inches as compared with the 1933 meet record of 50 feet 9 inches set by Elwyn Dees of Kansas. Ed Quirk, Bangert's teammate, also bested the 1933 record with his second place toss of 52 feet 8 inches. Bangert's 162 feet 8¾ inches in the discus was far beyond the mark of 147 feet 4¾ inches which Thornhill of Kansas hung up in 1927.

Bob Crowson of Missouri won both sprints and took first in the high jump for individual scoring honors with 15 points.

THIS IS WHAT TURF FANS HAD BEEN WAITING FOR!

Indicative of the excitement of racing's return to the Chicago sporting scene yesterday at Sportsman's, Jockey Willie Gillespie loses his cap in getting away from the barrier in the first race. Gillespie brought Porky in for third place. [TRIBUNE Photos]

NOMINATE 155 FOR KENTUCKY DERBY JUNE 9

Louisville, Ky., May 12 (AP)—The delayed running of this year's war time Kentucky Derby will be on June 9 with a field of 155 nominations, Col. Matt Winn, president of Churchill Downs, announced today.

This represents the largest number of eligibles for the turf classic since 1929 and paves the way for what many believe will be one of the widest open Derbies in recent years.

Col. Winn announced details of this historic race less than a week after the federal ban was removed from the sport. The Derby, first race in the turf's big three events, will be followed by the Preakness at Baltimore June 16 and the Belmont Stakes at New York June 23.

Free For All Nominated

The original date for the race for the roses, a gold trophy, and $75,000 in added money was May 5 but it had to be postponed because of war time conditions.

The nominations for the 71st running of the Derby include most of the country's outstanding 3 year olds. Among them are John Marsch's Free For All, whose 1:41 3-5 out of the gate for a mile in today's workout at Churchill Downs was one of the best of the year. Art Roi, a stablemate, covered the same distance in 1:44 today.

Other outstanding 3 year olds nominated for the Derby include Calumet Farm's Pot O'Luck and Battle Fire, Greentree stables' Dockstader, Col. E. R. Bradley's Burning Dream and Bail Bond, William Ziegler's Esteem, and Belair stud's Johnsport.

Trial to Be Held May 26

Col. Winn also announced the one mile Derby trial, usually run on Tuesday before the Derby, would be run May 26. Churchill Downs will take over the Bluegrass Stakes, Keeneland's annual $10,000 Derby preview. It has been set for June 2, the last Saturday before the Derby. The Bluegrass, at 1 1-16 miles, usually attracts most of the outstanding Derby eligibles.

HOME TOWN DERBY

Washington, D. C., May 12 (AP)—Attendance at the Kentucky Derby will be restricted again this year to residents of Louisville, Ky., and vicinity, the office of defense transportation said today.

The agency said the Churchill Downs management, which announced today the Derby will be run June 9, had agreed to this policy which was laid down in 1944.

Under this plan no Derby tickets will be sold to persons outside the Louisville area.

MISTRAL WINS RACE IN PARIS BY 8 LENGTHS

PARIS, May 12 [Reuters]—Leon Volterras' colt Mistral won the Poule d'Essai des Poulains, the French 2,000 guineas, over one mile at Maisons Lafitte this afternoon.

He drew away in the last furlong in the field of eight to beat Marcel Boussacs Coaraze, even money favorite, by eight lengths.

Mistral was second favorite at seven to five.

WILDCATS BEAT ILLINOIS, 7 TO 2, TO EVEN SERIES

Northwestern university's baseball team scored six runs in the eighth inning to defeat Illinois, 7 to 2, at Dyche field in Evanston yesterday. The victory gave the Wildcats an even split in the two game series, the Illini having won Friday's game, 5 to 0.

Until Northwestern's eighth inning uprising, yesterday's game was a pitchers' battle between Johnny Remke, Wildcat freshman, and Art Ecklund of Illinois. Remke held the Illini to five hits and struck out nine. Ecklund yielded six scattered hits until the eighth when the Wildcats pounced on him for five safeties, all singles.

The Illini got off to a one run lead in the first inning when Ed Planert walked and scored on Bob Anderlik's triple. Illinois scored another run in the fourth on a walk, an error and a single by John Johns. Northwestern scored its first run in the fourth on singles by Dewi Jones and Jim Farrar. Five of Northwestern's six runs in the eighth inning were scored after two were out. Score:

Illinois	100	100	000—2	5	0
Northwestern	000	010	060—7	11	2

Batteries—Ecklund, Kilbane and Johns; Remke and Gargas.

DE PAUW, 11; INDIANA, 5

Bloomington, Ind., May 12 [Special].—DePauw went on a batting spree here today, clustering 13 of its 16 hits in two innings to defeat Indiana, 11 to 5. It was the Hoosiers' first loss in intercollegiate baseball this season.

Bob Settler, DePauw pitcher, kept Indiana's 11 hits well scattered, although Al Kralovansky touched him for a double and a triple and George Cherry, Ted Kluszewski, and Ed Zabek hit doubles. Settler got a triple and a double for DePauw, Bob Dobins a triple, and Sam Montefort a double. Score:

DePauw	000	740	000—11	16	2
Indiana	020	001	002— 5	11	0

Batteries—Settler and Schimmelpfenig; Modak, Williams and Cohen.

WISCONSIN WINS TWO.

Madison, Wis., May 12 [Special].—The University of Wisconsin baseball team won a double header against Purdue today, taking the first by a 7 to 1 score behind the 4 hit pitching of Gene Jaroch and the second, 5 to 4, on timely hitting and superb relief hurling by John Robinson.

In the first game, Jaroch held the Boilermakers hitless for 5⅔ innings and was never in danger. The

Cleveland All-America Club Signs Famed Dippy Evans

Cleveland, O., May 12 [Special]—The name of Fred [Dippy] Evans of Notre Dame football fame today was added to the imposing list of talent being assembled by the Cleveland team in the new All-America conference. Evans, a second lieutenant in the army air forces, has signed for post-war activity, Owner Arthur McBride reported.

Thus the Cleveland eleven, which will be coached by Lt. [j.g.] Paul Brown, is continuing its swift pace set since the professional conference was organized late last summer. Evans will team up with such brilliant college half backs as Otto Graham of Northwestern, Eddie Prokop of Georgia Tech, and Creighton Miller, a teammate in 1941 at Notre Dame.

Moved to Full Back

Evans, a South Bend boy who started his athletic career at Riley High school, entered Notre Dame in 1939. In 1940 he played half back, but the following season was moved to full back. In his new position he scored 11 touchdowns with the unbeaten Irish team in Frank Leahy's first year as coach. With Steve Juzwik, he was the workhorse of the back field. Evans also did the punting.

In 1942 Leahy adopted the T-formation man in motion offense, partly to utilize Evans' speed on quick opening plays and to get the most out of Angelo Bertelli's pass throwing skill. But in spring training that year, Evans suffered a leg injury and was unable to play in '42. He entered service in February, 1943, and was commissioned in June, 1944, at Foster field, Victoria, Tex. Last season he played with the Randolph [Tex.] field Flyers. He now is stationed at Waco, Tex., as a flying instructor.

McBride Is Jubilant

Cleveland's vigorous work in preparing for the planned opening of the All-America in 1946 has led to the signing of Herb Coleman, former Notre Dame center, and other star players. Lt. Brown has picked two assistants, John Brickels and Bob Voigts, former Northwestern star lineman.

McBride, jubilant over the signing of Evans, wondered what the New York club operators in the All-America would think about it.

"They felt pretty chesty after signing Minnesota's Bill Daley and Tulsa's Glenn Dobbs," said the Cleveland owner. McBride also made a verbal thrust southward at Harvey Hester, owner of the Miami franchise in the All-America. "At the Chicago meeting," said McBride, "I understand Mr. Hester said Miami would win the first championship in our conference. Well, that's our ambition here in Cleveland."

Miami Active, Too

Miami has signed a three man coaching staff headed by Lt. Comdr. Jack Meagher of Iowa Pre-Flight, with two former National Football league stars as his aids. These are Ens. Hampton Pool, one time Chicago Bear, and Ens. Jim Poole, who played with the New York Giants. In addition, Hester has some two dozen players under contract.

Cleveland will play its home games in the Municipal stadium, which has a seating capacity of 83,000.

GREAT LAKES' TRACK MEN WIN AT ANN ARBOR

BY WILFRID SMITH
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 12.—Les Eisenhart of Great Lakes, one time Ohio State university middle distance star, and currently the National A.A.U. champion at 1,000 yards, whipped Michigan's Bob Hume in the last stride of a thrilling mile race on Ferry Field this afternoon. Then, Tom Cara of the Bluejacket squad, scored a surprising victory in the quarter mile.

From this auspicious beginning Great Lakes went on to defeat Michigan by two points, 43⅚ to 41⅚. Illinois was third with 35½ point gave Great Lakes the winning 31 5/6 points.

Klemmer, Cara, John Heintzman, and Eisenhart were the key men in the Bluejacket victory which was not achieved until the final event, the broad jump, while Michigan was held to a fourth place and one point, gave Great Lakes the winning team total.

Walker Wins Individual Honors

Henry Aihara of Illinois was the winner of the broad jump and the Illini also had three other individual titles. George Walker, star Negro hurdler, took both of these and his 10 points gave him individual honors. Stan Sprague got Illinois' other first place in the shot put.

Cara's quarter mile victory in the excellent time of 50.6 seconds over a track exceedingly slow from rain this morning, possibly was the surprise of the meet despite Bob Hume's licking. Cara is a former Schurz High school athlete and his stretch drive in which he passed Joe Johnson of Illinois to win by inches, made the crowd forget that the more highly publicized stars, Bob Kelley of Illinois and Grover Klemmer of the Bluejackets did not compete.

Cara Defeats Forrestal

Cara also whipped Dick Forrestel of Michigan in the quarter and Forrestel had been picked to take the race when Kelley and Klemmer were scratched. Klemmer, however, won the 220 yard dash in 21.6 seconds and his place in the broad jump was particularly important.

Kelley who is still suffering from a pulled muscle received two weeks before the Drake relays, did not run in his other specialty, the half mile. He was content to warm up in the mile, dropping out on the fourth and final lap to win third place and he then continued his

16 HIT ATTACK BY CUBS BEATS BRAVES, 13 TO 12

BY EDWARD BURNS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Boston, Mass., May 12—The Cubs who yesterday tied their season scoring total with seven, eclipsed that meager sum today as they whipped the Boston Braves in a harum-scarum spectacle, 13 to 12. Here are some of the statistics, in which the Chicagoans amassed a total of 16 hits for 30 bases.

Capt. Phil Cavarretta tied the score at a dozen all with his first 1945 homer, knocked off Red Barrett's first pitch with the bases loaded and two home in the seventh inning.

Bill Nicholson broke the 12 to 12 tie with two out in the ninth when he bashed his second homer of the year—his first since his first time at bat this season.

Lowrey Has Big Day

Peanuts Lowrey, back after a brief term on the bench, helped the first Cub run around with a double in the second inning, banged a triple in a two run splurge in the fourth and in the fifth slammed a homer with two on.

Hank Wyse, who went nine innings yesterday, in which he held the Phillies to one run, a homer by Vince DiMaggio, as the Cubs won, 7 to 1, was the winning pitcher today.

Wyse was the fifth pitcher and the only good one. After Ray Prim, Hy Vandenberg, and Jorge Comellas had struggled thru four innings, the Braves were leading, 10 to 3, successive homers by Carden Gillenwater and Charley Workman off Prim being factors. Mack Stwart was the fourth pitcher and two runs Boston made off him in the sixth had the home boys ahead, 12 to 6. Then came the six run Chicago seventh.

Cubs Use 17 Players

The Cubs employed 17 players in the contest, one of the changes being necessary by a minor injury to Don Johnson, who contributed a single and a double before he gave way to Bill Schuster. Of the pinch batters, Andy Pafko clicked with a double in the big seventh. Every one in the starting lineup except Prim made at least one hit. Stan Hack made a single at the start of the contest, Roy Hughes had a single, and Nicholson made two singles and got two passes prior to his decisive homer. Cavarretta's vital homer was his only safe one. Then there was a single by Frank Secory and those three extra base hits by Lowrey. Dewey Williams singled three times and walked once.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN

The White Sox packed up their belongings by request yesterday and regretfully abandoned the luxurious life of first placers. The order to get out came directly from Emil [Dutch] Leonard, the knuckle ball expert who piloted his Washington mates to a 3 to 0 success in the series opener in Comiskey park, the Yankees in the meantime taking over the American league pacemaking role as the result of their neat disposal of Cleveland's Indians.

Along with dropping the Sox out of the lead which they had occupied to the exclusion of all since the season's start except for a 24 hour tie, the Senators put a stop to Joe Haynes' ambitions to build up a worth while winning streak. He was seeking his fourth but because of the ease with which his former associates slapped the ball around the premises he was plastered with his first defeat. It also was the first shutout of the year for the Sox.

Case Levels on Haynes

Leonard conducted such a high class party that there never was more than one Sox base runner in an inning and not many of those, as might be judged by the Chicago total of six hits. For eight innings the Sox didn't even get one of their members as far as second base. They finally made the half way station in the ninth when Guy Curtright, subbing for Wally Moses who was stabled with a sore shoulder, singled and moved up on an infield out. Incidentally, the Senators didn't win a game in Comiskey park last season.

Haynes had to wait only until the third inning before learning that his pitching wasn't going to be too deceptive. Mike Guerra opened that inning with a single and Leonard contributed a sacrifice. George Case launched a string of three hits with a double to left, sending in Guerra. Haynes managed to end the inning without further mishap and he also dodged the possible consequences of a double by George Binks at the start of the fourth.

Leonard Turns Slugger

Possibly because he wasn't getting enough fun out of his pitching, Leonard began cutting up as a hitter in the fifth and Haynes' woes piled up. The knuckle baller clouted a double to left center with one out and was promptly driven home by Case's second hit.

Leonard was back with his bat at the start of the eighth and this time he singled to center. He was frisky enough to step to third on Case's third hit—a single. George Myatt singled and Leonard trotted in with the third run. The Senators also had a scoring bee started in the ninth when Vincent Ventura singled and Guerra doubled with one out, but in this instance both Leonard and Case were flops.

FINAL WEEK OF FREE GOLF WILL OPEN TOMORROW

Students' Quiz Technique Increases Interest

BY CHARLES BARTLETT

Don't look now, but the 13th annual free golf school conducted by THE TRIBUNE and the Illinois section of the Professional Golfers' Association of America actually has begun. After a postponement of the originally scheduled opening class last Monday, the college of golf for beginners actually got down to business on Friday, with a handsome turnout of 10,000 men, women, and children flocking to the four Chicago park district courses for the free instructions by Illinois P. G. A. members. The Friday attendance boosted the over-all total of lessons since the school started in 1933 to 473,500.

The professors who comprise the school's faculty report that they seldom have found an audience more willing to learn the fundamentals of the game, or more interested in finding out the backgrounds of finished players. Ordinarily, the lessons have been concerned directly with the task of showing students how to hold a club, how to stand, and how to swing the club.

Students Quiz Pros!

A new technique was introduced at Friday's classes, however, with the students quizzing the professionals and their guest artists. An example of this occurred at the Diversey class in Lincoln park, where Phyllis Otto, the Northwestern junior who has twice reached the women's Western Open finals, found herself the target for a barrage of questions about herself from the pupils who had watched her give a shotmaking demonstration. The personable little Iowan proved that she's just as adept at hitting verbal shots by her replies.

Still another feminine angle of the first class was the warning sounded by Tom Walsh of Westgate Valley, co-founder of the school and in charge of the classes at Marquette park. Thomas suggested to the ladies present that if they aim to hang on to their men folks after the war, they had best go in for golf. He predicted that returning service men and war workers will give the sport its biggest boom when peace comes.

Aim to Help War Veterans

Elmer Schacht of Ridge, who was on the platform at Jackson park, and Bill Gordon of Tam o' Shanter, the speaker at Columbus park, both emphasized the part the P. G. A., and notably the Illinois section, is doing for rehabilitation of veterans of this war.

Harry Adams of St. Charles, long one of the most faithful teachers in the school, and newly appointed chairman of the Illinois rehabilitation committee, and President Alex Cunningham made it plain that the section's every 1945 activity, including the golf school, will be directed toward the job of proving that golf is the ideal sport for veterans of World War II.

The school enters its final week tomorrow night, when the third lesson will be given on the same four park courses—Jackson, Columbus, Diversey-in-Lincoln, and Marquette—at the same hour, 7:15 o'clock. The fourth and last session will be held at the same quartet of locations Friday evening. Both of these instructions will emphasize the swing. All classes are free. Bring one golf club and be prompt.

Grimm Sets Golf Pace at Butterfield

R. W. Grimm, who defeated no less an artist than George Dawson for the Glen Oak club championship last season, yesterday proved that he's ready for another good year by leading a field of 250 members and guests in the annual spring stag tournament of the Butterfield country club.

Grimm headed all gross marksmen for a day blessed by the weather man with a 39—35—74, three over par for the 18 hole route. Best of the home club talent was the long driving Dr. Ray Grunt, who posted a 37—39—76, then made the journey again for the fun of it with a 77.

Introduces New Staff

President A. O. Figge, Secretary L. U. Ullrich, and Sports and Pastimes Chairman Fred Torbeck introduced a brand new club staff in Professional Jack Grout, Manager Franklin Walker, and Greenkeeper Peter Stewart. Butterfield is looking forward to the best season it has enjoyed in 25 years, one to be climaxed on Aug. 15 when it will combine its annual cruise day with its silver anniversary celebration.

Normally, this date would also see the conduct of Medinah's famed Camel Trail, but the latter club has relinquished the day to Butterfield for the occasion.

Crossen Leads Class B

Following Dr. Grunt among the class A members in the gross competition, were Herb Johnson, former club pro who was in the landing at Casablanca and who is now a member of the club 40—39—79; Bob Kevil, one time club champion, 39—41—80, and the veteran Dr. D. J. Fanning 40—40—80. Class B gross winners among members included T. H. Crossen, 90; Roy Lapitz, 95; Fred Torbeck 96, and Ald. Joseph Gillespie, 98. Members class C pacemakers at gross were W. P. Carroll, 101; K. Phalen, 104; T. Morris, 104, and A. M. Sasgen 105. The low net leaderse in the three classes follow:

Class A—Robert Slade, 82—7—75; William Koch, 86—11—75; R. F. Sells, 86—10—76, and Dr. Robert Hawkins, 84—7—77.

Class B—Frank Cullen, 87—17—70; F. J. Krafic, 93—17—76; George Fee, 99—18—81, and Edward Chodl, 96—14—82.

Class C—S. J. Gullickson, 103—21—82; J. V. Ryan, 102—20—82; M. F. Lennon, 110—27—83, and R. L. Creedon, 108—21—87.

N. U. OPENS NEW GOLF COURSE

This is how Northwestern formally opened its new golf course yesterday in Wilmette. While a group of co-eds watch, Harry Wells, business manager of the university, prepares to smack the ball with an oversized club. The ball is teed up by Ted Payseur, Wildcats' athletic director and golf coach. Later, Michigan beat N. U. in a close match. [TRIBUNE Photo]

MICHIGAN DEALS N. U. GOLFERS 1ST LOSS OF SEASON

Northwestern dedicated its new golf course in Wilmette yesterday but Michigan's Western conference champions were uncoöperative and overcame a Wildcat rally to win, 14½ to 12½. This was N. U.'s first defeat of the season.

The Wildcats, trailing, 3 to 9, after three doubles and one singles match, then swept the next three singles to take a 12 to 9 lead. This rally was highlighted by Dick Krapfel's 3 to 0 triumph over Johnny Jenswald, Michigan's conference champion.

Ken Morey of Michigan then beat Ed Malenius, 3 to 0, and the match was tied again. The final Michigan golfer, Bob Ernst, finished with a 2½ to ½ margin over Gene Saxon.

Dedication ceremonies were highlighted by Harry Wells, university business manager and leader behind the purchase of the country club, hitting the first official ball off the tee with a king sized driver. After Wells' badly sliced 20 yard drive, a mixed foursome composed of Chick Evans and Lillian Townsend against Don Heppes and Phyllis Otto took over for an exhibition match. Heppes and Miss Otto won the best ball match.

Wilson Wins Junior College Track Crown

Wilson won the Illinois Junior college track meet in Key Branch stadium yesterday by scoring 81 points. Morton was second with 38.

MIDWEST CHIEFS SEE MORE SCHOOL SPORTS IN 1946

A survey of the eight member colleges during the annual meeting of the mid-west collegiate athletic conference in Chicago yesterday revealed a somewhat more optimistic tone over the possibility of carrying on intercollegiate athletics next season at least on a limited basis. Tho ready to resume conference competition when the man power situation improves, the league itself made no attempt to schedule conference games and whatever competition is attempted will continue to be on an individual school basis. The conference suspended its league schedules two years ago.

Most of the athletic directors have scheduled tentative games in basketball and track, with an expectation of adding cross-country, swimming, tennis, and golf, but football was put in a doubtful stage except in the case of three or four members.

Prof. Sam J. McLaughlin of Cornell college was named president of the conference, succeeding Prof. Hugh Beveridge of Monmouth. Prof. Arthur C. Walton of Knox was elected vice president, and Prof. C. Ward Macy of Coe was reëlected to the combined office of secretary-treasurer-commissioner.

An honor roll of all letter men in the conference who have been killed in the present war was authorized, and Dec. 8 was selected as the date for the fall meeting in Chicago.

TILDEN BEATS RICHARDS

Ferndale, N. Y., May 12 [AP].—Bill Tilden beat Vinnie Richards, 6-1, 6-2, in tennis at the Grossinger Country club today. Afterwards Tilden's racquet was auctioned off for $15,000 in war bonds and Richards' for $10,000.

25,000 WAGER $1,153,415 AT NARRAGANSETT

Pawtucket, R. I., May 12 (AP)—An enthusiastic crowd of 25,000 welcomed racing back to Narragansett park today by providing a nine race pari-mutuel betting handle of $1,153,415—a new opening day record for New England tracks.

Top honors were shared by Mrs. Lottie Wolf's 5 year old gelding, Bar Willow, and Max Marmorstein's similarly aged Castleman. They accounted for the two ends of the $1,000 inaugural purse, which had to be split when it drew 25 overnight entries.

Bar Willow nosed out Wallace Renard's Mixer in a photo finish, after forging to the front with his last few strides to turn the 5½ furlongs in 1:06 1/5. The show went to Arcand and Laurin's Valdina Craft in the 12 horse field.

Castleman led all the way over that same distance while outrunning W. I. Lunt's Merry Sunshine by 2½ lengths in 1:05 3/5—only 3/5 of a second off the track record.

Bar Willow returned $10.20, $4.60, and $3.40, Mixer $5 and $3.60, and Valdina Craft $4.60. The 6-1 Castleman returned $14.20, $8.40, and $5.40, Merry Sunshine's place and show prices were $8.40 and $5, and Tetra Rock, which gained the show after a photo dispute with Rocket Gal, paid $3.60.

The shortest priced favorite to triumph was Mrs. Weston W. Adams' 4-5 Son Admiral in a 5½ furlong affair for 3 year olds. Longest shot of the day was D. Hickey's $43 Mono Miller in another claiming sprint.

Sentiment Pays Off

Honors for being the nation's first winner since the Jan. 3 racing ban went to Adelard [Frenchy] Lamoureux's 11 year old Night Editor, winning the opener with four lengths to spare over Betty Froehlich's Aldridge.

Lamoureux, owner of the aged Stars and Bars gelding when he was a consistent stake performer back in the late '30s, repurchased him for $250 in Florida last fall for sentimental reasons.

Wildcats Beat Illinois, 7 to 2, to Even Series

Badgers scored four runs in the first inning to clinch victory.

The Boilermakers took a 3 to 1 margin in the third inning of the second game. The Badgers fought back and tied the score on Dick Myher's single but Purdue again went ahead in the eighth inning on a pinch single by Walt Lenczyk. The Badgers won the game with the assistance of Purdue errors. Robinson in a relief role stopped Purdue with 3 hits over 6⅔ innings.

Jim Ackeret made six hits in the two games for the Badgers while Zimmerman, the Badger second baseman, handled 20 chances in the two games without a misplay. The scores:

Purdue	000	000	010—	1	4	2
Wisconsin	400	010	20*—	7	10	1

Batteries—Curtiss and Hughes; Jaroch and Murphy.

Minnesota Sweeps Series

Minneapolis, Minn., May 12 (AP)—Minnesota university's baseball team today made it two in a row over Iowa State, winning 4 to 1, after having trounced the visitors, 17 to 7, Friday in the series opener.

The Gophers' victory today came largely thru the slugging of Lehrman, who collected a triple and a double, Graiziger who hit a pair for two bases, and Clatt, who twice hit singles against the pitching of Ralph Theobald.

The Minnesotans play Wisconsin at Madison next week-end with the first night game in the history of the school scheduled. Today's score:

Iowa	001	000	000—	1	5	3
Minnesota	020	100	01*—	4	8	1

Batteries—Theobald and Babbitt; Kelly and Mealey.

SECOND GAME RAINED OUT

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 12 [Special]—Heavy rain forced the cancelation of this afternoon's scheduled baseball game between Michigan and Notre Dame here. It marked the third game the Michigan team has had washed out this year. Yesterday the Wolverines trounced the Irish by a 12 to 3 score.

SPARTANS DIVIDE TWO

Columbus, O., May 12 (AP)—Keith Steffee of Michigan State set Ohio State down with five hits today to even a two-game baseball series, 3 to 0. The Buckeyes won yesterday's game, 2 to 1, in 12 innings. Nick Gregory, Spartan second baseman, got four hits. Score:

Michigan State.....	000	020	010—	3	10	1
Ohio State.........	000	000	000—	0	5	3

The Home Front

BY WILLIAM BAYLISS

ANOTHER Western conference university, Minnesota, has joined the steadily growing list of schools recognizing the major role industrial recreation will play in the American post-war athletic scene. Dr. Lou Keller, acting director of physical education and athletics at Minnesota, in commenting on the plans of his department, says he foresees great expansion and development in this field.

"Industrial recreation definitely has become of age under the current war time stress on man power," says Dr. Keller. "Hundreds of the largest industrialists in the nation have found a recreation program within their organizations highly worthwhile in improving efficiency and fostering favorable labor relations. People in our work take cognizance of this trend.

"In expanding our teacher training program after the war, as we certainly must do, we shall aim to fill the needs for supervisors in industrial recreation, as well as for a greatly increased number of physical education instructors for high schools and communities."

This statement indicates that the Minnesota physical education department will follow the lead of Purdue university, pioneer in this field in the Western conference and in the entire nation. Dr. Floyd Eastwood of Purdue, the country's first professor of industrial recreation on a major university faculty and the No. 1 missionary in this field, doubtless will welcome Dr. Keller's action.

Every One a Winner Film Stresses Value of Fitness

Industrial groups which are interested in calling to the attention of their members the importance of participation in competitive athletics as a means of maintaining physical fitness, will find some worthwhile ammunition in a program called "Every One a Winner." It is a 16 minute slide film talkie, the May release of the "Safety Zone" series produced by the Zurich Insurance companies.

The program, which would be ideal for a lunch hour presentation at any industrial plant, shows in a striking manner what sports competition will do in maintaining top physical efficiency. It tries to sell physical fitness alone and does not even mention the name of the company which puts it out, so that it cannot be called propaganda from that angle. Industrial plant personnel or recreation directors interested in the film should get in touch with the Zurich company's industrial welfare department, 135 S. La Salle st., Chicago.

Waldimir Baskovich, one legged Chicagoan, demonstrates grace and skill on flying rings which won him championship in National A. A. U. gymnastic meet in Jersey City.

IN THESE days, when many American boys are returning from war faced with the necessity of learning to accustom themselves to getting along without an arm or a leg lost in combat, the case of Waldimir [Wally] Baskovich shines out like a beacon of hope. Wally, 30, a Chicagoan of Serbian parentage, made gymnastic history by winning the flying rings championship in the National A. A. U. meet in Jersey City May 5. As far as existing records show, he is the first one legged athlete ever to win a national gymnastic title.

Baskovich's left leg was amputated above the knee as a result of a boyish prank in trying to hop a train when he was 12. He has taken an active part in athletics all his life however, pitching amateur baseball for seven years and still bowling regularly with a league average this season of 145. However, he has specialized in gymnastics, swimming, and diving. He hit the top this year in the A. A. U. gymnastic competition in his third effort and hopes to try for national fancy diving honors. In addition to his national flying rings title, he has won the Central A. A. U. championship in the same event for the last two years.

Lands on One Leg and Scores on Balance

Wally ordinarily wears an artificial leg which he handles so well it is impossible to detect anything unnatural about his walk. However, when he competes in gymnastics, he discards it. As a result, tho he is not handicapped in his performance on the rings, he has to display some remarkable skill in balancing on one leg when he lands on the floor after going thru his routine, for balance when landing is scored as part of the performance.

In the A. A. U. meet Wally represented the Chicago Sokols, Bohemian gymnastic society. He is employed by the Bardach-Schoene Co., Inc., 102 S. Canal st., manufacturers of artificial limbs. He has expressed his willingness to give demonstrations at military hospitals and before groups of veterans who might be helped by seeing what he can do.

Baskovich will be one of the star performers in the eighth annual gymnastic circus which will be presented at the Lincoln-Belmont Y. M. C. A., 3333 N. Marshfield av., Friday and Saturday. Others include Paul Fina, Central A. A. U. all-around champion and third in the national meet; Bill Goldie, former Illinois champion tumbler, and Meta Neuman, third in the flying rings in the national competition.

BROOKLYN BEATS REDS, 6 TO 3, FOR SEVENTH IN ROW

25,279 See Dodgers' First Night Game

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 12 (AP)—The fast stepping second place Dodgers kept pace with the league leading Giants when they defeated the Cincinnati Reds tonight, 6 to 3, for their seventh straight victory. The largest gathering at Ebbets field this season, 25,279, saw the first night game of the year here.

In winning, the Dodgers took the measure of Bucky Walters, who suffered his fourth reversal of the season and has yet to gain a victory. Hal Gregg went the route for the home forces and yielded eight hits, one of which was a home run by Frank McCormick.

The Dodgers scored three runs in their half of the eighth to clinch the victory, the tallies resulting from singles by Dixie Walker, Louis Olmo, and Morrie Aderholt, the latter a pinch hitter, and a wild pitch by the veteran Walters. The wild pitch sent the first two tallies over the plate. In the opening inning Goodie Rosen hit a home run after Eddie Stanky singled and in the third a double by Rosen paved the way for another Brooklyn run.

GIANTS BEAT CARDS, 6 TO 3

New York, May 12 (AP)—The New York Giants tightened their grip on first place in the National league by defeating the world champion St. Louis Cardinals, 6 to 3, before 15,067 today.

Bill Voiselle, despite some rough going at the outset, weathered the storm to notch his fifth straight victory. He yielded only eight hits, two in the last seven innings.

Blix Donnelly started for the Cardinals and after holding the Giants to one run in six innings, weakened in the seventh and was removed after giving up four runs. It was Donnelly's third loss without a victory.

PIRATES BEAT PHILS, 5-3

Philadelphia, Pa., May 12 (AP)—Sparked by Jim Russell's 405 foot homer over the right field fence, the Pittsburgh Pirates won, 5 to 3, over the Philadelphia Phillies here today. The home run was one of Russell's four hits.

Nick Strincevich gave way to Xavier Rescigno when the Phils rallied in the seventh but received credit for the victory. The Phils used three hurlers, Dick Barrett, Andy Karl, and Louis Lucier. Barrett was charged with the loss.

WHEATON HIGH WINS DISTRICT TITLE IN TRACK

Coach Cliff Hodges' Wheaton track team won the district title at the East Aurora field yesterday by scoring 31 points, two better than Naperville and Downers Grove collected for their second place tie. Geneva had 27 points for fourth and the other scores were: Glenbard, 18; West Aurora, 14; Mooseheart, 13; East High, 11; Batavia, 7; Oswego, 2; West Chicago, 2, and Elgin, 1.

Only one record was broken during the meet, this when Tom Calliman of Wheaton ran the 880 yard event in 1:58.3 to lower the old mark of 2:03.3 set by Schroeder of Elgin, Ill., in 1941. Bill Augustine of East Aurora, 1944 winner of the 880 at Champaign in 1:59.4, ran second to Calliman in 2:02.3 also to break the previous mark.

By strange coincidence both the first four 880 placers and the first four milers qualified for the state finals by bettering the mark set up for the events, 2:05.6 in the 880 and 4:45 in the mile. Summaries:

Notre Dame Upsets Purdue to Win Indiana Track Title

Bloomington, Ind., May 12 [Special]—Notre Dame upset Purdue's track team today by taking five firsts and scoring heavily on team strength to win in the annual Indiana intercollegiate outdoor track meet over seven opponents.

Notre Dame's winning score was 70.6 points. Purdue was a close second with 66.5 points. Indiana was third with 44.7, followed by DePauw with 33.2, Ball State with 4.5, Indiana State with 2.5 and Wabash with 3. Rose Poly failed to score. Notre Dame also won the last big state meet held in 1942.

The Irish ran a close race with the Boilermakers, who also won five first places. With only two events yet to be run, Notre Dame held a one-tenth point lead over Purdue, after trailing the Boilermakers in the earlier stages. An easy victory in the mile relay increased Notre Dame's lead another point and they picked up three more in the javelin throw.

A pair of Notre Dame and two Purdue men scored double victories. Joe Kelly, Notre Dame, took the shot put and discus throw and Bill O'Neil, also of the Irish, won the high and low hurdles. Purdue's Ben Harvey won the 100 and 220 yard dashes, and Don Weber the quarter and half mile runs.

BROWNS DEFEAT ATHLETICS, 8-2, IN NIGHT GAME

St. Louis, Mo., May 12 (AP)—The American league champion St. Louis Browns defeated the Philadelphia Athletics, 8 to 2, in the opening game of their series here tonight.

Vernon Stephens got his fifth home run of the season to start the big sixth inning when the Browns scored four runs and sewed up the game behind eight hit pitching of Sig Jakucki.

Hal Peck scored the first Athletic run with a homer in the third. The Browns' victory put them in a tie with Washington for fourth place.

YANKEES WIN, 7 TO 3

Cleveland, O., May 12 (AP)—The New York Yankees defeated the Cleveland Indians, 7 to 3, today and moved into first place in the American league standings, a game ahead of the Chicago White Sox, who were beaten by Washington.

A five run rally in the fifth inning gave the Yankees the victory, in a game shortened to seven innings by rain.

Walt Dubiel gave up eight hits, including a pair of homers by Pat Seerey, Cleveland left fielder, for his third success of the season against one defeat.

HAKOAHS MEET RANGERS TODAY IN SOCCER GAME

Four Matches Scheduled in Major Division

BY OFFSIDE

With the departure from our midst of the Brooklyn Hispanos, National soccer champions, who won from a National league all-star team last Sunday, Chicago soccer returns to normalcy today with a full list of games scheduled in all divisions of the National league.

The arrival of V-E day has brought joy to several of the club managers, especially John Dahlberg of the Rangers, who announces that Alex Robb and Tommy Littleford have returned to active soccer. Both players were outstanding with the old Brickie team, and it is reported that Weck Henney, another well known star, has returned to his old place with the Vikings.

4 Games in Major Division

Four games are scheduled today in the National league's major division and after the Hakoahs' clever victory over the Schwabens in their last game their encounter today against the Rangers, at 59th and Paulina sts., will hold the attention of the south side fans.

The Hakoahs will welcome back for probably only one game Eric Klaber, who has arrived home on a short leave from service. He will play in his usual place at outside right. Eric, with a wonderful shot in either foot, will be a big help in this important encounter. No other changes are anticipated in the Hakoahs' lineup. All regulars, including Dr. Brant, their all-star center half who played well against the Hispanos, will be in the lineup, and Eddie Linderman, the team's diminutive scrappy outside left, who many fans picked for the all-star team and who has been the team's sparkplug since the opening of the season, is expected to lead the attack today.

All-Negro Team in Debut

Something new in soccer is to be offered in Winnemac park, where the Evertons, an all-Negro team from the Barbados [in the West Indies] will meet the Chicago Sport club in a reserve major league match starting at 1 p. m. The men in the Evertons' lineup were brought to the United States to assist in war work, and will be in the Chicago district for several months after the conclusion of hostilities.

Lineups:

Rangers		Hakoah Centers
Thomson	G. K.	Stein
Gunnard	R. B.	Hony
Geinrig	L. B.	Lt. Rosenbusch
Kerstetter	R. H.	Field
Littleford	C. H.	Dr. Brant

Tuesday Will Find Anglers Active Again

BY BOB BECKER

Just a couple more days and some of the fresh water game fish in the middle west will see a variety of lures whizzing past their ears, for May 15 tilts the lid of the 1945 fishing season in several states.

In Illinois it will be possible to go after bass in the southern zone Tuesday morning. In Wisconsin the green light goes on for trout, crappies, wall-eyed pike, northern pike, and several varieties of pan fish, with the muskie fishing coming May 25. Minnesota also opens up on most species of game fish [bass excepted] starting Tuesday. And about now the white bass fishermen usually have a lot of fun on the Wolf river in Wisconsin.

Just as this writer is about to take a look at some fishy water and present a few lures to the fish some rather disconcerting news reaches anglers. It's to the effect that fishermen on hundreds of lakes either aren't much good at fishing, or can't find fish in a lake, or don't work hard enough with rods and reels, because the latest and most careful studies of lakes shows that anglers are falling down on their job. In other words, we are not catching enough fish to harvest the crop, say the fisheries investigators.

The evidence in front of us on this is irrefutable, for it refers to lakes in Illinois, Michigan, Indiana, Tennessee, and other states. The scientists who examine the per acre population of lakes flatly are telling fishermen that they aren't harvesting the crop and more fish are dying of old age than reaching the skillet!

R. W. Eschmeyer, who has been studying the Norris Lake fishing, has assembled the latest information on how fishermen fail to harvest the fish crop in many lakes and keep fishing up to par. Here are some quotes from his pamphlet, "The Norris Lake Fishing Experiment."

1. All available evidence shows that most game fish in Norris lake and other TVA waters never are caught. Most of them are wasted. [That's why they have opened up so many of those lakes down there to year 'round fishing.]

2. In a large lake in Minnesota Investigators Jerome Stoudt and Samuel Eddy estimated the wall-eye population at 900,000 adults. The catch in one year was about 55,000, or only about 6 per cent of the population. [Result, too many fish in the lake, too much competition for food, and the fish don't grow.]

Sports in Service

87th St. Naval Training Center

VICTORY in Europe has served to increase interest in the rigid physical training program being conducted at this naval air technical training center on the south side. . . . Activities were halted briefly on V-E day while President Truman's official proclamation was broadcast over the loudspeaker system and Capt. Robert L. Fuller, commanding officer, delivered a short address. . .

Capt. R. L. Fuller

"Do not waste a moment of your time in celebrating an event, which, at best, marks the end of only one phase of this global war," Capt. Fuller said. . . . Scores of tough bluejackets, who have faced the Japs on Tarawa, Saipan, and in the Philippines, were in the gymnasium when they heard those words. . . . Many had on boxing gloves. . . . "This conditioning program will continue under full power," said Lt. Comdr. Pat Boland, athletic officer. . . . "With the war in the Pacific entering its final phase the need for physically fit men in the forward areas is greater than ever before."

Seaman C. R. Dealy, 21 year old heavyweight strong man of Independence, Mo., broke the center's chin-up record last week when he achieved 60 chin-ups, 22 more than the previous standard. . . . Dealey joined the navy in January, 1943, and spent 11 months on Atlantic convoy duty before being sent to this school for training as a naval aviation maintenance technician.

Fort Sheridan

THE Racine Belles and the Rockford Peaches of the All-American Girls' professional league will meet in an exhibition game on the Parade grounds here Friday evening at 6 o'clock. . . . The post softball league, its scheduled opening last week postponed because of inclement weather, will make another attempt to get the season under way tomorrow night with four games. . . . Lt. James P. Redding of Atlanta, Ga., has been appointed coach of the Fort Sheridan softball team, it was announced yesterday by Lt. Norm Kelly, post athletic officer. . . . The WAC volleyball players of this army separation center will meet Chicago's Lloyd playground girls here on Tuesday. . . . Immediately after the game bowling awards will be presented to winners of the three post league competitions — Buck's Busters, Separation Center finance, and E Company No. 2.

Naval Reserve Armory

THE newly organized baseball team of the 9th Naval District Shore patrol stationed at this establishment will open the season against the University of Chicago Wednesday. . . . Other games will be against Douglas Aircraft Thursday, Illinois Tech Saturday and May 25, and Northwestern university May 22. . . . The SP nine will be built around such players as Will Donovan and Earl Polzin, pitchers; John Strah, shortstop; Ted Kalkowski, outfielder, and John Ellis, J. P. Murphy, James Marek, and Ad Letwinsky. . . . Kalkowski is a native of Chicago, Donovan a former member of the Boston Braves, Strah an infielder with the House of David, and Ellis an erstwhile player with the Madison [Wis.] Blues.

BRITISH REPORT BIG WAR LOSS IN CARGO VESSELS

BY E. R. NODERER
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, May 12—From the outbreak of the war to the end of 1943, Britain lost more than 11½ million gross tons of merchant shipping, the minister of production, Oliver Lyttelton, said today.

He said Britain's losses were larger than those of any other country in relation to the size of its merchant fleet, which was 17½ millian gross tons at the start of the war.

Lose Half Liner Fleet

Last March 25 the Liverpool Steamship Owners association reported more than 50 per cent of the liner fleets operated by members had been lost during the war.

The liner gross tonnage on Jan. 1, 1945, amounted to 2,706,900, compared with 4,511,300 at the corresponding date in 1939. The association's figures show an improvement in the tonnage position after the U-boat campaign was defeated in 1943.

The January totals thruout the war were: 1940, 4,453,000 gross tons; 1941, 4,093,300; 1942, 3,590,100; 1943, 2,243,900, and 1944, 2,700,000 gross tons.

Keels Laid Before War

"These figures reflect the war losses and war time replacements mainly from tonnage under construction when war broke out and subsequently delivered," said the report. It also said many of the vessels lost were old ships which, if they had survived, would have needed to be replaced soon.

EXPLODE MYTH OF CAPITAL AND LABOR CONFLICT

Interests Entwined, Studies Show

BY THOMAS FURLONG

The recent warning by the Swedish economist, Gastav Cassel, against acceptance of the myth that the interests of capital and labor are basically antagonistic is reinforced by the results of a new study by an American economist, Prof. Willford I. King of New York university.

Willford I. King

Cassel contrasted conditions in different countries to show that the standard of life varies with the amount of capital invested. The lowest standard of life, he pointed out, is found in India and China, where capital investment in its modern sense is virtually nonexistent. The highest standard of living exists in the United States, where capital investment is largest. Cassel's views were presented in an article after his death in January.

Reach Same Conclusions

Dr. King examines in more detail the factors responsible for the amazing economic progress achieved in the United States in the last 190 years. His conclusions are strikingly similar to those of Cassel.

Thus two disinterested individuals pursuing independent studies come up with the same answer. Each in his own language warns that to penalize capital and deter investment is to injure the worker. King goes further to emphasize how present tax policies jeopardize future economic progress in the United States.

Confiscatory taxation of the income groups that furnish the bulk of new capital to industry not only jeopardizes workers' jobs but blocks further advances in living standards, said King. He marshals a wealth of historical evidence to support his statements, that are published in a bulletin of the Committee for Constitutional Government.

"Impossible to Build Capital"

It is virtually impossible under present conditions, said King, to accumulate capital to finance new private enterprise.

"Unless these confiscating taxes are discontinued promptly when the war ends, it is hard to imagine how capital can be raised to make possible a continuation of that onward march of industry which has brought prosperity to all classes of our population," he said.

"Those who believe that a leveling down of income—a seizure of profits of those who are successful in business—will benefit labor overlook the fact that this process shuts off the supply of new venture capital and thus causes free enterprise to stagnate. But it is under this system of free enterprise that the workingman's scale of living has advanced far more rapidly than in any regimented economy."

Labor's Share Stable

Labor's share of gross manufacturing output over the years is amazingly stable, said King. It is uninfluenced by wars, depressions, or the rise and fall of activity by labor unions.

"Thus labor received 16 per cent of the gross value of manufacturers in 1909, and still received 16 per cent in 1939, despite World War I., the great depression, and the rise of the CIO," he said.

Had it been economically possible for labor to increase its proportional share of industry's production, it should have achieved it in those industries where the greatest labor activity occurred, King reasoned. But his studies showed clearly that this was not the case.

This points straight to the conclusion that labor's chance of getting more lies in greater production, he said. That can be done only to a limited extent with present capital equipment. The important increase in output per worker will come in the future as in the past thru increased capital investments.

Cycle Held Inescapable

"No one has yet discovered," he observed, "how to create without paying labor, how to produce without capital, how to get capital unless people save, or how to induce people to save unless they are paid for so doing."

It is an historically unassailable fact, said King, that capital resulting from savings is the one device by which man has been able to build the machines that have made possible vast production increases.

Furthermore, it is an inescapable fact that the bulk of the saving in the United States is done by individuals with incomes of more than $5,000. Savings by those earning less go largely to purchase homes or meet emergencies. It is the $5,000-plus group that purchases securities issued for new capital.

Altho this income group drew only one-eighth of the national income in 1942, it paid more than half the federal income taxes.

Earning Rise for Magnavox in Fiscal Year

Net earnings of the Magnavox company in the fiscal year ended Feb. 28 rose to $626,737, or $1.50 a share, from $401,388, or 96 cents a share, in the preceding year, Richard A. O'Connor, president, said yesterday.

Unfilled military orders for electronic and electro-mechanical equipment exceed 30 million dollars, he said, and few cutbacks are expected because virtually all are for navy and air borne equipment.

Civilian Orders Large

Orders for civilian radio-phonographs exceed the entire 1941 sales of similar products, and in spite of the large orders for military equipment, O'Connor said, the company has reserve production capacity to handle a sizable amount of civilian business should such production be authorized for the radio industry.

Post-war planning has been completed and full advantage may be taken of an unusually favorable market, he said. No serious reconversion problems are expected, because the same personnel, skills, and facilities used in war production will be applied to civilian operations.

Braniff Gain Is Small

Braniff Airways had a net profit of $105,436, or 10 cents a share, in the first quarter of 1945, compared with $98,995 a year earlier, said T. E. Braniff, president. Its planes flew 635,500 more scheduled revenue miles and carried 28,921 more revenue passengers because of the purchase of additional planes from the government.

Five more planes are in process of or awaiting conversion from military to commercial use and will make possible more schedules on present routes as well as the opening of service on the Oklahoma City-Memphis route granted Braniff by the civil aeronautics board last November.

NEW AIR ROUTE TO WEST COAST STARTS JUNE 1

New York, May 12 (AP)—A new transcontinental air line route between New York City and the Pacific northwest will be instituted June 1 when Northwest Airlines makes the first of its "Northwest Passage" Flights, the company said today.

Three round trips between New York City and Seattle are scheduled daily, and a fourth to Minneapolis and St. Paul. Other cities to be served include Detroit, Milwaukee, Portland, Ore., and cities in North Dakota and Montana. Connections will be available to Winnipeg.

METHOD OF RELAXING PRODUCTION CONTROL ASSAILED BY N. A. M.

New York, May 12 (AP)—Current Washington orders relaxing war time production restrictions in many cases seem to be a substitution of one set of controls for another, Walter B. Weisenburger, executive vice president of the National Association of Manufacturers, said today.

Altho it is announced that certain metals will be available for civilian production, "it appears that the war production board is going to continue to direct what such metals can be used for," he said.

As long as prices are regulated, Weisenburger added, "you have to control everything that goes into prices."

Assails Vinson Plan

Washington, D. C., May 12 (AP)—The CIO today criticized Mobilization Director Vinson's reconversion plan contending that the nation would be "caught short" economically by an early Japanese surrender.

Ted F. Silvey, chairman of the CIO reconversion committee, said better "planning is necessary for the eventuality of an early surrender of the Japanese to prevent resultant economic prostration and mass unemployment.

ADDING NEW PRODUCTS

Many manufacturers are planning to add new products to their established lines after the war. Experience gained in war production has been a factor in turning interest to the possibilities of new commercial goods. Dun & Bradstreet reported recently that of 13,666 manufacturers answering a questionnaire which it sent out 37 per cent plan to make new items. In the case of 1,605 larger firms with estimated net worth of 1 million dollars or more, the percentage is 44.

Before the war there had been a trend toward increased diversification of output. Electrical and chemical industries greatly increased the variety of products. Rubber companies introduced new chemical products. Some makers of automobiles and parts also manufactured refrigerators and other household equipment, air conditioning units, and, in the case of General Motors, diesel engines and locomotives, and aircraft engines.

The percentage of manufacturers planning new products is highest in the chemical group—56 per cent of the 904 firms answering the questionnaire. The growth of the synthetic chemical industry, including production of plastics, appears to be partly responsible for this showing. Other industries reporting a high proportion of firms with new products in contemplation, were electrical machinery, rubber, and transportation equipment, including aircraft.

New developments in electronics are expected to make their appearance, including wider applications of industrial electronic devices, television, and civilian uses of radar. Extensive preparations are being made to cultivate the home freezer market, both thru sales of freeze cabinets and refrigerators with built-in freezers. New uses of gas turbine power units are being studied, as well as possible commercial applications of jet propulsion motors.

Among new plastics are polythene and the silicones. There are new methods for treating fabrics and fibers for waterproofing, and to prevent runs in stockings and shrinkage of woolens.

Diversification of products, if effected successfully, helps to stabilize a producer's sales and earnings, but ventures into new fields are often attended by high promotional expenses and risk of loss. Industrial history contains many examples of unprofitable expansion into new fields.

But in contrast with such episodes is the highly successful experience of many enterprises in finding markets for soundly conceived new products, both as new businesses and as additions to regular lines. In fact, that success story makes up a large part of the record of industrial progress in America.

INDUSTRY GROUP ASKS PROGRAM OF TAX REFORM

Directors of the Illinois Manufacturers' association yesterday adopted a tax reform program which they said was necessary for reconversion of industry with the maximum number of jobs.

They demanded immediate reduction in the federal corporate excess profits taxes, and complete elimination, subject to retention of the "carry back" provisions, after Japan has been defeated. Continuation of the tax "will freeze creative work" and "impair individual incentive," they asserted.

The group asked immediate reduction of corporate normal and surtaxes and urged the maturity date of outstanding post-war tax refund bonds be changed to 60 days after May 8, V-E day, to facilitate financing reconversion costs.

Confectioners Ask One Man Rule of Sugar

Washington, D. C., May 12 [Special]—One man control of sugar supplies was proposed today by a special committee of the National Confectioners' association in testimony before the food committee investigating shortages.

Coupled to the proposal was a demand to end the "hopeless and unjustified pyramiding of agencies, each having a stalemate control on the over-all problem of world sugar supply." Philip P. Gott, Chicago, association president, was among the industry representatives who testified.

Pay Roll Cut Forecast

The candy manufacturing industry will be compelled to cut pay rolls and will be unable to rehire veterans if it is forced to accept a production basis less than that of present sugar allocations, the committee, headed by Chairman Anderson [D., N. M.], was told.

Office of price administration officials told the committee yesterday that industrial sugar quotas may be cut another 25 per cent by midsummer. Earlier testimony by industrial sugar users, including manufacturers of soft drinks and bakery goods, had warned further sugar cuts would place them in a precarious position.

Ask About Sirup Substitute

The confectioners' group asked the committee if substitution of sirup had been made a part of the sugar allocation to foreign claimants. It also urged a constant review of sugar allocations to the military branches and to foreign claimants.

Recent developments in the growing sugar shortage, termed "uncomfortably tight" by Rep. Anderson, included the office of war information announcement that "no increase in total sugar supply can be expected for more than a year." This OWI assertion was accompanied by a 25 per cent slash in civilian sugar rations.

AUTHORIZE U. S. AGENCIES TO PAY MORE FOR EGGS

Washington, D. C., May 12 (AP)—The tight egg supply has made it difficult for government procurement agencies to obtain sufficient supplies, the OPA said today, and authorized these agencies to pay slightly more than civilian competitors for extra large eggs. Shippers are permitted to charge 2 cents more a dozen for these larger eggs, but the procurment agencies had not been authorized to pay the higher price.

The new arrangement gives the army a "slight buying advantage over civilians," OPA said. It allows a markup of ½ cent a dozen for each half pound average net weight above an average of 47 net pounds per case for the lot. On eggs for civilians, the 2 cent premium applies only if the net weight reaches 48½ pounds per case.

CARNEGIE WINS APPEAL IN OPA INJUNCTION SUIT

Reversing the District court, the United States Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday ordered dismissal of the OPA suit against Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation for alleged violations of price schedules in the purchase of scrap iron and steel.

Judge John P. Barnes issued a permanent injunction against Carnegie-Illinois last June on OPA charges that 2,585 carloads of steel scrap bought at ceilings for electric furnace use had been used in open hearth furnaces for which pricing is different.

The company said that it notified OPA the metal was not suitable for aviation steel and should not go in electric furnaces, but received no reply at the time. The Circuit court held for Carnegie-Illinois because it immediately complied when OPA objected to its procedure.

Boost Civilian Battery Quota as Army Need Dips

Washington, D. C., May 12 (AP)—As a result of military cutbacks, supplies of dry cell batteries will be sufficient for all civilian purposes in 30 to 60 days, the WPB said today.

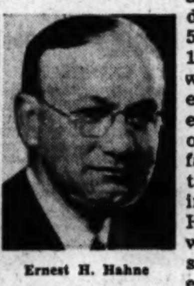
TRADE ACCORDS HELD PERIL TO U. S. ECONOMY

Reject Reciprocity Act, Is Plea

Renewal of the reciprocal trade agreements act with an amendment authorizing reductions up to 50 per cent in 1945 tariff rates would seriously endanger the economic welfare of the American farmer, manufacturer, and laboring man, Ernest H. Hahne, Northwestern university professor of economics, said yesterday in a review of the legislation pending before congress.



Ernest H. Hahne

Hahne said the United States has reduced 1,239 rates, 523 the limit allowed by law, and that many of these concessions were not repaid in kind by other countries because of the unconditional most favored nation clause which has the effect of making a bilateral agreement worldwide in operation.

"Farmers Suffer Most"

"Farm incomes would suffer most," Hahne said. "The countries with whom the trade agreements have been negotiated for the most part have lowered their trade barriers to the products of our industries, while as a matter of reciprocal treatment we opened our markets to their farm products which have often been competitive rather than non-competitive.

"In schedule VII., agricultural products, 246 rate reductions had been granted as of Sept. 1. If to these are added the tariff schedules for sugar, tobacco, flax, and wool, then 389 rate concessions on farm products, or their processed goods have been allowed.

"To buy the products of our industry, many countries have only the products of their soil and natural resources to offer. It must be expected that if the proposed amendment is adopted the degree of competitiveness of products will be higher for farm products than in other sectors of our economy, especially because the majority of concessions granted have been allowed in the schedule for agricultural products."

Some Cuts Affect Industry

Hahne said rate reductions have also been important for certain industries. Among these are metals and manufactures, 239; chemicals, 126; earths, earthenware and glass ware, 116; and sundries, 210.

Evidence submitted to a congressional committee in 1943 showed that rate reductions in 1939 had substantially lowered employment in such industries as zinc, pottery, watches, and coal, Hahne said.

"Many trade unions do not accept the theory that lower duties increase employment," he said.

Discussing the most favored nation clause, Hahne said:

"Under the trade agreement policy a nonagreement country has been able to take advantage of our tariff reductions without granting any concession in return because the unconditional most favored nation clause has been an implied part of that policy. The net effect of rate reductions has been to make them almost world-wide. Japan especially has taken full advantage of this generosity. For this reason the last Republican platform favored only reciprocal bilateral trade agreements, and then only if approved by congress."

INVITE SURPLUS GOODS BUYER TO USE RFC CREDIT

Washington, D. C., May 12 (AP)—The Reconstruction Finance corporation today invited purchasers of government owned surplus goods to make use of RFC credit facilities.

The agency said RFC guarantees of bank loans, plus direct RFC loans where local credit is not available, will enable industry to obtain financing for purchases "with a minimum of paper work and delay."

The RFC also announced it has completed training key personnel for its own sales of surplus goods.

New Outlook for UTILITY STOCKS?

IS a new era for Utilities ahead, based on reviving confidence in a "business man" administration? Despite good percentage gains since 1942, many Utility common stocks are selling at only a fraction of their pre-New Deal highs.

10 Issues for Appreciation

A United Business Service analysis "Utilities Get New Lease on Life" lists 8 holding company common stocks selling from $1 to $24 a share, and two attractive preferreds, with their estimated liquidating value, which in most cases is well above current quotations. Two of these 10 stocks are singled out as most attractive.

10 for Good Income

For the investor seeking better than average income return, with reasonable safety, combined with appreciation prospects, this study presents 10 issues selling from $23 to $79 and offering well secured yields up to 5.5%.

New 'Rubber Spring' Boosts Riding Quality of Automobile

BY PHILIP HAMPSON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Akron, O., May 12—The riding quality of autos, trains, buses, and street cars will probably be improved after the war as a result of the development of a rubber suspension which replaces conventional steel springs, B. F. Goodrich company engineers said today. The new device, described as a revolution in spring design, has been tested severely on about half a million military vehicles, but is not available for civilian use.

The device is called a torsilastic—rubber in torsion spring—and was developed by Goodrich engineers. It consists of a metal shaft and a metal shell. Rubber is bonded to both parts to make the whole an integrated unit. Bonding may be likened to welding the rubber to the metal. The rubber may be synthetic or natural. An arm is attached to the shaft and its movement in conjunction with the elasticity of the rubber provides the springing action.

Ride Termed Smooth

Goodrich representatives who have ridden in an automobile equipped with the device termed the ride marvelously smooth. The car takes bumps far easier than even the most modern auto equipped with conventional leaf or coil springs, they said.

The device has numerous advantages over steel springs, Goodrich engineers said. In addition to improving a car's riding quality, it is said to reduce noise, eliminate the need for lubrication, bearings, bearing parts, and mountings, and reduce weight, rattles, and squeaks. It is said to reduce vibration and as a result should reduce wear on the automobile engine and body.

It has similar advantages when used in buses, railroad cars, street cars, trucks, or trailers, the engineers said.

Peace Applications Many

The device opens the way for an untold number of post-war applications limited only by the imaginations of potential users, they predicted. They already foresee about 125 domestic uses, such as a possible application to a screen door.

The engineers emphasized, however, that special designing and engineering is necessary for each individual application. It must be tailored to the particular use and cannot be used haphazardly as a conventional steel spring may be. Development has been retarded by the war, but Goodrich now intends to proceed with its exploitation.

Grain Prices End Higher as Shorts Cover

Week-end short covering combined with commission house and professional buying gave the grain markets a stronger undertone yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade. Closing prices were about the top with corn advancing ⅞ to 1⅛ cents a bushel, wheat ¼ to ½ and rye 1⅛ to 1⅝. Oats closed unchanged to ⅝ higher and barley ⅛ lower to ⅝ higher.

Continued strength in May corn reflected strong demand for cash corn, which is selling at ceiling prices. When trading started, uncompleted contracts for May corn totaled 4,293,000 bushels.

Professionals Sell Rye

Professional traders sold rye early, but the surplus was absorbed by commission houses and when shorts tried to cover, offerings were light. Prices advanced about 2 cents from the early low with May leading. Strength at Winnipeg where prices were about 2 cents higher affected sentiment because the price is too high to permit shipments to the United States.

Mills bought wheat futures and commission houses' support appeared on an advance of 1⅞ cents a bushel in the price asked European countries for Argentine wheat, and announcement that foreign demand for Canadian wheat appeared to be limited only by the number of vessels available to carry the grain abroad.

Canadian Crop Late

Seeding of spring wheat in Canada is one to three weeks behind schedule and there is apprehension that acreage will be reduced more than was expected.

Oats had an easy undertone on scattered selling. The Canadian export tax was reduced 3 cents last week, but only a small quantity was sold for shipment to this country.

Northwest Airlines Sets Passenger Traffic Peak

Northwest Airlines in the first four months of 1945 carried 78,887 revenue passengers, an all-time record, compared with 38,405 a year earlier, the company reported yesterday.

Chicago Bank Clearings Decrease to 508 Million

Chicago bank clearings last week totaled $508,800,000, compared with $547,900,000 in the preceding week, and $469,700,000 a year ago, the Chicago Clearing House association reported yesterday. The figures:

	Clearings	Balances

RAIL AND PEACE STOCKS LEAD IN WIDE RECOVERY

Steps to Lift Curbs Encourage Buying

New York, May 12 (AP)—Rails and peace stocks bounced back today to lead a brisk extension of the recovery begun yesterday after the general decline which was touched off by V-E day.

Helping the move were the further steps taken by the war production board to lift restrictions in many lines as an aid to quick transition to civilian goods manufacture. Traders dubious of reconversion difficulties still were numerous, but even they seemed less apprehensive. Much short covering and reinstatement of commitments resulted.

Average Recoups 0.6 of Loss

Prices improved from the start, and advances of fractions to more than a point were well in the majority at the close. Transfers of 560,000 shares compared with 930,000 last Saturday and were smallest since April 7.

The Associated Press 60 stock average came back 0.6 of a point to 64.5 but was down 0.8 for the week. Of 751 issues traded, 426 advanced, only 122 declined, and 203 were unchanged.

Conspicuous on the rise were Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Great Northern, Northern Pacific, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Hudson Motors, Goodyear, Goodrich, Western Union "A," American Telephone, Standard Oil [New Jersey], Martin Parry, Texas Pacific Land Trust, Douglas Aircraft, Johns-Manville, and Philip Morris.

RAIL LIENS EXTEND RISE

New York, May 12 (AP)—Railroad bonds extended their advance in light dealings today. Among widest gains were Third Avenue adjustment 5s of '60, up 3½; Rock Island refunding 4s of '34, up 2; Seaboard refunding 4s of '59 up 1¼, and St. Paul and Kansas City short line 4½s, of '41, up 2¼. Lehigh Valley stamped 5s of 2003 advanced 1⅛, Missouri Pacific issues rose fractions to more than a point, Chicago and Eastern Illinois incomes of '97 rose 1½, and Baltimore and Ohio 2000 stamped "D" gained 1¼.

The industrial average was unchanged. Utility bonds showed slight gains. In the foreign list advances were made by some loans of Canada, Peru, and Denmark. United States government obligations were steady.

CHICAGO PRICES CLIMB

Prices advanced in a 26,000 turnover on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday. Volume leaders, all up fractions, were Peabody Coal, Aviation corporation, Dixie Cup, Central and South West Utilities, and Middle West corporation, which closed at a new 1945 peak. National Pressure Cooker also established a new 1945 high on a 3 point gain.

Bath Scrubber MAY BECOME $200 MILLION BUSINESS

...says The Wall Street Journal

Sponge rubber—the same sort of material that speeds your bath—is slated for a postwar sales volume of $200 million a year.

Six big rubber companies plan many uses for the foamy substance ... ranging from mattresses and furniture cushions to moisture-resistant packing for machine parts.

In reporting this prospect to its readers, The Wall Street Journal described the four types of sponge rubber ... told how natural rubber compares with synthetic for the purpose ... how producers expect to pare raw-material costs ... and what effect cost reductions would have on retail prices.

That's the way The Wall Street Journal does its daily industrial reporting. Gives you all the important particulars. Every field of industry is constantly watched and studied to keep you promptly informed of significant developments.

Our acceptance of subscriptions ($18 a yr. in U. S.) may be subject to delay because of wartime limitations on publishers' use of paper.

PRICE CONTROL DENIED IN A. & P. COURT STRUGGLE

Favored Treatment by Suppliers Alleged

Questioning planned to prove that the New York Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company and its officers and subsidiaries attempted to fix prices of food products and received favored treatment from suppliers is being used by government attorneys in the four week old trial of the food chain on charges of anti-trust violations.

Defense attorneys have denied flatly the price-fixing charge. They answered the second by contending that A. & P. is not the recipient of extraordinary consideration thru the receipt of advertising allowances or discounts which suppliers give for the promotion of their products. Many other retailers receive these offsets, testimony showed.

Offers Letter in Evidence

The price fixing allegation came before the court thru the introduction by Earl Jinkinson, assistant government prosecutor, of a letter which purportedly said, "We will do all we can to control prices" of two brands of canned peas and corn. Jinkinson said the letter bore the rubber stamp signature of an A. & P. official.

Defense Attorney William Acton told Federal Judge Lindley the unnamed official in question had denied writing the letter.

Richard Wheatley, Louisville, Ky., president of the Wheatley Mayonnaise company, testified he allowed the central west division of A. & P. a 5 per cent advertising allowance on potato salad, and the Regal Stores and Standard Grocery, both of Indianapolis, each 3 per cent.

Many Get Discounts

Wheatley said his firm allowed advertising discounts to "hundreds of buyers," basing the rate of discount on the amount of promotion the purchaser could provide.

The company has introduced letters from A. & P. to Wheatley which said the 5 per cent discount granted was to be used in promotion of Wheatley products and that any allowance offered A. & P. was to be made available to all customers able to provide promotion.

The A. & P. contends that its pioneering of mass distribution methods in the food industry made it possible to put goods once considered luxuries on the average man's table.

SELL MAXIMUM SURPLUS FAST, ADVISES BARUCH

Washington, D. C., May 12 (AP)—Bernard M. Baruch has urged a policy of "selling as much as possible as soon as possible," the surplus property board reported today. Baruch, co-author of the Baruch-Hancock report on war and post-war adjustment, advised members that until civilian industries are restored to volume production "it will be comparatively easy to dispose of things at good prices and with little disturbance to trade."

"If in doubt, sell," Baruch recommended. "Things like trucks, tires, and all kinds of machinery that can be used in road building and in farm and civilian life should be turned loose quickly to bridge the hiatus between the current great demand and the ability to get production in volume.

"The disposal of things not needed for war will be helpful in the distribution of food abroad and the movement of all kinds of products in this country."

TRADE ACCORDS TERMED PATH TO FREED EXPORTS

Washington, D. C., May 12 (AP)—Charles P. Taft, director of the state department's office of transportation and communications policy, today said that extension of reciprocal trade agreements would result in early lifting of restrictions on American export trade.

He told the house ways and means committee that congress should approve the Bretton Woods monetary fund and international bank, "get those institutions operating as soon as possible," approve extension of the trade agreements and give the President additional authority to lower tariffs.

The international bank and monetary fund, Taft said, "Are both essential to the development of American commerce."

"Cape Cod" for Charm

New "Cape Cod" Home, designed by Royal Barry Wills, A.I.A., noted Boston architect.

A Timken for Comfort, Convenience, Cleanliness

CAPE COD HOMES have won favor for their charm, livability and all-around utility. But whether you choose Cape Cod, Colonial, Early American or Modern architecture for your new home, you can be sure of more comfort, more convenience, and the utmost in cleanliness, permanently, if you specify time-proved, economical Timken Silent Automatic Oil Heating.

NEW AND IMPROVED Timken Oilfurnaces, Oilboilers, Conversion Units and Water Heaters will be available for homes of all sizes and types when wartime restrictions are relaxed. Each will be built around the famous Timken Wall-Flame Oil Burner which gets up to one-third more heat from every drop of oil. This famous burner is so simple it has only one moving part, and is so fully automatic that it even lubricates itself.

PLAN FOR BETTER LIVING . . . better heating . . . now! Send for our new 16-page booklet full of home plans and ideas. It's free. See your Timken Dealer, too, and place a Reservation Order with him (no obligation) to insure earlier delivery of new, trouble-free Timken products.

REMEMBER, Timken quality actually costs you less in the long run.

BIBLE INSTITUTE PLANS TWO BIG NEW BUILDINGS

Post-War Program Cost Set at 2 Million

BY AL CHASE
[Real Estate Editor]

Moody Bible institute yesterday outlined a post-war building expansion which will give it a new six story radio and music building to cost about $1,500,000 and a $500,000 auditorium to seat more than 3,000 persons. H. C. Crowell, executive vice president and son of the late Henry P. Crowell, former chairman of the board of trustees, said construction will begin as soon as war restrictions on building are removed.

The radio and music building will be erected at the northwest corner of N. La Salle st. and W. Chicago av. on the site of the famous old Moody church, completed in 1875 by the evangelist Dwight L. Moody. The church was razed in 1939.

Houses 2 Radio Stations

Designed by Fugard, Burt & Wilkinson, Chicago architects, the new structure will house the institute's two radio stations—WMBI and WDLM [frequency modulation]—which will occupy four floors. There will be 14 studios, including two with 325 seats each. Provision will be made for installation of television facilities when conditions warrant it.

The fifth floor will be reserved for future use and the top story will be occupied by the institute's music school. A transcription library of gospel music is planned.

The entire building will be air conditioned. It will be 120 by 120 feet and will be of red brick with stone trim, harmonizing architecturally with the tall Crowell hall administration building adjoining it on the north, which was named for Henry P. Crowell.

Honor Former Officers

The auditorium building, the foundations and basement of which were installed in 1938, is at the southwest corner of La Salle and Chestnut st. It will be known as the Torrey-Gray auditorium, in honor of the late Dr. Reuben A. Torrey, superintendent, and the late Dr. James M. Gray, president of the institute. Working plans have been drawn.

It will round out the row of four buildings extending from Chicago av. to Chestnut st. The seven story women's dormitory building, built several years ago, is between the administration building and the new auditorium.

The Moody Bible institute was founded in 1886. It has 1,000 day students, 600 students in the night school, and 20,000 on its correspondence school rolls. There are 350 employes in the institute.

Jewelry Company Leases Michigan Avenue Store

Morris Shatkin, wholesale and retail dealer in antiques and jewelry, has leased the store at 318 N. Michigan av. for a term of years thru Edward F. Butterworth of Frank S. Slosson & Co. Sudler & Co. represented the building owner.

Flats and Stores at 73d and Jeffery Sold—$81,500

Queen Anne Apartments, Inc., yesterday sold the southwest corner of Jeffery av. and E. 73d st., improved with 21 flats and four stores, for $81,500 to Frank Caliendo.

Realty Board Outings

The West Side Real Estate board will hold its annual spring outing May 23 at Edgewood Valley Country club on Willow Springs rd., south of La Grange. James J. Curtis, chairman, said there would be all-day golf, softball, horseshoes, and other games.

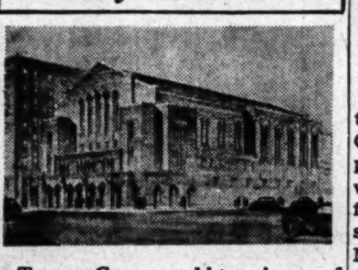
The La Grange Real Estate board will hold a Realtors' day outing May 16 at Acacia Country club. C. E. Maley is chairman of the program which includes golf and bridge, followed by dinner.

Moody Institute to Expand

(Story in adjoining column)

How Moody Bible institute buildings on La Salle st., between Chicago av. and Chestnut st., will look when radio and music building (No. 1) and the Torrey-Gray auditorium (No. 4) are completed. No. 2 is Crowell hall, administration building. No. 3 is women's dormitory.

Moody Auditorium



Torrey-Gray auditorium of Moody Bible institute to be built at the southwest corner of N. La Salle and W. Chestnut sts.

CHURCH BUYS BUILDING

The Mid-West Bible church has bought from Chicago Title and Trust company, trustee, the one story building at 3441 N. Cicero av., for $38,500. Purchased thru Marks & Co., it will be used as a religious school.

RECORD CHANGER MAKER BUILDING PLANT ADDITION

Work has started on a $300,000 three story addition to the Webster-Chicago corporation's one story plant at 5622 W. Bloomingdale av., which will add 60,000 square feet of floor space to the company's 53,000 square feet. Designed by Carl A. Metz, the building is being built by Campbell, Laurie & Lautermilch, industrial contractors. Webster-Chicago, maker of automatic record changers for radio sets, now has a pay roll of 1,000 and an indicated backlog of peace time orders of approximately 6 million dollars.

Diebold Leases Zork Space on Michigan Av.

Diebold, Inc., known for many years as the Diebold Safe and Lock company, has leased thru Winston & Co. the first floor space at 201 N. Michigan av., formerly occupied by David Zork company, furniture, and will move there from 210 W. Monroe st. as soon as a modernization program has been completed. Diebold manufactures and retails office and bank vault equipment. It is a large maker of armor plate for airplanes, with a plant at Canton, O. The Zork company will continue on the second and sixth floors of No. 201 until a permanent location has been obtained, David Zork said.

RADIO FIRM BUYS BUILDING

Herman R. Rose, president of General Television and Radio corporation, 1240 N. Homan av., said yesterday that he had purchased the building at 2701 Lehmann ct., formerly occupied by Press Wireless, and will occupy it soon.

CHICAGO AREA BUILDING SETS 18 MONTH HIGH

Building of all types in the Chicago metropolitan area last month exceeded 9 million dollars, a high since October, 1943, the monthly survey of new construction by Bell Savings and Loan association showed yesterday. The total was $9,178,348, compared with $6,701,391 in April, 1944, and $6,653,479 in March, 1945.

Home building last month, however, was substantially less than in April, 1944 or March, 1945. Permits were issued last month for 596 homes to cost $2,744,326, compared with 782 at $3,391,777 in April, 1944, and 996 at $4,755,362 in March, 1945.

Home building in 90 of Chicago's suburbs was smaller in April than in March or in April, 1945. Permits were issued for 255 homes to cast $1,455,329, against 423 at $2,124,101 in April, 1944; 486 at $2,549,853 in March, 1945. April this year thus reversed the spring trend.

The largest number of suburban homes reported last month was in Gary which had 40 permits, at $178,184. Hammond, Ind., was a close second with 37 to cost $203,000. Arlington Heights was third with 30 at $180,600.

Reports on other suburbs were: Des Plaines, 24 at $124,800; La Grange, 23 at $127,700; Evanston, 23 at $120,400; Park Ridge, 19 at $165,625; Broadview, 15 at $74,350; Western Springs, 11 at $94,000.

Chicagoans Buy Westgate, Marion Corner in Oak Pk.

The two story building at the northwest corner of Marion st. and Westgate, Oak Park, was sold yesterday for an undisclosed price by the Oak Park National bank, trustee, to Herbert C. and Ruth E. Froberg of Chicago. The building was built by George R. Hemingway and the entire second floor formerly occupied by his real estate organization. He sold it in 1933. His firm will manage it. The first floor has been occupied for many years by Gregory's Sports shop.

BUILDERS OF FINER HOMES

INVITE you to visit Scarsdale Estates in Arlington Heights. You can select your building site now as well as contract with us for one of these lovely ranch houses, pictures of which are now on display.

Scarsdale Estates

adjoining Scarsdale to the south, is zoned exclusively for ranch type houses. Each of the 97 building sites is 100x200 feet or larger. Thousands of elms and shade trees have been planted to beautify this property.

RANCH HOUSE SKETCHES AND FLOOR PLANS

20 now are ready for your inspection and approval. Our architects have been working on these layouts for more than 18 months. They represent the most livable houses we have ever designed and are sure to please the most discriminating buyer. Shown for the first time last Sunday, they created a sensation. Many of these houses will be built of lannon stone.

THE EARLY PLANNER WILL BUILD FIRST

Not only will the early planner build first, but he will probably get his house 5% to 10% cheaper than if he delays until every one is ready. Then he may have to wait a year or longer for his house, as well as pay more for it.

YOU CAN CONTRACT FOR YOUR HOUSE NOW

and be all ready to start as soon as the green light is flashed from Washington, which we think may be sooner than anticipated. If you prefer to do business with your own contractor, select your building site NOW, and we will give you ABSOLUTELY FREE 12 complete sets of working drawings of any one of these 20 de luxe ranch houses, thereby saving you $300 to $500.

DRIVE OUT TODAY

Drive out Northwest-highway, Route 14, to Arlington Heights. Turn left at first stoplight entering town 5 blocks to Scarsdale Estates office on State-rd. For week day appointments, call State 5452.

IF YOU ARE PLANNING TO BUILD AFTER THE WAR
NOW IS THE TIME TO SELECT THE LOCATION FOR YOUR HOME

The Lakewood Lodge Estates offer the most desirable, highly restricted home site for the country minded.

Here you have hilly, timbered tracts where the natural ravines constitute the boundaries, rather than just so many front feet. There are winding, gravel roads thru beautiful oak and hickory timber.

There is an 18 hole golf course, well maintained, operated in connection with the property.

If you like to ride, your horse can be kept in our stable, and you will have over a thousand acres of hilly, timbered land to ride over, without going on the highway.

If you like winter sports you have skating, skiing, and tobogganing without leaving home.

There is fast service on the Chicago and North Western from Barrington for commuters.

If you are interested in building in the country, drive out Higgins-road, No. 72, to highway No. 25, turn north on No. 25 for 1½ miles. Entrance is directly opposite Bonnie Dundee Golf Course clubhouse. Our office is on the property.

SOUTHERN PROPERTIES, RESORTS

FLORIADA HOME AND GROVE
Nothing offers greater charm or romance than a waterfront home in the midst of a beautiful citrus grove—a lovely home ideally situated for best advantage as to view of the river, the sunsets and the wonderful vistas thru the rows of green trees laden with yellow fruit—orange blossom time is the sweetest period when the birds and bees sing and buzz happily the livelong day—truly an enchanting spot! A place of beauty and relaxation—location and house well adapted for Convalescent home or Fishing lodge—or a comfortable home with all desirable features that make a real home; 45 acres with 40 acres in producing citrus trees—two story house overlooking the river, 500 ft. concrete seawall. This choice river front location is within three miles of Fort Myers, a tropical little city located on the Cross-State Waterway—Municipal Yacht Basin—fine fishing near-by. This fine home was built by a wealthy Kentuckian [now deceased]—main residence has four large bedrooms each with tiled bath—many attractive features including central heat, electric elevator, cellar; in fact, every convenience for year round comfort. Four room modern bungalow for guest house or servants and a cottage in the grove for caretaker. This wonderful set-up is available at a price far below reproduction value—it has much to offer an investor—restful environment, boating, fishing, fine climate—and income from the grove. Available for a limited time at $45,000. Airviews upon request. Live longer and happier in Sunny South Florida! Contact the

LOG CABINS

WEST SHORE OF PADDOCK LAKE. RESTRICTED—SECLUDED. 52 MILES NORTH OF CHICAGO.

Come and see my logs! Old-fashioned stripped, natural color logs — stacked and ready for the "go" signal when building again gets under way. Cleverest log cabin designs you've ever seen. Many on property in scenic settings.

A FEW ACTUALLY AVAILABLE NOW!

Select site now and reserve logs, knotty pine or oak paneling for your cabin. Materials are in stock—and were produced from my timber land, which eliminates middlemen and assures economy of construction.

DRIVE OUT ANY DAY.

Take U. S. 41 [Skokie] to Wis. 50 [5 miles north of state line]; left on 50 exactly 8 miles to main entrance. Or Milwaukee-av. through Antioch to Wis. 50—then right one block.

Geo. M. Illges, Owner and Builder. Mail address: SALEM, WIS.

GLIDERS GO TO BATTLE

By LARRY RUE

Paris

ON MARCH 24 the mission of the 1st allied air borne army under Lt. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton was a simple one. It was to land behind the enemy lines in front of the British 2d army to pinch off the area of wooded high ground immediately overlooking the Lower Rhine between Wesel and Rees. From this ridge the enemy could direct observed artillery and mortar fire on any Rhine crossings.

Two air borne divisions—the American 17th and the British 6th—were assigned the task of capturing this area between the Rhine and the Issel river and if possible to establish bridgeheads across the Issel, so that when the British heavy armor moved across the Rhine it would have an open road onto the Westphalian plain north of the Ruhr.

It is on the record that they were eminently successful, for within a few hours they had linked up with the British 2d army two miles east of the Rhine, as well as capturing intact six bridges across the Issel, about nine miles inland.

This air borne operation was the largest ever carried out in a single day. The biggest single day before was the second day of the paratroop assault in Holland. This was one-fourth again as large and in it were used 1,366 gliders, 1,673 (Continued on page two) tow planes and troop carriers, as well as 248 Liberators, which dropped supplies with parachutes. This did not include the tactical and strategical air forces, which supplied air cover and patroled over the target area to bomb and strafe enemy troop concentrations and gun positions wherever located. Heavies of the 8th air force were assigned the task of bombing all German air fields within range of the drop zone and did such a good job that the Luftwaffe was unable to get off the ground to intervene in these operations. Not one single plane was lost thru Luftwaffe intervention in this tremendous operation, which took nearly four hours to complete.

I flew on a tow plane with the 439th group of the United States air borne troop carrier forces. This group, commanded by 31 year old Col. Charles H. Young of Wellington, Kas., carried the heaviest lift assigned to any one group and had the longest haul to the drop zone. Our load consisted of 144 gliders towed by 72 C-47s. Each glider carried two tons of heavy equipment, ranging from jeeps to mortar and artillery pieces, and a crew of three—pilot, co-pilot, and a third man to help handle the equipment.

All plans and preparations for these operations were "top secret." These are the type of operations in which loss of life, material, and even success itself are in inverse ratio to the foreknowledge the enemy may have. When, where, in what strength? All these things are of vital importance to the enemy.

Days before the jump-off, the 1st allied air borne army had been turned over to Field Marshal Montgomery's 21st army group, and altho this information was not officially broadcast thru the rank and file of the air borne army units who were to participate in the attack, these men are not nitwits and could see from the plans and preparations they were making that their target would be some place in front of this group. And it was also easy for them to deduce that since the British 2d army officially had not been on the offensive since the attack for the Rhine began before February, this army would again appear in battle.

The squadrons had been sealed in for three days before the eve of the jump-off, so that no civilian ears would learn anything of their plans and preparations. One girl who was found in a restricted area that morning was being held incommunicado by our M. P.'s. They had no evidence against her, except that she had said she had been with one of our officers, spoke English, and had in her wallet several photographs of American soldiers. The secret, however, that she must have known, justified, in the opinion of the M. P.'s, her temporary incarceration. She became hysterical and tried to commit suicide.

Such was the effort to maintain security on this field. Yet these boys, who are kept segregated from civilian contact, could hear all this time the BBC broadcasting news that "Field Marshal Montgomery's preparations for his next move are being concealed behind a huge smoke screen."

Not only did the BBC continue to advertise operations scheduled for the immediate future, but the Paris edition of the British Daily Mail, as early as March 13, boldly headlined the admonition "Watch Monty's Next Move." And even the dignified London Times carried an editorial on Friday—the day before the jump-off—under a heading tipping off the date: "On the Eve." Moreover, on the Monday following the big jump-off, this newspaper frankly admitted that the place of the attack could not have been secret, either. It said: "Behind the smoke screen there was good reason to suppose that the British 2d army was in waiting; and the very fact that this veteran fighting formation, famous for its exploits in the Norman battles, had not been named in accounts of the operations that culminated in the capture of Cologne, suggested that it was being reserved for some dramatic intervention at the very climax of the battle of the Rhine."

The Times also pointed out that "this new passage of the right flank of the river is of a different order of importance from any achieved, in that Montgomery's armies have set their feet upon a road that leads across open plains into the heart of Germany."

The British advance propaganda obviously disturbed the air borne soldiers turned over to the field marshal's command for this task. If there was any reason for it—like, say, a war of nerves against the enemy—they were not let in on the secret.

Some actually suggested that it was a last minute British attempt to get their armies back in the headlines after the brilliant action on the part of the American 9th, 1st, 3d, and 7th armies. Whatever the reasons, the flyers and paratroopers didn't like it. One could see faces fall around the radio when the BBC persisted in repeating mention of Montgomery's preparations and the smoke screen.

Brig. Gen. Floyd L. Parks, chief of staff of the 1st allied air borne army command, told us that the higher-ups in the air borne command, too, had been perturbed by these persistent warnings to the enemy, especially when the front was so definitely located and the type of operation generally understood.

"We, however, decided," he said, "it was one of those things like Notre Dame, before playing a high school team, telling them outright that Joe Dokes would carry the ball . . . and it wouldn't matter, since they wouldn't have the strength to do anything about it anyway."

Yet, until the take-off and even after the last briefing precautions were taken on our field, all telephone calls and communications were restricted for the use of superior officers and for routine communications exclusively.

Members of the 439th group packed the big theater in a well known town in France the night before the jump-off. This group already had distinguished itself in carrying reënforcements, weapons, food, and supplies in planes and gliders to our paratroops behind the enemy lines in Normandy, later in southern France, Holland, and Bastogne. It had received the Presidential unit citation for the part it played in the June 6 invasion and even that day had sent the plane that made the first glider snatch, evacuating our wounded from the east bank of the Rhine.

Outside the theater military police were guarding all doors to see that no news of preparations going on at this airport leaked out.

Out on one runway of the air field, 72 transport planes, each attached to two gliders, were marshaled so close together that individual take-offs could be timed to a matter of seconds to prevent fouling of rope or scrambling of gliders or planes.

A rehearsal the day before had shown that this tremendous formation could be air borne in 36 minutes, each plane being timed to follow the take-off of the preceding plane in exactly thirty-second intervals. It was the first time that two gliders would be towed by one plane in a military operation, and while it took all the power and practically all that remained of the runway—they all made it, altho there were a few close shaves.

It was one of the most thoro briefings I have heard. It was conducted in general high spirits and good humor and lacked that keyed-up nervous strain that sometimes is evident when men are given their last-minute instructions before going over the top to be a target for enemy bullets. But these lads—they were only two or three years out of civilian life—now were old-timers, knew their stuff, and had been decorated for valor.

Their own experience had been shared and was reflected in that of their leaders. Colonel Young had been a civil air line pilot in 1939. Their operations officer, Maj. Woodrow W. Smeck, 28, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fl. R. Smeck, live at 1500 N. Columbus st., Lancaster, O., the man who conducted the briefing, did not know anything about war three years ago. He was then assistant manager of a big glass manufacturing company in Lancaster. He went on his first mission on D-day—his twenty-eighth birthday. On the morrow he would celebrate another anniversary—the date he enlisted as a cadet, exactly three years before.

He, too, like Young, is narrow-hipped, slim, tall, and—for want of Jesse hall, named for University of Missouri's eighth president.

By ELEANOR NANGLE

Columbia, Mo.

THE DISTINGUISHING feature physically of the University of Missouri is undoubtedly "the Columns." The distinguishing feature academically is perhaps its world-famous school of journalism.

The Columns are a row of tall circular shafts that stand somewhat starkly on the lawn of the horseshoe-shaped Francis quadrangle. Once the portico of the university's early Academic hall, these stone sentinels were all that remained after a fire in 1892 that destroyed most of the institution's buildings. With a nice sentiment, they were preserved and have since become the university's majestic and much-cherished landmark.

Just beyond them stands Jesse hall, a fine if somewhat florid old red brick building, dome capped, that dominates the quadrangle. In its beginnings—and if you'd like to know exactly how long ago that was, consider that Missouri celebrated her centennial in 1939—all of the university was on the Francis quadrangle.

Since about 1910 it has had two campuses, the old one, familiarly known as the Red campus, and newer East, known as the White campus, where all buildings are handsome and harmonious Gothic edifices of creamy gray. East, which has as its own landmark a magnificent memorial tower, trails off into the extensive fields of the school of agriculture.

The "J" school, as its noted school of journalism is invariably referred to here, is on the old campus. The first such school to be established, Missouri's opened classes in 1908 on the second floor of Jesse hall. Today it occupies two buildings, Jay H. Neff and Walter Williams halls, connected by a tower that houses the school's historical library of journalistic material. It is one of the university's largest schools and by all odds its most famous one.

At Missouri no student may enter the journalism school until he or she has completed satisfactorily 60 semester hours in liberal arts, which must include varying hour requirements in a foreign language, laboratory science, English, logic, American government, and economics. Additional requirements for graduation from the J school are special work in history and art classes. And from the beginning the school's method of instruction has centered about its own laboratory newspaper, the Columbia Missourian, which is not to be compared with the usual "school paper," generally edited and published by students for students and containing news about students.

The laboratory paper of Missouri is an entirely adult community newspaper on which members of the faculty serve as editors and department heads and the dean of the school of journalism acts as editor and publisher. All work on the paper is done by students, but under the direction of the faculty, who are experienced professional journalists.

In this clinic newspaper, edited and printed in Neff hall, students combine their academic work with practical training in all phases of newspaper operation—editorial, advertising, mechanical, and even circulation. On D-day, for example, the paper's circulation department even pressed students—mostly girls now, of course—into service as newsies for its early extra.

Missouri has graduated some of the most distinguished and scholarly journalists, many of whom return from time to time as distinguished guests for "journalism week," an annual conference on the problems of the profession which is of national importance.

A GOOD TIERNEY

LOOKING at HOLLYWOOD with HEDDA HOPPER

Gene Tierney and Henry Fonda, back in 1942, in "Rings on Her Fingers."

Gene is a pinup girl as well as actress and well dressed woman.

GENE TIERNEY

(Copyright: 1945: The Chicago Tribune)

Hollywood

A COMMITTEE of connoisseurs in chic headed by Lady Mendl recently named Gene Tierney the best dressed girl in moviedom.

Just prior to that a national magazine listed Gene among the top four beauties of the screen, the others being Hedy Lamarr, Ingrid Bergman, and Linda Darnell.

And since Twentieth-Century-Fox's talent poll evidently puts her at the acting top—she's come off with all the best roles the lot has to offer in 1945—I thought it time to find out how Gene feels about life in general.

It's amusing to know that the next two Tierney releases will not display Gene's modern sartorial talents. When I came on the "Dragonwyck" set, where she was making a scene with Vincent Price, she was wearing the fashions of 1944. And in "A Bell for Adano," which is being shown in theaters this month, she's clad in the picturesque tatterdemalion of a peasant girl in a captured Italian town. This is the one in which Gene goes blonde—yes, it's a wig, and it's most becoming.

But not until "Leave Her to Heaven," which Gene begins in late spring, will she wear a chic modern wardrobe again—the sort of clothes that made "Laura" such a hit with women.

Since nobody has gotten around to awarding Gene the medal for brains—such evidently not being included in obvious star assets—let me be the one to name her one of the most nimble minds in one of the steadiest little heads ever crowned by laurels. Designers love to create bizarre and extravagant whimsies to emphasize her intriguing face and rhythmic design. But in her private life and tastes Gene is conservative to a degree. Wears little or no make-up, and her shining brown hair is the precise shade nature gave her. However, she confessed laughingly, she had a moment of temptation to go blonde after seeing rushes of "A Bell for Adano"—"because blonde hair is so very flattering."

So, because she's young, superlovely, mother of a 15-month-old daughter, Daria, and a happy wife, Gene's fans have come to think of her as a sort of high priestess of the modern theme. A girl of tomorrow. Nothing is farther from the truth.

"Hedda," she said, "sometimes I really think our fans believe we live in a sort of crystal and plastic dream world. But I'm not looking forward to jumping into a helicopter and landing on the studio roof instead of driving down the canyon each morning with good old Butch, my police dog, on the front seat beside me. And, aside from the fact that I'm honestly circumspect in personal tastes, I'm really not looking forward to the day when television, all-out air transport, and chores done by robots in solar houses will be a reality. Think how much charm it will take from living. Besides, few of the young things of today realize it will take years and years to develop such living. A lot of my friends seem to feel the post-victory year will be something worthy of Jules Verne's imagination."

I suggested she was probably influenced by the character of Miranda, the lovely heroine of Ernst Lubitsch's production "Dragonwyck." The first half of the 19th century, with its candlelight, horse-drawn vehicles, and complete freedom from electric bells and appliances, had its points.

Gene agreed with me on the becomingness of candlelight and the lure of bustles and basques—for a few hours. But her contention is that in modern living we adopt the practical things for our daily needs. "When automobiles came in we saw the advantage of quick travel, so we used them; but we didn't give up our horses—those of us who could afford them. And modern furniture can never completely displace beautiful antiques. The post-war materials will be wonderful in their practicality—fadeproof, dustproof, and fireproof, for sun porches and kitchens. Glass fiber materials that will be treated to be germproof as well, for nurseries. Everlasting wear from some of them. But we'll still want the fragile and lovely old things with perishable beauty. We'll want to keep the softness and all the charm of living—the patina of the past."

Gene has just as definite ideas about fashion, too. Altho she has been named the best dressed woman in Hollywood, she frowns on extremes. Boiled down to a couple of essentials, her don'ts on dress come to:

"Don't be conspicuous. Conspicuous make-up, color, line, detail, and combinations violate the rules of good taste. The well dressed woman looks just right for the occasion—blends into the moment. The rocket technique is all right sometimes for the screen or stage, but not in private life."

Another don't on which Gene is quite emphatic is the shoulder padding fast becoming a mania in present-day design.

"Don't wear football shoulders," she says, "altho I must admit I was born with a strong shoulder structure and have less need for padding than most people. A moderately padded shoulder is flattering and smart. The moment a woman completely disregards what is conventionally declared to be the chic gesture of her time she again becomes conspicuous. So modify the current theme to suit your need and good taste."

Gene is thrilled at playing the role of the evil sister in "Leave Her to Heaven."

"Ellen has acting quality, and that is what an actress should consider," she says. "The bad girls of fiction have given more opportunities to stars then the sweet young things."

I remember when Gene Tierney played half-castes, outlaw girls, Eurasians—for a time she was almost as typed in the sarong as Dotty Lamour, or threatened to be. She didn't rise easily into the high place on the screen in which she now finds herself, altho she is practically cameraproof, undoubtedly one of the best lens subjects in the industry today. She has graciousness and much personal charm, and a complexion of flawless beauty.

Moreover, she's going places, too.

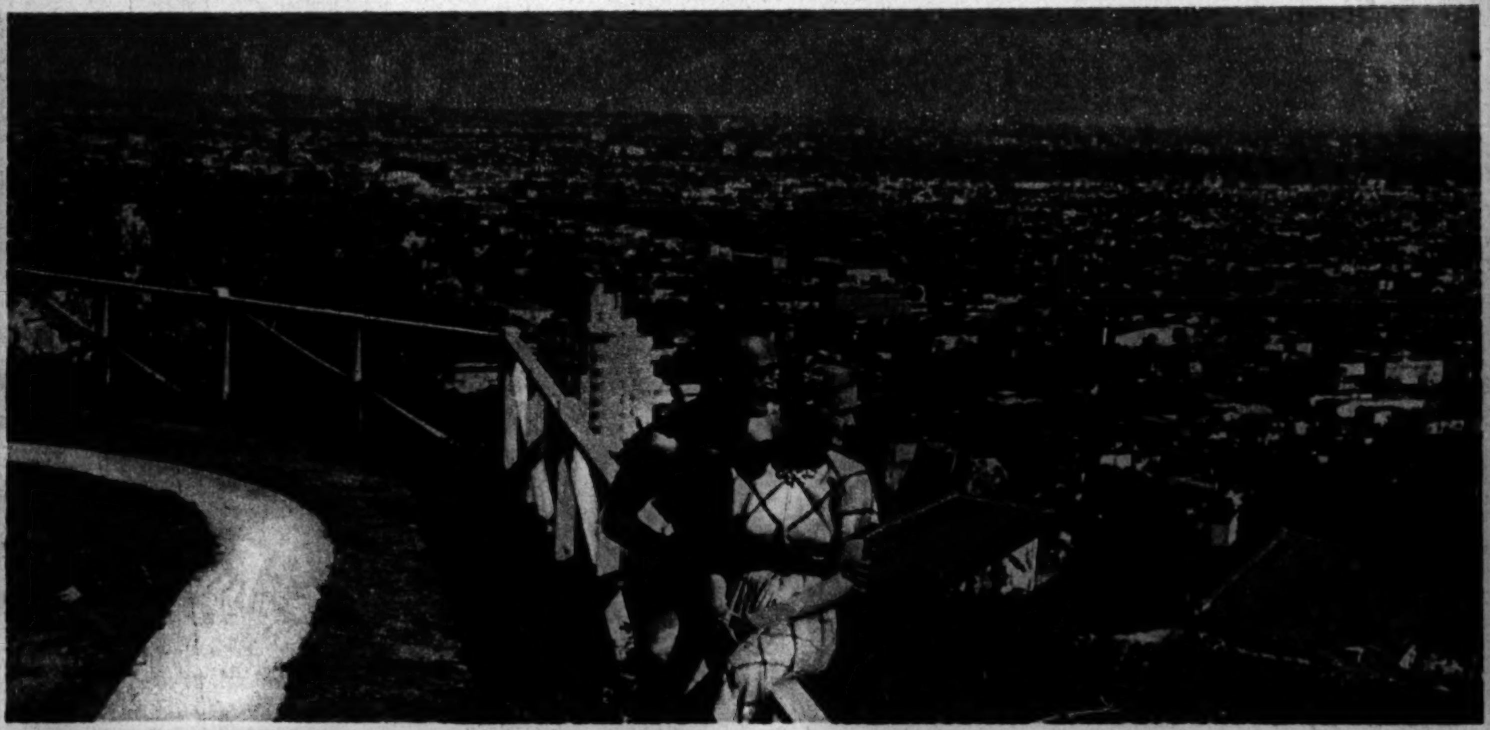
● You know her as Veronica Lake. She is Mrs. Andre De Toth. When she made her first movie appearance as a bit player she was known as Constance Keane. And she was born Constance Ockelman. That was on Nov. 14, 1922, in Brooklyn. This little lady of many names has had a spectacular career. Her work in "I Wanted Wings" so impressed audiences that she was made a star in her next Paramount picture.

Relaxing at home before starting her new Paramount picture, "The Blue Dahlia," with Alan Ladd, Veronica Lake welcomes the Tribune photographer, Louis Wolf, to her home high above Hollywood.

At right: The De Toths in the study of their modern eight room home.



From their patio Veronica and her husband, Andre De Toth, Hungarian-born movie director, look out over Hollywood, a thousand feet below, and into the distance 30 miles.

Yes, there's a swimming pool. Veronica is a good swimmer, but at the moment she is merely helping the handyman skim leaves off the water.

From her mother Veronica gets her small stature. She is only 5 feet 2 inches tall, weighs 98 pounds. Her mother, the former Veronica Trimble, weighs 92, stands 4 feet 8½ inches.

The Truth About the Teens

By SHEILA JOHN DALY
(Copyright: 1945: The Chicago Tribune)

IS IT TRUE what they say about teen-agers? Are all high school guys and gals just dance-crazy, fad-mad, self-centered characters who lead a gay date-to-date existence filled with nothing but dances, parties, and hay rides, all set to jivey background music by Harry James? In most of the movies, radio shows, and magazine articles in which adults have tried to discover the real youth of this generation they have failed to get past the slick chicks and shrewd dudes to the other teen-agers—those numerous interesting characters who happen to have ambition, ideas, and a slight dash of common sense besides.

Many a sharp fellow or girl has heard the adage "You're only young once" and added a personal afterthought: "And I guess I'll make the most of it." Between homework, cokes with the crowd, and basketball games, the more thoughtful characters have found time to think of what they hope to do after the four year stretch and have decided that high school is the best place to get in the groundwork, the walking around work.

Young and pretty Betty Betz, famous designer, illustrator, and writer just out of her teens, did her first commercial art work while still in high school. Now her "teen-aged Bettys," long-haired, long-legged characters with wool socks and long pearls, have become familiar thru the pages of many magazines. Tho Betty has never been to art school or studied designing, she recently made front page news with her first original showing of clothes designed especially for teen-agers.

The young designer knew what teen-agers wanted—by studying her own wardrobe problems, by working in the teen shop of a large department store, and by watching her own teen-aged sister and her friends. Having discovered just what was wrong with junior miss clothes, she put her own designs on paper. While other young gals were planning careers, Betty was having one. Her teen-aged interests expanded till she is now not only an artist and designer but teen-aged columnist for a leading women's magazine.

Eighteen-year-old Tommy Wadelton, author of three books and with a fourth novel soon to come off the press, explains that he did "just about everything any other kid did. I am not what you call a good student, and getting thru high school kept me humping, so I had to write when and where I could. But writing is a funny business—things begin gathering in one's mind, and when they get big enough you have to write them if you want to or not."

And while doing "just what every other kid did" Tommy managed to write and sell his first short story at 11 to the Cavalry Journal. His second was sold to Country Life when he was 12. His first two books, written when he was 13 and 15, attracted wide attention, and his third, "Army Brat," written when he was 17, was sold to Hollywood for $25,000. And all that time he was "humping away at his homework"!

TOMMY WADELTON

Mary Conwell, young radio and stage ingenue, did her first "stage work" standing on a kitchen chair as a little girl reciting poetry to members of her family. Ambitious to become an actress, Mary practiced her way thru school, graduating from fairy queen and angel roles in grade school to the lead in Booth Tarkington's "Seventeen" in high school. To get a background knowledge of the theater she read and collected drama reviews; she read numerous plays, acted out bits by herself, and saw as many theatrical productions as possible, professional and amateur.

When just out of high school she played the leads in children's plays at the Goodman theater in Chicago. On her first day in New York, anxious for a try at Broadway, Mary was offered the role of Corliss Archer in the overseas company of "Kiss and Tell." Tiny, vivacious, and pretty, Mary found time to fit high school, fun, and hard work into what most gals would consider a full time schedule with high school and fun alone.

And hundreds of other teen-agers have discovered that they don't have to wait till they hit 21 to "get started." Without missing the usual date-and-dance fun that is so much a part of growing up, these sharp characters are finding time to work at personal and important plans—getting the jump on careers.

Take a quick look at some of the big names who got to work early—Stephen Vincent Binet sold his first story at 11, Mozart hit the genius bracket at 6, and Patrice Munsel debuted at the Metropolitan at 19. Any worth-while career takes years of patience and hard work, but why not stop day-dreaming, come in off cloud eight, and get started this year instead of next? You know the old saying: Never put off till next year what you might have begun today.

EDDIE CONDON GIVES US SOME ALL-STAR MUSIC

Eddie Condon . . . a long time in jazz.

A LONG, low bow—and a laurel, too—to DECCA for its wide recording horizons (did you know you can even learn Spanish via DECCA?). But today a special bow for its Eddie Condon recording of "Wherever There's Love" and "When Your Lover Has Gone." Eddie has been around popular music a long time, and he's a controversial figure in the jazz world. Some say he's wonderful, some say he's commercial. Whatever you may think of him—and I, for one, am on his side—he's done a service in getting together the group that made this recording. Look at the roster: Eddie on guitar; Bobby Hackett, Billy Butterfield, and Max Kaminsky, trumpets; Jack Teagarden, trombone; Ernie Caceres, baritone sax; Gene Schroeder, piano; Bob Haggert, bass, and George Wettling, drums. All-star groups don't necessarily play all-star music, but this one does itself proud. "Wherever There's Love" features Teagarden in a delightful solo, and Lee Wiley on the vocal. The Wiley voice is reminiscent of the singing they used to do in the '20s and early '30s, and it's wonderful—liquid, relaxed, rangy. Bobby Hackett takes the solo in "When Your Lover Has Gone," and Teagarden is in good evidence, too. Those trumpets are beautiful. Eddie was born about 40 years ago in Goodland, Ind., but came to Chicago with his family in 1915. Got an early start on the banjo and was playing one-night stands at 15 with the old Peavey's Jazz Bandits. Did an Alhambra stint in Syracuse with Bix and others, then drifted around with a lot of famous groups, including the Mound City Blue Blowers.

A reminder: For an excellent history of jazz write Frank Wheeler, Illinois Institute of Technology, 3300 Federal st., Chicago 16, for Dr. S. I. Hayakawa's free booklet. — W. D.

You can be a BETTER COOK with Less Work—with New Easy-Mix Spry

"REMEMBER the old saying—'Necessity is the mother of invention'? Well, we housewives have mothered inventions aplenty at our cook stoves lately—and real tasty ones, too!

"New Easy-Mix Spry and its short-cut receipts get thanks for lots of help. Just you change to pure, all-vegetable Spry for all your baking and frying and enjoy your share of help and praise. Get lighter, more delicious cakes (and never a bit of high-point butter needed!) with New Spry and my easy One-Bowl Cake Method. See how everyone loves foods fried crisp and brown the Spry way—and they're so digestible!

"Try these luscious strawberry desserts that save sugar . . . discover Spry's secret of tender, flaky delicate-tasting pastry and short-bread!"

Strawberry Chiffon Pie

4 egg yolks	1 tablespoon gelatin (softened in ¼ cup water)
½ cup light corn sirup	4 egg whites
Dash of salt	¼ cup sugar
Juice of 1 lemon	1 cup strawberries, cut in half
Grated rind of ½ lemon	1 baked Spry Pie Shell

Combine first 5 ingredients; blend well. Cook over boiling water, beating constantly with rotary beater until thick and foamy—about 3 minutes. Remove from heat, add gelatin mixture. Cool. Beat egg whites until stiff, but not dry. Add sugar gradually, beating each time until stiff. Fold carefully into gelatin mixture. Fold in strawberries. Pile lightly into baked pie shell. Decorate with more berries if desired. Chill several hours or until set.

Spry Pie Shell: Mix 1¼ cups ALL-PURPOSE FLOUR and ½ teaspoon SALT. Measure 7 tablespoons SPRY and divide into two equal parts. Step 1—for Tenderness: Cut in first half of Spry until as fine as meal. Creamy Spry cuts in so easily! Step 2—for Flakiness: Cut in remaining Spry until size of large peas. Add 3 tablespoons cold WATER, mixing thoroughly into a dough. Roll thin; prick. Bake in very hot oven (450°F.) 10 to 15 minutes.

Sugarless Strawberry Short Cake

Spry's Short Cut: In your regular biscuit recipe which calls for 2 cups flour, use ½ cup Spry. Roll dough into 8 x 8-inch square about ½ inch thick. Prick dough with fork. Cut into 8 triangles. Bake on baking sheet in very hot oven (450° F.) 12–15 minutes. So tender thanks to Spry! So rich-tasting you don't miss sugar. Sweeten one quart sliced strawberries with corn sirup or honey. Split hot biscuits (so flaky they lift apart) and put berries between and on top!

ROCKET HOWITZER

American soldiers examining a German rocket howitzer mounted on a Tiger tank chassis. This vehicle, with its curious weapon, was captured in the allied drive into Germany. The howitzer or launcher, seven feet long, fires a 380 millimeter rocket shell to a maximum range of approximately 6,000 yards.

Right: Close-up of the muzzle of the 380 millimeter rocket howitzer. The holes around the rim of the barrel at the muzzle permit the escape of the rocket gases when the missile is fired. The weapon, unlike the standard rocket projector, has a closed breech provided with vents for the escape of the gas thru the holes that parallel the bore of the weapon.

AMONG the strange weapons and equipment of war captured by American troops in their drive into Germany was a curious oversized rocket howitzer mounted on the chassis of a Nazi Tiger tank. Only the muzzle of the weapon shows in the accompanying pictures, altho its barrel actually is seven feet long.

The usual type of rocket launcher is open not only at the muzzle but at the breech as well, and the jet stream of the rocket is ejected out the rear as the missile is discharged. Because of the confined space within the tank, however, this would be dangerous to the tank crew within. The Germans therefore constructed this new tank weapon with a closed breech. When the rocket shell is fired the gases produced are exhausted thru holes running thru the launcher parallel to the bore.

The rocket shell itself is five feet long, weighs 726 pounds, and has a diameter of 380 millimeters (14.96 inches). Its propellant as well as its explosive charge are inside the shell case. At the rear of the shell are splines which engage the grooves in the bore of the weapon. The shell fits snugly in the launcher.

FLORENCE SAYS:
"Yes, millions of families want me to live with them and I'm looking forward to the day when every home can have the FLORENCE RANGE AND HEATER the family wants."

FLORENCE workers now in uniform have written to say that they are proud of the part FLORENCE is playing in the war—and they are looking forward to the day when they can come back and have a share in making new FLORENCE products. FLORENCE will welcome them back with open arms.

We believe you will want FLORENCE to "live with you" when new gas, electric, combination and oil ranges, when oil heaters, once more are made available. Plan to make a date to get acquainted with FLORENCE.

War work comes FIRST for Florence, but as rapidly as the war permits, Florence will again produce all of these types of appliances.

GRAPHIC LITTLE THEATER presents Yvonne De Carlo in "Salome Where She Danced"

● At left is Salome, a sensational Viennese dancer who in 1866 so thrilled an audience in a small Arizona town that the citizens changed its name from Drinkman's Wells to "Salome Where She Danced." The town retains its name today; and here is the movie version of the story, with Yvonne De Carlo as Salome.

1 An American newspaperman, Jim Steed (Rod Cameron), interviews Count von Bismarck (Kurt Katch) and Count von Bohlen (Albert Dekker) about secret German plans for an attack on Austria.

2 Knowing that Salome, famous dancer, hates the Germans, Steed wins her confidence, convinces her she should play up to Von Bohlen and steal the plans.

4 At left: So thrilling is Salome's dance that the townsfolk later give the community her name. But the show is broken up by Desperado Cleve Blount.

5 Blount (David Bruce) follows Salome to San Francisco, where she meets the fabulously wealthy Col. Ivan Dimitrioff (Walter Slezak).

3 Salome does, then is forced to flee to America to escape Von Bohlen's wrath. Mme. Europe (Marjorie Rambeau) helps her put on a show in a little Arizona town to finance a career.

6 At right: Dimitrioff is smitten, plans a magnificent theater for Salome. First he introduces her to society in a vocal recital.

7 But Von Bohlen traces Salome, and on her second opening night [illegible] to harm her. Blount kills him, then flees in a [illegible] stagecoach.

8 Finally Salome, Steed, and Dimitrioff find Blount and tell him he has been exonerated in Von Bohlen's death. Salome gives him even better news by saying she will marry him.

CHILDREN ARE LIKE FLOWERS

"There are no bad plants or bad children . . . only faulty trainers."
—VICTOR HUGO

It's a tremendous responsibility to be a parent . . . particularly since your many important duties include the cultivation of good character traits in your child. Of course; you want him to blossom into a happy and useful adult . . . and the earlier you start with a planned method of training—the more certain you will be of accomplishing this.

'MY BOOK HOUSE' PLAN OF CHILD TRAINING is based on the fact that your child begins to make habit-forming adjustments to his surroundings the moment you first cuddle him in your arms. It stresses the importance of your influence during the pre-school years which, authorities agree, are the foundation years of a child's entire life! And it shows you how to implant fundamental personality and character habits early in childhood...how to continue to nurture them effectively thru adolescence.

HERE ARE THE TOOLS THAT WILL HELP CULTIVATE DESIRABLE TRAITS IN YOUR CHILD!

Comments from parents who have used 'My Book House' over the years prove that the five parts of this Plan are surprisingly practical tools for child training. Children who have enjoyed its advantages show greater poise and confidence . . . are more attentive and better able to express themselves . . . are more adequately prepared for school . . . have better mental, emotional and social qualities.

Included in the Plan is an amazingly helpful book for parents, "In Your Hands". It shows you how to use the material for best results . . . enables you to apply it to your child's individual needs at each stage of his development. Act now to assure his future success . . . discover the many effective ways you, too, can use the famous 'My Book House' plan in your home! If your child is between the ages of babyhood and adolescence, be sure to mail the coupon today . . . or if you prefer, a postcard will do.

STRAWBERRY PIE!

By MARY MEADE

WHAT'S a better dessert than a strawberry pie, especially if it's a frosted strawberry pie tucked into a corn flake crust? It's a special to please your bridge club or sewing circle almost to pieces!

Almost any fresh fruit in season may be used in such a pie, but strawberries are particularly nice, being colorful, juicy, and popular with everybody who doesn't have an allergy to them.

FROSTED STRAWBERRY PIE
(Serves six)

1 chilled corn flake crust
1 egg white
1 cup sugar
¼ cup water
⅛ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cream of tartar
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups sliced strawberries
Whole berries for garnish

Place unbeaten egg white, sugar, water, salt, and cream of tartar in top of double boiler. Cook over boiling water, beating constantly, until mixture thickens and forms soft peaks, about seven minutes. Remove from heat. Add vanilla. Continue beating until cool and thick. Arrange sliced strawberries in thoroly chilled shell. Pour frosting over fruit, allowing it to run between pieces. Garnish with whole berries and chill for an hour before serving.

Corn Flake Crust: Roll or crush 4 cups corn flakes to obtain 1 cup fine crumbs. Melt ⅓ cup margarine, add to cereal, and mix thoroly. Press evenly into a pie pan, making bottom slightly thicker than sides. Chill for an hour in refrigerator before filling. Bran or wheat flakes or crisp rice cereal may be used instead of the corn flakes.

French toast with fresh strawberries is a good dish for breakfast, lunch, or supper in warm weather.

This is an unusual kind of strawberry pie. The berries are covered with a creamy white frosting.

A strawberry French toast sandwich can be almost a whole meal in warm weather. Fry three slices of French toast and put them together with whole, sliced, or crushed strawberries, sweetened as much as you like. Or, if your meal includes other foods, make a less hearty serving by using one slice of French toast, cutting it cornerwise and covering it with the berries.

To make good French toast use enriched white bread, trim the crusts, dip slices into mixture of 2 slightly beaten eggs, ¼ teaspoon salt, and 1 cup milk, and saute in small amount of drippings, turning to brown both sides. Or fry the toast for about a minute in deep hot fat, 380 degrees. The amount of coating mixture suggested will take care of six slices of bread.

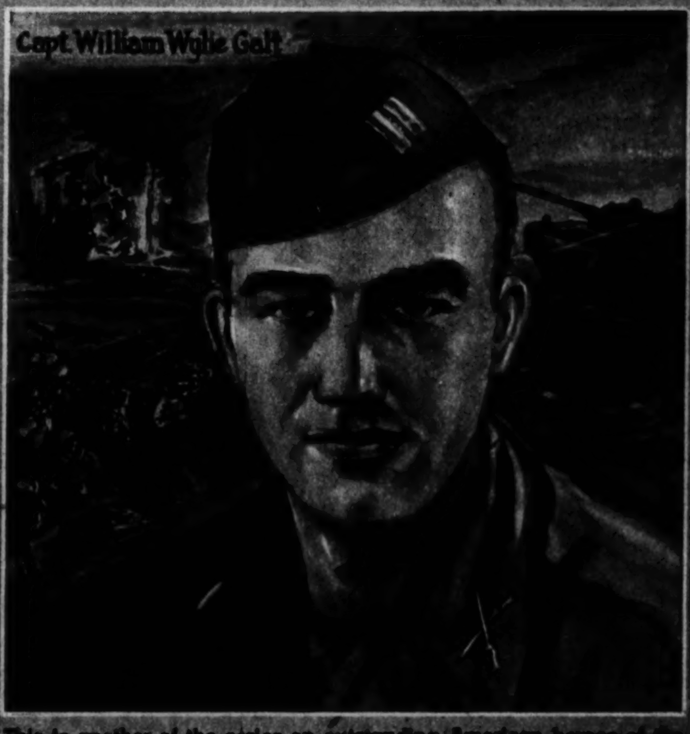
AMERICAN HEROES OF WORLD WAR II.



This is another of the series on outstanding American heroes of the present war. Subjects for the series are chosen from among heroes who have been decorated for valor. Illustrations are by Glenn Fergus Thomas and Alexander Vernack.

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

A FORMER rodeo rider, Capt. William Wylie Galt of Great Falls, Mont., rode to his death on a tank destroyer in the American drive on Rome a year ago this month.

It was at Villa Crocetta, according to a war department citation, that Captain Galt on May 29, 1944, lost his life. The Americans were attacking that day, but had been repulsed twice, when Galt, an infantry officer, volunteered personally to lead a third assault. The resistance of the Germans was so vicious, however, that this attack began to slow down.

Galt came upon a tank destroyer the crew of which had refused to advance farther. Climbing into the vehicle, he ordered it forward, followed by a group of infantry men. He took charge of a .30 caliber machine gun in the turret of the vehicle as it advanced upon an enemy 77 millimeter anti-tank gun.

Standing up in the turret, exposed to enemy bullets, he fired burst after burst into the German trenches which formed a network in that area. Finally he maneuvered the tank destroyer into a position from which he could sweep with his weapon a trench containing 40 Germans. When they refused to surrender at his demand he opened fire upon them, killing every man in the trench. In addition to these he had shot down numerous others in the attack.

Just after the enemy position had been taken an 88 millimeter shell struck the tank destroyer, killing Galt and the crew of the vehicle.

At the army air base at Great Falls last Feb. 19 the medal of honor (congressional medal) was awarded posthumously to the heroic captain, being presented to his widow, Mrs. Patricia A. Galt.

Captain Galt was 25 years old. He had been a football star at Montana State college, and later had won fame in the west as an expert rider at rodeos.

Watch for this series of sketches and stories every Sunday.

"OLD FARM" PORK SAUSAGE

PERFUME PLAYS ITS LOVELY ROLE

By ANTOINETTE DONNELLY
(Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

"MEMORIES of my mother are so entwined with lilacs that every spring she is sharply recalled to my mind, altho she has been gone for years." We caught that tribute to a mother in an autobiography we read recently.

Frequently we have read or heard of such a material tribute as a friend whose mother memories are wreathed in rose petals from which said mother distilled her own favorite scent.

An authority who holds that perfume is no more a luxury item than powder and make-up insists that there are programs to observe in perfume use and programs to avoid in order to extract the greatest flattery for the wearer.

With perfume the emotional ally it is, we are reminded by the authority that the endearing tribute to husband and children of a subtly used scent for their pleasure and memory is a far lovelier gesture than reserving its use for social contact only.

A trick of perfume usage is to use fragrance on the palm of the hand.

Nor does this mean extravagance, for economy of perfume usage holds better than anything else the secret of subtlety. Above everything else, subtlety is the keynote, the magic of a scent. And to acquire subtlety, a drop here, a drop there will do.

The thing that a scent does to the woman herself should inspire her to its home application more often. At the end of her household duties, around 4 p. m., when she feels a bit jaded, a dash of scent will set her up miraculously.

A trick of perfume usage heartily indorsed is to use fragrance on the palm of the hand, so that a tender, teasing memory stays with the hand you press.

Try a drop of perfume on the hair, on the inside of the coat lapel, on your shoulder pads, around the back of the coat collar, in the band of the hat; in your bag, so, opened at intervals, it releases a delicate whiff. Not on all these spots at once, of course, but a drop here and a drop there, just enough to leave a delicate trail.

Gliders Go to Battle!

another word—handsome. Lucidly, and with the aid of charts, so even an outsider could get a clear picture of what was going on, he outlined the whole operation.

Other officers spoke. Capt. C. R. (Pat) Maloney, 39, a quartermaster officer, whose wife, Mrs. Joan Mae Maloney, is manager of the American Airlines office at the Stevens hotel in Chicago, spoke humorously on escape and evasion.

Colonel Young, who himself was going on this mission, spoke briefly, telling the boys not to worry too much about flying in tight formation, as the main object was to get gliders and supplies in at a certain place and at a certain time. He said, "I am sure what you are going to do tomorrow will be an important contribution toward a rapid ending of the war."

There were two solemn occasions at this briefing. The first was at the very opening when the Protestant chaplain came out on the stage and prayed to God to give those going on the mission the strength, the skill and courage successfully and safely to perform their dangerous mission on the morrow. The second solemn moment was when the Catholic chaplain, Father John Wheland, closed the briefing.

He got on the platform in what cannot be described as a perfect military getup. His pants were too long, so they were rolled up over his shoetops, which were muddy. His hair was closely cropped. He is one of the most popular members of this group and whenever any one does him a favor he promises to have him elected mayor of Peoria. He stood for half a minute until dead silence reigned and then began:

"O Father, Your mercy and their courage and skill is all they will need."

He blessed every one and wound up without a break, looking at his wrist watch:

"I want every Catholic present to have complete absolution. We haven't much time, so I wish all Catholics immediately to go up in the gallery for holy communion, while the Protestants can conduct their services downstairs."

Half of those below went upstairs, while half of those packing the galleries came down. That such a strong religious spirit pervaded that tough gang of boys came as something of a revelation. But this solemnity didn't last long. As soon as the prayers were over the boys again began ribbing and kidding each other.

Out on the field the next day there were grins on faces and wisecracks on lips. The general attitude and remarks expressed eagerness, confidence, and enthusiasm, and if there was any fear at all it was well concealed. Glider pilots particularly liked jokes about the frailness, vulnerability of their craft, and the skill (or lack of it) with which they are manned. Some of their remarks were inscribed on their ships, such as: "Stop—have you paid your insurance?"; "This ship has been tested and found flak-proof"; "This is a towed target"; "I want to go home"; "Berlin or —bust!"

First Lt. Donald L. Sipe, whose parents live at Augusta, Wis., and who in civilian life was a lawyer employed by Wilson & McIlvaine, law firm, had inscribed on his glider, "Is this journey really necessary—again?" Jim Sayers of Peoria, Ill., inscribed on his, "Nary a hit." Sam Dukes of Orangeberg, S. C., had an inscription on his glider which read:

IF YOU CAN READ THIS—IT WAS A HELL OF A LANDING

There were gibes by glider pilots at glider pilots. One read: "Mother, take down your service flag. Your son is a glider pilot." Another, also referring to long periods between jumps, read: "This chance of lifetime to see G. P.'s at work." Others were sentimental, having the names of their girls. Flying Officer Robert Weiland, 5857 Ainslie st., Chicago, flew "Scrapper Special."

The weather was as predicted—ideal. There was a four mile cross wind, but not enough to interfere with the take-off, which began exactly on the second and continued for 36 minutes, when the 72 planes, each towing for the first time on active operations two gliders, were air borne.

As scheduled, it took exactly 36 minutes for each of these airplanes to make a big circle back overfield and on to course. We flew at 1,000 feet altitude until we approached the Rhine and then descended to 600 feet, at which height the gliders were released over the drop zone, about nine miles behind the enemy lines. Along the route the chief of each wing verified his position at prescribed intervals. Air speed was set at 110 miles an hour. Very few railroad trains have traveled on such a split-second schedule as this huge sky train and those from other fields on the continent and the United Kingdom.

We were in the 19th ship, or No. 2 position, of this troop carrier squadron. Colonel Young was flying in the same position with another squadron. Before starting we checked our parachute harness and Major Smeck saw to it that a United States army signal corps photographer and myself had flak suits and flak helmets. The latter, incidentally, is one that was invented by Col. Loyal Davis of Chicago. It is very light and undoubtedly saved many airmen from serious injury or worse since he designed it three years ago after a thoro study of the type of wounds sustained by our 8th air force crews.

We were 56 minutes from the target when we saw large formations of C-46s returning after having dropped their paratroops, for whom we were carrying supplies and heavy equipment. I was standing in the cockpit when Major Smeck said it was about time we put on our parachutes and flak suits.

Overhead we could see our air cover patroling the skies for enemy aircraft. At the same time, 8th air force heavy bombers were bombing all German air fields within a perimeter of 150 miles from our target. The result was that during the entire operation we saw no enemy aircraft.

As we were approaching our target I sat opposite the open door looking northward. The photographer, who had fastened himself to a rope so he wouldn't fall out when taking pictures, was standing in the doorway. Major Smeck had given instructions that if anything happened he would give the word when to jump. The photographer was to go first, I next, and the crew in a designated order. "Move fast when I give the order," he said "because we won't have much time and I'll be coming thru awfully fast." He told us to pull the rip cord as we jumped and not to wait, as the ground would be awfully close.

Miles before we came to the Issel canal and to the Rhine we passed over rubble heaps after rubble heaps, blasted or burned-out towns and villages. Lines of motor convoys supplying the 21st army group were crawling slowly to the front. Here and there around deserted barnyards there seemed to be some stray chickens, but there was no sign that any of the civilian population remained in that area at all. There was a slight ground haze as we crossed the Issel and approached the Rhine. Thru the window, to the south, I could see that there was still some fighting going on at Wesel, immediately to the north of our glider run.

Allied patrol boats by this time—it was 11:30 in the morning—were patroling the Rhine both to the north and south, across which, also, two long LSC's were ferrying. We had a good view of the

THEY LEARN TO PLAY AND PLAY TO LEARN

By NORMA LEE BROWNING

THERE was a time when the kindergarten was considered merely a convenient spot to deposit the children for half a day. They would be properly cared for and watched over by some kindly, motherly woman whose only requisite for the job was that she loved children.

Out of this makeshift idea has developed a modern kindergarten system that has been brought to a climax of efficiency in the last 12 years and today takes its place as one of the most fundamental parts of the elementary school system.

Chicago has 20,345 children enrolled in the kindergartens of most of the 333 elementary schools thruout the city. Cook county has by far a greater percentage of kindergarten-age children actually enrolled in kindergartens than any other county in the state.

The modern kindergarten operates on the assumption that a 5-year-old child is no longer a baby, that he is old enough to be treated as an individual and, furthermore, old enough to begin his education.

This is in direct contrast to the old fashioned kindergarten-nursery theory that a 5-year-old child was incapable of doing anthing for himself.

"We have begun to realize that the kindergarten really lays the foundation for the child's work in elementary school," said Don C. Rogers, assistant superintendent of the Chicago public schools.

According to Miss Ellen M. Olson and Miss Dorothy E. Willy, directors of the kindergarten-primary department of Chicago Teachers' college, surveys have been made which show that kindergarten work cuts down the number of first grade reading failures by approximately 20 per cent.

Five-year-olds are taught what is known in kindergarten parlance as reading readiness. They learn to recognize such words as chair, table, orange, milk, etc., written on the blackboard, by identifying them with actual objects in the room. They learn all their color words thru identification with the colors, and they learn a little about numbers.

In their storytelling periods they sometimes listen to the teacher read stories, sometimes tell their own stories or dramatize them. The emphasis is on self-expression rather than recitation.

Many tots even have to learn whether a book is upside down, and they are taught, incidentally, how to handle a book.

They work with crayons, paste and scissors, clay, puzzles, and blocks, but one of the most remarkable accomplishments of today's kindergarten is its success in teaching rhythm and ear attunement.

At the Emmett public school, 5500 W. Madison st., the kindergarten teacher, Mrs. Esther Kelly, demonstrated this phase of her work.

At the sound of a certain chord on the piano the children took their places in the center of the room. As the teacher began playing one melody they skipped around in a circle. A different tune gave the signal to hop sideways, another to jump like a bunny, another to "gallop," another to march, etc. At no time did Mrs. Kelly give any verbal instructions. The children's ears had been trained to recognize dozens of melodies and to associate each one with a particular kind of activity and rhythm.

Most of the children, when they first started to kindergarten, had no muscular coördination, did not know how to hop, skip, and jump, knew only how to march, and that without any rhythm, and, being monotones at that age, had no ear at all for music.

Perhaps the most important function of the present-day kindergarten is to give the very young child an education in social adjustment, to teach him the give-and-take method of getting along with others.

In kindergarten many children learn for the first time that the world is not theirs exclusively. Temper tantrums, performed at home in the presence of indulgent parents, are not popular with a roomful of boys and girls the same age. Thus the tots get an early lesson in emotional stability.

They learn courtesy and kindness to others. Even the mid-morning milk periods are educational. Here the children gain experience in gracious living. They learn to set the table and to wait until the others are ready before being seated.

They learn self-reliance by attending to small personal habits like fastening their overshoes and donning their coats unaided and going to the "powder room" alone.

They learn responsibility by taking care of plants, pets, and aquariums in the schoolroom, and they develop an early interest in their community by taking walks with the teacher, visiting markets, fire stations, and postoffices.

In general there is what Miss Olson calls a workshop spirit in the kindergarten of today, a coöperative relationship that is achieved by allowing the child to select his own activity, do his own thinking and planning.

Donald Saxon plays with blocks as part of his kindergarten schooling.

Remarkable progress is made in teaching children to appreciate music. Here Beryl Shapiro, a talented singer, entertains her group.

Morning milk periods are also lessons in courteous behavior.

Please don't buy this pad!

UNLESS YOU VITALLY NEED IT!

It's the Casco 30-heat Wetproof Nite-Lite Electric Heating Pad—recently released for limited production by the Government to help safeguard the nation's health. There will be other pads that are more than adequate for ordinary needs.

Strange that we should ask you not to buy the finest heating pad we ever made? Not at all, when you consider these electrical appliances have not been manufactured for three and a half years. Crises have arisen. The very sick must be protected. A limited quantity of these Casco Wetproof Pads will be released to drug stores, department stores, hardware stores and electrical supplies stores; and these outlets, too, are anxious to cooperate by filling emergency needs first. So wait for your Casco Wetproof Pad—if you possibly can!

Here's why the Casco 30-Heat Wetproof Nite-Lite Electric Heating Pad should be reserved for sick people and hospitals

Proof against "accidents." Safe for use with children — because the Castex vulcanized cover is not just water-resistant, but fully wetproof. Choice of 30 fixed heats insures most comfortable temperature.

Proof against perspiration. Often it's desirable to induce perspiration. The Casco pad can be used safely against the skin—since the cover has been tested by boiling in water and baking in an oven for over 1000 hours.

Cover can be sterilized. That's why hospitals are so interested in this pad. The vulcanized cover can be washed—even sterilized—without impairing the efficiency of the easy-drape heating unit.

Illuminated dial for convenience. Even the very sick can make temperature adjustments in the dark with this pad. A special "Nite-Lite" illuminates the dial. No extra light to disturb another in the room, either.

IT'S YOUR DUTY TO KEEP FIT AND ON THE JOB!

★ Sickness has cost America more precious man-hours of production time than submarines, sabotage and strikes all put together. And yet it's so easy to follow these simple health rules: ★

1. See your doctor at the first sign of illness. Check minor injuries with your plant doctor or nurse.
2. Eat the right foods—meat or fish, vegetables, two fruits, whole grain bread or cereal, milk and eggs every day.
3. Drink plenty of water every day.
4. Get at least 8 hours sleep a night—and sufficient outdoor exercise during the day.
5. Avoid spreading contagion. If you are sick—go home!

He's cold, but . . . !

Casco is still a war firm—outside America and inside Bridgeport! Ever since Pearl Harbor we've been devoting our facilities—not to heating pads and those "Pop-Out" dashboard cigarette lighters that were on almost every American car—but to making it hot for the Axis in lots of other ways.

Today, for example, Casco is the world's leading manufacturer of 4.2 chemical mortar fuses. And until "heil" fuses over, we'll be doing our bit.

MOSTLY ABOUT DOGS By BOB BECKER

THERE ALWAYS are questions about dog care and training in the daily mail bag. Here are some typical letters which owners write about their problems:

"We have a 6-month-old German shepherd pup. Her right ear stands up, but her left one usually stays down. Will you tell me if one of her ears is broken, or is this natural?—RAY W. S."

When dogs are growing their permanent set of teeth, at about the age of your dog, their ear carriage often is erratic. So don't worry about one ear being broken. The chances are your dog will have correct ear carriage after it passes thru this tooth-growing stage.

"I just bought an English setter, and since this is the first dog I ever owned, I don't know how to train her. Could you send me any books or suggest books on how to train this dog?—JACK H."

If you will write us whether you want to train the setter in obedience or for hunting, or both, we will be glad to recommend books on training.

"My son has a beautiful Doberman pinscher about 2 years old. But when we let her out she goes to a near-by farm and brings back a live chicken. She has been whipped for this, but it does no good. We will have to get rid of this dog if she doesn't stop taking chickens.—MRS. R. B. M."

Small but distinctive in appearance and character, the Pekingese, once a dog of Chinese royalty, continues to be one of the most popular breeds in the toy dog group. This handsome specimen, a show winner, is of a silver fawn color with a black mask.

Some dogs get a big thrill out of chasing and killing chickens—which is not unusual, for the hunting instinct still is strong in them. This is especially true of those which are not trained in obedience and are allowed to run around as they please until they are out of control. As a rule these chicken killers must be given some obedience training so that owners can obtain control over them. Then comes training with live poultry to teach the dog to leave chickens alone. If the owner does not know how to teach his dog to mind it's advisable to consult a good trainer, and then time must be devoted each day to putting the dog thru its lessons. A mimeographed leaflet being sent to you explains the problem in detail and also gives suggestions on what to do.

"What would you advise about dogs called shepherd collies? What kind of a shepherd would the collie be crossed with? Is there any place you can obtain such a dog for a pet?—EDWARD C., Chicago."

There is no recognized or registered breed known as the shepherd collie. Most of the dogs of this type that we have seen were on farms. They often are called farm shepherds. We also saw quite a few being trained for service in the army's K9 corps. They make good sentry dogs. The farm shepherd is a crossbred. It's smart, varies in conformation, and is well liked by farmers. We know of no kennels making a business of breeding these dogs, but you might get one from some farmer.

"I have a 10-week-old schipperke puppy. I want to give it the best care, so I was wondering if you have a small book or pamphlet on the care and feeding and training of dogs.—MRS. R. S."

Just 2 weeks old and all of one litter, these 11 St. Bernard pups are owned by Mrs. O. C. Beam, Blue Ridge, Ga. (Brown photo)

Every family that has had little or no experience in raising a puppy will find it well worth while to invest in a book or two on dog care and training. The suggestions in such books make dog raising much easier. "Training the Dog," published by The Tribune, is recommended. It's completely illustrated and tells how to teach a pup to mind and become a well mannered member of the family. The cost is 30 cents by mail. Orders should be sent (with remittances) to the Public Service Office, 1 S. Dearborn st., Chicago. "Feeding the Dog" is the companion book to the training handbook. Same price. It gives many tips on dog diets and puppy feeding. A larger handbook (also completely illustrated) is "How to Raise and Train Your Puppy." This costs $1 and is on sale in book stores.

"We have a shepherd dog of which we are very fond. Recently the dog has started to chase cars and snap at boys on bicycles. In several cases it has bitten the boys. There is no one at home during the day who has the time to break the dog of these bad habits. Would you advise sending the dog to a training school, or should we tie the dog in the back yard?—WILLIAM M. D."

A training school can break the dog of running after cars and bicycles, but it won't solve your problem unless you and the family go to school with the pet and learn how to handle him. In the first place, the dog must be taken off the street. He deserves a small kennel in the back yard. And when he goes out for exercise some one in the family should go along, make him mind, and also see that there is no chasing of cars. If you continue to let the dog run as he pleases he will chase cars, because he has the habit and also because he's bored and looking for amusement. Under such circumstances you can't blame the dog for his behavior.

Gliders Go to Battle!

high ridge to our left and along this real fighting was going on, too. Two or three miles to the north one enemy battery was firing bursts of three salvos every 10 seconds or so.

It was immediately after we crossed the Rhine that the flak came up at us. Pilots cannot take evasive action when towing gliders. In the plane the bursting shells outside—this was small stuff—sounded as if some one were pounding on the bottom of the ship with a heavy hammer. This pounding noise had continued about 30 seconds when both the photographer and myself heard a sharp noise like a firecracker going off in our faces. We thought it was a 20 mm. cannon shell which had exploded in front of our door. Then we saw a hole in the side of the plane over my head to the left of where I was sitting. We thought at that time the bullet must have come thru that open door and the photographer had had a close shave.

A plowed field on the northern edge of the wooded ridge which extended to Rees was covered with colored parachutes, indicating that the Liberators had already unloaded their supplies. Those on the ground were red, green, and other colors. Two or three men in American uniforms were walking among those dropped in this field. The treetops over a long distance were covered with purple parachutes. Flashes from guns and smoke indicated a battle was going on here as well as in Wesel. The flak subsided when we got to the drop zone. But beneath we could see that some of the preceding gliders had not fared too well. One was burning and another had crashed head first and there were some bodies and equipment scattered around it. Others, however, were sitting on the ground in a natural position, and there seemed no indication of enemy troops in that immediate area.

The gliders unhooked in a good position and the last I saw of them they were gliding under control in the center of the drop zone.

Just as our plane plunged forward as its load was released and Major Smeck throttled up the motors on the turn to the right, I saw that the second tow plane after us was in trouble. One motor caught fire, then the other. Some one bailed out and a parachute opened. Another body hurtled out of the side of the ship. But this time no parachute opened. The ship itself crashed to the ground immediately afterward.

Gliders in German fields. Notice that one in right foreground has burned.

As we approached the Rhine on the return journey flak bursts in our path caused Major Smeck to take what they call evasive action. He turned sharply to the left and skimmed low over the ground so quickly that the ground defenses could not get us in their sights. Over the Rhine again, Major Smeck headed for the field in which all pilots were to drop their tow ropes if evasive action had not compelled them to do so before.

"I am saving the United States government exactly $4,250," Co-Pilot Lieut. B. Outten Jr. of St. Louis, Mo., said to me, as he yanked tow rope releases. "There is enough nylon in them to cover the bare legs of every pretty girl in Askov, Minn.," the radio operator, Staff Sgt. Harry Mortinson of Askov, Minn., observed. They cost $5 a foot, have a stretch of 15 per cent, and are 375 and 475 feet long respectively for double tows.

When we reached the ground we examined the ship for bullet holes and flak damage. Outside of one bullet hole the ship wasn't even scratched. And that hole was right thru the belly of the ship. It had come up thru the floor in front of where I was seated and in going out had torn the hole we had noticed before in the side of the ship.

It was made by a bullet of no more than .30 caliber.

HAVE YOU HEARD THE NEWS ABOUT NEW CRISCO?

Now you can Bake a Better Cake on Every Count!

It's the happiest cake news ever, ladies—the results you can get with new improved Crisco! Compare one of the new Crisco Pride 'n' Joy Cakes with the cakes you used to make . . . for richness — lightness — texture —and moistness. One luscious bite and you'll agree that Crisco cakes win out on every count.

These brand new easy recipes have been perfected specially for new Crisco. Crisco has developed a special baking secret. It makes cakes tenderer, lighter. Yes, even lighter than those made with the most expensive shortening! And pure, snowy Crisco is fresh and sweet as new-churned butter. It brings out the full, rich flavor of your cakes.

New Crisco is the last word in cake shortening, whether you use an old favorite recipe or a new speedy method. But if you want cake at its delicious best—make this White Magic Cake with pure, all-vegetable Crisco today!

Richer! Moister! Lighter! Better Texture!

Pure and Sweet—It's Digestible!

IT'S ONE OF THE NEW CRISCO PRIDE 'N' JOY CAKES—QUICK, EASY RECIPE!

Crisco White Magic Cake

Even a beginner can save about half the mixing time!

Don't worry if you've never made a cake this way before. Measure ingredients exactly . . . follow the simple directions carefully . . . be sure to use Crisco. Only with new Crisco can we promise you a better cake on every count!

Measure into mixing bowl:

2 cups cake flour (sifted before measuring)
1½ cups sugar
½ cup Crisco
1 tsp. salt
⅔ cup milk

Beat vigorously by hand or with mixer (medium speed) 2 minutes. Now stir in (yes, all by itself):

3½ tsps. baking powder*

Add: 4 egg whites (unbeaten)
⅓ cup milk • 1 tsp. vanilla

Blend by hand or in mixer (medium speed) for 2 minutes. The batter will be smooth and thin. Pour into two 9" or deep 8" layer pans which have been rubbed with Crisco and dusted with flour. Bake in moderate oven (360°F.) about 30 minutes, or until baked. Frost with your favorite chocolate icing. All Measurements Level.

Double-action or phosphate type (Calumet, Davis, Rumford, Clabber Girl, etc.). With tartrate type (Royal, etc.) use 4½ tsps.*

NEW CRISCO COOK BOOK! Send 10¢ in coin and a Crisco label (any size) to Crisco, Dept. B, Box 837, Cincinnati 1, Ohio, for 64-page cook book including recipes for many more Pride 'n' Joy Cakes. Offer good in United States.

A new generation right under your eyes

Many a woman thinks she has new ideas—to find newer ones have sprung up "overnight" .

Don't settle down with the old ideas that seemed good enough a few years ago. Investigate new methods, new products. Investigate Tampax. Then you'll revise your ideas about monthly sanitary protection and discard all the belts, pins, external pads and sanitary deodorants because you won't need them with Tampax. And Tampax causes no ridges or bulges, and no odor or chafing. . . . Perfected by a doctor, Tampax is worn internally and absorbs internally. Pure, long-fiber cotton is compressed into slender applicators, designed for quick, easy insertion. Tampax is comfortable, convenient and modern. . . The younger generation is adopting Tampax—right under your eyes. Why not join this army of the younger generation now—buy Tampax while shopping tomorrow. Sold at drug stores and notion counters in three absorbencies (Regular, Super, Junior). A month's average supply can be carried in your purse. Tampax Incorporated, Palmer, Mass.

YOU RELIEVE PAIN FAST WITH 2-SECOND DISINTEGRATING ACTION!

Here's how Bayer Aspirin gets its 2-second disintegrating action!

3 STEPS INSTEAD OF ONE

Even though aspirin powder can be obtained from outside suppliers, it is not used in Bayer tablets. Instead, every grain of Bayer aspirin is made in Bayer's own laboratories. Similarly, even though aspirin tablets could be made from aspirin powder in its original state, Bayer scientists take three steps instead of only one:

1. Bayer makes its own aspirin powder, tests it, compresses it into giant tablets (like the one above) 18 times larger than normal.
2. These "giants" are reduced again to powder—which is passed through a fine screen.
3. After the "binder" is added the familiar Bayer tablets are made.

This painstaking 3-way operation gives Bayer Aspirin astonishingly fast disintegrating action—an action so swift Bayer Aspirin starts to work almost instantly!

When you use Bayer Aspirin to pacify a pain, you get surprisingly fast relief—because Bayer Aspirin's amazing 2-second disintegrating action sets the tablet to work almost at once! To prove this, just drop a Bayer Aspirin in water and "clock" how quickly it starts to disintegrate. Remember—it does the same in your stomach, therefore starts to relieve pain fast!

Bayer Aspirin also means reliable relief—as you can see by its unmatched record of over 40 years of successful use by millions of people. So never ask for "aspirin" alone. Ask for genuine Bayer Aspirin.

Always ask for Genuine

Burgundy

SO FINE AND FULL FLAVORED

it makes every Meal a Gala Occasion

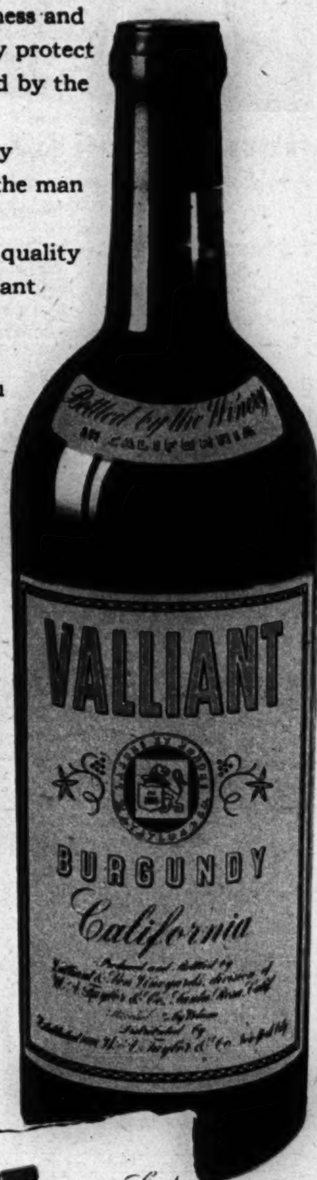
Think back to the moments you treasure most! Certainly among them is that gay dinner party at which you first discovered the glorious flavor of choice Burgundy.

Burgundy brings to your table such a festive air. And this is notably true of Valliant California Burgundy. Its deep ruby color and fine fruity flavor are proof that the vines of Valliant & Son boast an old world ancestry.

Conscientious blending and developing—in accordance with time-honored methods—further impart to Valliant Burgundy its delightful smoothness and well-rounded flavor. And to fully protect its precious bouquet, it is bottled by the winery in California.

Valliant Burgundy is particularly appreciated by men, for rare is the man who does not enjoy its zestful, pleasantly tart flavor—the very quality needed in a table wine. Sip Valliant Burgundy with food—and you will realize how its rich tang enlivens main course dishes. You will enjoy it day after day.

Also try the Valliant California appetizer and dessert wines; Valliant Dry Sherry, Valliant Sherry, Valliant Port, Valliant Muscatel. Sole distributors for U. S. A., W. A. Taylor & Company, New York City.



GOOD TASTE WITH ANY FOOD

Few households keep an assortment of table wines. Many choose Burgundy because they like its flavor best. So—forget the "do's and don'ts" you've heard about serving wine and just remember that "Valliant Burgundy is good taste with any food."

See THE DIFFERENCE! Feel THE DIFFERENCE!

My one cream instantly beautifies your skin — and the "Patch Test" proves it!

See and feel your skin become fresher, clearer, younger-textured!

I don't just SAY that Lady Esther 4-Purpose Face Cream does wonderful things for your skin. I PROVE it—prove it by means of the "Patch Test"!

Just choose a part of your face that is too oily, or too dry —or where you have a few blackheads or big pores. Rub Lady Esther Face Cream on that one part of your face, and wipe it off. Wipe it off completely. Then see how that patch of skin takes on new freshness and clarity! Touch it —feel it! Feel how the dry rough flakes are gone!

What happens to that one patch of skin will happen to your entire face when you use Lady Esther Face Cream. For it does the 4 things your skin needs most for beauty! (1) It thoroughly cleans your skin. (2) It softens your skin. (3) It helps nature refine the pores. (4) It leaves a smooth, perfect base for powder.

Make the "Patch Test" Tonight!

Prove to yourself the difference Lady Esther Face Cream makes in your skin! See it with your own eyes! Make the "Patch Test"—and compare results with the results you get from any cream you've ever used, regardless of price! Remember, the proof is in your own mirror. Make the "Patch Test" and compare!

Just add cream to Bisquick—that's all!—for rich flaky biscuit shortcake. Twice as easy as the old way. So why slave? Why scurry around doing this and that . . . especially since Bisquick turns out scrumptious shortcake every time (home-type ingredients in Bisquick, proportioned and blended more accurately than is possible at home).

ADVANCE NOTICE will be appreciated—that dessert's to be strawberry shortcake! Too, the meal should be planned so as to "leave room." Our General Mills foods staff suggests this supper:

*Goldenrod Asparagus
Salad Bowl of Watercress or Lettuce,
Raw Cauliflowerettes, Fresh Pineapple
Cubes if available, and French Dressing
Bisquick Strawberry Shortcake
Coffee Milk

*GOLDENROD ASPARAGUS: Arrange cooked fresh asparagus on squares of hot buttered toast. Over this, pour a medium thick cream sauce to which have been added cut-up whites of eggs (also chopped stuffed olives, if desired). Garnish with yolks of hard-cooked eggs pressed through a sieve. Or use plain cream sauce sprinkled with grated yellow cheese.

THERE'S SHORTENING in Bisquick. Did you know? Also sugar. Plus Gold Medal Enriched Flour, baking powder, salt, and powdered milk. We mix all six of these fine ingredients to save you work.

MUFFINS, TOO—waffles, old-fashioned egg pancakes—are quicker with Bisquick. Also dumplings (just milk + Bisquick). Any kind of biscuit dough. Simple directions for ten basic bakings come on the package. I hope you'll let Bisquick save you time and work regularly.

When they sail by rail . . .

Navy chow goes with them. A story of the Mobile Mess Units used to feed seaward-bound sailors on long distance railroad trips from Naval Training Stations.

BAGGAGE CAR KITCHEN FEEDS 300 SAILORS IN HALF HOUR

When sailors are scheduled to leave Great Lakes and other naval training stations for a distant destination, the Mobile Mess Unit is placed in a baggage car located in the middle of the train. Four mess cooks set up the equipment and unpack and prepare the food.

When chow time is called, bluejackets file into the baggage car from both ends of the train for the same fine food they've been eating since they started wearing G.I. The unit even includes a huge tank of water to guard the men against upsets due to changes in drinking water. More than 300 sailors can be served in thirty minutes, as against four hours necessary in a dining car.

Food, water and utensils are figured exactly for the number of men making the trip. Nothing is wasted — nothing left over. The per meal cost is only 22⅔¢ as compared to $1.00 in a diner. The men get the best of food — served hot and on time — and Uncle Sam saves many thousands of dollars. At the end of the trip the entire Mobile Mess Unit is packed into the empty water tank and shipped back to the naval training station.

The fuel used to cook and heat the food served in Mobile Mess Units is Sterno Canned Heat. We are proud of the opportunity given us to cooperate on this problem with the Navy — glad that Sterno Canned Heat is serving our sailors. We will also continue to furnish Sterno Canned Heat to our civilian customers to the best of our ability. So please be patient over occasional delays in deliveries.

You've never used a pen and pencil like this
These are the pens and pencils that are going to the men and women in the Services overseas. Quantities available for civilians are very limited, but Sheaffer dealers will take reservations now.
Here, for the first time, is a new kind of writing instrument for a new kind of writing—writing with a thrill to it! Never before such effortless, pressureless, completely relaxed writing ease, such positive control, such gliding smoothness! Only meticulous attention to fine engineering in the production of intricate precision devices (still being made in quantities by Sheaffer) could create the completely re-designed pens and pencils which Sheaffer is now producing. Obviously better to look at, their outside beauty indicates their inside mechanical excellence and split-hair precision workmanship. TOO MUCH CHICKEN

THE Teenie Weenies are generally clean little people. The Dunce sometimes carries a rather dirty handkerchief, and he has to be warned quite often to wash his ears and neck, but most of the other Teenie Weenie men keep themselves neat and clean. It is rather doubtful whether they would be so careful if it wasn't for the Lady of Fashion. That little dirt chaser is constantly on the watch, and if she sees a Teenie Weenie come to the dinner table with black fingernails she raises her tiny eyebrows in such a disapproving way as to make the offending Teenie Weenie hurry away for nail brush and soap.

The Lady of Fashion is mainly responsible for the neat appearance of the Teenie Weenie village, too. When the men neglect their work she keeps after them until they put things in order. She seldom gets angry, but once she nearly lost her temper, and that was on account of the chicken the Teenie Weenies had hatched from an egg.

The little people had chased the chicken away because it was causing them no end of trouble. They hadn't seen the chicken for nearly two weeks, and now that it was gone the Lady of Fashion asked to have the floor of the front porch painted. Nothing happened for several days, and then she announced that she would scrub the porch, and if it wasn't painted by the next day she would darn no more Teenie Weenie stockings or patch Teenie Weenie male pants. That put the men to work, and the next day the floor was neatly painted.

Shortly after the painting had been done there was a little shower of rain, but not enough to hurt the fresh paint. While the Teenie Weenies were eating lunch they heard strange noises on the front porch. Several of the little people ran out the kitchen door and around to the front of the shoe house. There, crouched on the freshly painted floor, was the chicken. It had crawled up onto the porch in order to get out of the rain. The chicken had grown a great deal since it had been away, and it completely filled the whole porch. The men had to do considerable pulling and pushing to get it off. The fresh paint was completely ruined by the chicken's muddy feet and the Lady of Fashion nearly lost her temper.

"That chicken is entirely too much chicken to have around here," she cried. "You'll have to chase it away."

The men chased the chicken quite a way from the village and the next morning they cleaned and painted the porch again.

Betty Crocker says: "These PRUNE SCONES are really 'Scotch'... take only 1/4 cup of sugar and shortening!"
Betty Crocker PRUNE SCONES—Perfect results assured only with Gold Medal "Kitchen-tested" Enriched Flour
Sift together...... 1 1/2 cups sifted GOLD MEDAL Flour; 2 tsp. baking powder; 1/2 tsp. salt; 1/4 cup sugar
Add............ 1/4 cup shortening ... cutting it in with pastry-blender or 2 knives until mixture looks like "meal"
Break into a measuring cup.. 1 medium-sized egg
Beat slightly with fork to blend yolk and white.
Then add............enough milk to make 1/2 cup
Blend mixture into dry ingredients. Toss dough on lightly-floured cloth-covered board.
Roll out about 3/8" thick into a rectangle 7" x 14". Cut into two 7" squares. Transfer one square of dough to greased heavy baking sheet.
Place 9 separate piles of cooked and pitted prunes on square of dough ... using one heaping tbsp. for each pile. Make 3 rows one way and 3 another.
Dot over prunes.....1 tbsp. butter or margarine
Sprinkle with..... 1 tbsp. sugar, mixed with 1/4 tsp. cinnamon, if desired
Place other half of dough over prunes. Seal the four edges of dough. Brush top of dough with milk and sprinkle with a little sugar.
Cut through both layers of dough entire length of square between rows of prunes. Cut crosswise in the same manner. Bake 20 to 25 minutes in quick mod. oven (375°). Serve slightly warm ... not hot. Amount: 9 medium-sized squares.
NOTE: If desired, serve Prune Scones with your favorite lemon sauce as a dessert.
When using Self Rising Flour, omit salt and baking powder.
"Betty Crocker" and "Kitchen-tested" are reg. trade marks of General Mills. Copr. 1945, General Mills, Inc., Minneapolis, Minn.
SERVE AS A "HOT BREAD" ... OR WITH LEMON SAUCE AS A DELICIOUS DESSERT
"A wee bit of Scotch" ... different, intriguing! Nine individual prune-filled scones, baked as one large square. Really luscious ... so easy to make!
Serve them as "hot bread" for luncheon, supper or Sunday morning breakfast. Or, with your favorite lemon sauce, they make a delectable dessert.
Success depends, to a great degree, on the flakiness of the scones. To be sure they turn out "just so," be sure to use Gold Medal "Kitchen-tested" Enriched Flour. Gold Medal is famous for the fine pastry it makes ... as well as for delicious cakes, fluffy biscuits and high, even-textured bread. For top results, use Gold Medal in all your baking!

BOND SELLERS IN MIGHTY 7TH READY FOR JOB

7,000 N. Siders Go to Work Tomorrow

With a goal of $12,000,000, more than 7,000 men and women in the north shore area will launch a house to house canvass as the mighty 7th war loan drive opens tomorrow. This corps of workers is expected to call on each of the 200,000 families residing within the 2,400 blocks of the division.

Special emphasis will be placed on sale of E bonds to meet the treasury department's 60 per cent increase in quota over the 6th war loan drive in these personal bonds. Pledges also will be taken F and G series.

Under the general chairmanship of Frank C. Rathje, members of the OCD will serve as community heads in the campaign. Lee Ross, director of division 6, has recruited community chairmen to spearhead the canvass and announced community quotas.

List Community Leaders

Chairmen of communities and their quotas are as follows:

Near north side, Clarence McCarthy, $1,750,000; Lincoln park, George Knappstein, $750,000; Lincoln-Fullerton, George T. Jengel, $300,000; Clark-Diversey, Mrs. Ruth Saterlee, $300,000; East Lakeview, Robert Himmel, $750,000; West Lakeview, Francis McArthur, $650,000; Sheridan Center, Herman A. Neiburger, $900,000; Ravenswood, Mrs. Dorothy Le Celso, $250,000, and North Center, Mordecai Rosenberg, $450,000.

Central Uptown, Walt R. Randall, $1,300,000; Uptown Clark, Walter A. Grau, $400,000; Lincoln square, Dominic C. Cronin, $300,000; Edgewater, Clyde H. Bailey, $300,000; North Town, Lawrence J. Jacobson, $500,000; Devon-Sheridan, James W. Whitney, $250,000; Clark-Devon, Judge Joseph Burke, $350,000; Rogers Park-Clark, Roy R. Fierst, $350,000; Indian Boundary, Harold Bolkert, $325,000, and Howard business district, George Beacon, $175,000.

Treasury Names Leader

The war finance communities division of the treasury department has appointed John J. Gallager as regional manager for the north shore. Serving under him are: Near north side, Orville J. Taylor; Lincoln park, Percy Baines; Clark-Diversey-Fullerton, including Clark-Diversey and Lincoln-Fullerton OCD communities, Col. James A. White; East Lakeview, William T. Read and Ralph Schuetz; West Lakeview, Harry Starr and John Fleming; Sheridan Center, Herman A. Neiburger, also with the OCD unit.

Ravenswood, North Center, and Lincoln Sq., Dominic C. Cronin; Central Uptown, Manas Torcum; Edgewater-Clark, including Edgewater and Uptown Clark OCD communities, D. P. Chindblom; North Town and Indian Boundary, Walter E. Carlson; Clark-Devon-Sheridan, including OCD communities of Clark-Devon and Devon-Sheridan, Gustave Heiss; Howard, Rogers Park, and Clark st., Howard Faulkner.

Banks to Coöperate

At a recent meeting for banks of the north shore called by Joseph R. Fry of the Lake Shore National bank, a coöperative plan was organized. Boulevard National, Upper Avenue, Cosmopolitan National, Aetna National, Lake View Trust and Savings, New Lincoln Security Trust and Savings, Uptown National, and North Shore National will coöperate with canvassers and OCD chairmen. W. H. Davis, executive vice president of North Shore National bank, has been appointed division war bond chairman.

At each community headquarters two thermometers will be shown. Upon one will be recorded daily the progress of the drive on a dollar and cents basis; on the second, the percentage of homes canvassed. Window stickers will be shown by all OCD bond wardens, and each warden will wear a large lapel identification badge when working for the drive.

Unitarian Church Women to Hear Musical Program

The woman's alliance of the Unitarian church of Evanston will present a musical program, directed by Jeanice R. Erickson, at 2 p. m. Wednesday in the home of Mrs. Clyde G. Bassler, 1200 Judson av., Evanston. Louella De Windt, contralto and vice president of the Evanston Music club, will sing. Rhea Shelters will play accompaniments.

REVIEW R.O.T.C. UNIT TUESDAY AT LANE TECH

Name Those Cited at Other Schools

R. O. T. C. cadets of Lane Technical High school will pass in review and display their military knowledge this week as federal inspection of nearly 10,000 cadets in 29 Chicago high school units is completed.

Schools ranking first and second in the two week inspection will lead the R. O. T. C. parade May 25, provided the inspectors' decision is announced by that time.

Waller, Sullivan, Senn, Lake View, and Amundsen are the north side high schools already inspected.

Lt. Col. Oscar N. Taylor, professor of military science and tactics for Chicago high schools, is attending a part of each ceremony. Maj. Sydney S. Stocking, adjutant and training officer, and Lt. Abbott C. Combes, assistant adjutant, are in reviewing stands at many of the inspections.

Lane Largest Unit

The five R. O. T. C. area supervisors, Capt. Jay A. Phelps, Capt. Fred D. Sauter, 1st Lt. Walter H. Dennis, 1st Lt. Curtis L. Evans, and 1st Lt. Nathan A. Calder, attend inspections in their districts.

Inspection of the Lane regiment, which with 1,000 cadets is the nation's largest public high school R. O. T. C. regiment, will be held Tuesday morning in the school stadium.

Presentation of awards will follow the parade, which will begin at 9:30 a. m. In addition to R. O. T. C. department awards for efficiency, neatness, marksmanship, and recruiting 18 gold medals for upperclassmen and three silver medals for freshmen will be given by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Drill examination, inspection of equipment and quarters, and theory examination will follow the presentation ceremony.

Lt. Col. Vincent Tomei is cadet commander at Lane and Sgt. George R. Baxter is military instructor.

Name Senn Winners

Senn cadets received awards Friday at ceremonies postponed from Tuesday because of the V-E day closing of public schools. Award winners were:

Department medals—Lt. Col. Arnold Weil, officer's efficiency; Staff Sgt. Robert Vihon, noncommissioned officer's efficiency; 2d Lt. Howard Sandlund, band efficiency; Corp. Robert Lynch, Cadet Roy Klager, and Cadet Gene Kolko, neatness, and Maj. Thomas Sugars, marksmanship.

Tribune medals — Capt. Wayne Johnston, 2d Lt. Henry Koenig, Sgt. Charles Royds, Corp. Phillip Newberger, Corp. Fred Anrod, Cadet Sheldon Maxor, Cadet Stuart Parrish, and Cadet Paul Westman.

North Shore American Legion post awards—Capt. Eugene Heal, 1st Sgt. John Taylor, Technical Sgt. Clarence Baldwin, 1st Sgt. Richard Astraham, Maj. Wilfred Calm. The plaque for an outstanding company was presented to Capt. Joseph Menich.

Other awards—2d Lt. Arthur Norins, 7th district American Legion auxiliary; Maj. Don Gallay, United Spanish-American War Veterans; Staff Sgt. Ernest Partos, PTA, and Staff Sgt. Harry Klocke, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Name Reviewing Party

Included in the reviewing party were David M. Davidson, Senn principal; Mrs. Harriett L. Duffy of the United Spanish-American War Veterans' auxiliary; Lawrence Dougherty, Veterans of Foreign Wars; Mrs. C. M. Losch, PTA president; Mrs. Edward Contarsy, Legion auxiliary, and Col. Frank J. Schneller, chairman of school awards for the Legion post.

Lake View cadets who have received awards are:

Department medals—Lt. Col. Kenneth F. Frankle, officer's efficiency; 1st Sgt. Walter K. Powers, noncommissioned officer's efficiency; Sgt. Nicholas Photiades, band efficiency; Cadet Alfred Moore, Cadet James Lachin, and Cadet Lawrence Bushkin, neatness; Corp. Peter Reich, marksmanship, and Corp. Thomas Poulakidas, recruiting.

OCD CHAIRMAN INDORSES DAD TO GI JOE CLUB

Two Sons Are Naval Lieutenants

With his two sons lieutenants in the navy—one of them overseas, Chairman Clarence A. McCarthy of the near north side OCD division, has given the Tribune Dad to GI Joe plan for buying war bonds his enthusiastic support.

"I'll certainly become a charter member of a Dad to GI Joe club and I'm sure the 175 block captains in my division will encourage residents to follow the idea, too," said McCarthy, who lives at 900 N. Michigan av.

Card for Members

All that is necessary to become a member of a community club is to sign a Dad to GI Joe card which may be obtained from 7th war loan drive headquarters, room 202, 105 W. Adams st. A red, white and blue membership card will be mailed to members who purchase a bond for a daughter, son, or friend.

"There's no better investment in terms of security and return than the smaller bonds, the E, F, and G series," McCarthy continued. "I've been in the investment business 27 years and I ought to know!"

Heads Bond Drives

McCarthy has been chairman of the near north side division in every bond drive except the first and takes pride in the fact that his area has been first in Chicago to go over the top in all drives except the 6th. In World War I., McCarthy was an active worker in Liberty Loan drives. His wife has chalked up 2500 hours of Red Cross services.

The best story about the McCarthy sons, Lt. Clarence Jr. and Lt. William P., is that of their first meeting in 16 months last Feb. 22 in Honolulu, their father thinks.

Clarence was returning to the United States after about two years as executive officer of an aircraft carrier. William, now in the Philippines, was on his way out as skipper of an LCS. Clarence, who is stationed in Philadelphia, Pa., now, didn't know definitely that William was in service, tho he knew his brother had been trying to enter.

NORTH SIDE COUPLE CELEBRATES 50TH WEDDING WITH SON

Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Hartman, 6334 Magnolia av., recently celebrated their 50th wedding with an open house in the home of their son, George H. Hartman, and his wife in Highland Park.

C. R. Hartman

Mrs. Hartman

Another son, Frank R., and his wife, and two grandchildren, George H. Jr. and Susanne, attended. Flowers and telegrams from absent friends also marked the day.

The family has been outstanding in local golfing circles for many years. Mrs. C. R. Hartman, as first president of the Women's Jackson Park Golf club, organized two tournaments which are still active—the Women's Cook County Golf tournament and the Illinois Women's Golf championship. Her husband was organizer and second president of the Marquette Park Golf club. Their son, George, was 1919-'20 city golf champion.

SACRED HEART CONVENT PUPILS TO GIVE CIRCUS

Giraffes, camels, polar bears, and even a panther, made by students at Convent of the Sacred Heart, 6250 Sheridan rd., will be used in the Circus Jumbo-Ree to be staged on the campus at 3 p. m. Saturday.

Students of Hardey Preparatory School for Boys, 6250 Sheridan rd., will join the convent group as acrobatic clowns and funnymen.

Proceeds from the two and a half hour show will go to funds to rebuild Sacred Heart schools in war devastated countries.

EVANSTON TWP. MUSIC FESTIVAL TO OPEN FRIDAY

Singers, Musicians to Take Part

Nearly 1,000 singers and musicians will participate in the 13th spring music festival of Evanston Township High school at 8:15 p. m. Friday and Saturday in the school gymnasium. "For Victory and Everlasting Peace" will be the theme of the gathering, which is under supervision of Miss Sadie Rafferty, director of music, and is sponsored by the PTA and the music department.

Taking part in the program will be a 600 voice chorus, symphony orchestra, concert band, girls' and a male choir, a cappella choir, madrigal singers, and the mastersingers. Assisting Miss Rafferty will be Traugott Rohner, conductor of the 100 piece symphony orchestra; Fred Krueger, band director, and Ruby Shaw and Claire VanderGriend, choral directors.

Stress Peace Theme

Friday's program will be built around a peace theme. Twelve year old Samuel Magad, who has appeared as soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra, will sing, accompanied by Evelyn White. The final choral number will be "Prayer For Peace" by Bendel, and will be accompanied by the band.

The audience will participate in the closing song, "Onward Christian Soldiers." The chorus, orchestra, and band will appear both nights.

Herbert, Gershwin Tunes

American folk music, with melodies by Victor Herbert and George Gershwin, will be heard Saturday night. Raymond Koch and Helen Bickerton will sing a group of Herbert duets. Richard Lutton and Barbara Fisher, recent graduates of the high school, will be soloists with the a cappella choir.

Barbara Weaver and Marian Marquardt, pianists, will appear with the orchestra in "Rhapsody in Blue," by Gershwin. The chorus and orchestra, with Koch as soloist, will present "Roger Young," a ballad inspired by the heroism of an infantry private and written by Pvt. Frank Loesser.

NAUGHTON BROTHERS REUNITED IN PACIFIC 1ST TIME IN 18 MONTHS

Old times at home before Robert Naughton, radioman 2d class, joined the navy in April, 1942, and Thomas, seaman 1st class, enlisted in January, 1944, were the subject of reminiscence for the brothers

Thomas Naughton

Robert Naughton

when they met April 24, for the first time in 18 months.

Tho both were assigned to ships in the Pacific theater, they were unable to get together until the Red Cross arranged the reunion. Tom spent two days and a night on Bob's ship, so plenty of Naughton history was re-told.

The sons of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Naughton Sr., 2015 Cleveland av., the brothers are graduates of Holy Angels High school. Robert attended Quigley Preparatory seminary. Robert has a daughter Patricia, 9 months, and Thomas' son, Tom Jr., is 5.

FLOWER CIRCLE TO CLOSE YEAR WITH LUNCHEON

Little Flower circle, Catholic women's philanthropic organization of the Chicago area, will close its season with a luncheon May 22 in the Edgewater Beach hotel.

The Rev. John J. Dussman, chaplain, will speak. Mrs. Leo Kelley will sing, accompanied by Miss Marie Bernardi.

Mrs. Mabel Russell, retiring president, will summarize the group's 12 year history. Mrs. Edward Kleifgas is the new president. The club has more than 400 members.

ADD OPERATIC STARS TO MUSIC FESTIVAL TESTS

20 Singers Sign for Evanston Tryouts

Virginia Haskins, soprano, a member of the Chicago Opera company, who is often heard on the W-G-N Theater of the Air operettas, will be the star of the second night concert of the first Evanston Music Festival Saturday, June 16, in Cahn auditorium of Scott hall on the Evanston Northwestern campus. Mark Love, basso, will be the leading solo attraction on the first night, Friday, June 15.

Virginia Haskins

Mrs. H. E. Miller of 128 Custer av., Evanston, chairman of the Evanston vocal contest, which includes the north and northwest sections of Cook county, reports that 20 singers have entered the vocal competition. They will be heard in contest Monday night, June 11, at Lutkin hall on the Evanston Northwestern campus. At that time the two best men singers and the two best women singers will be selected. The women will appear on the first festival night in competition and the men at the latter competition.

Leslie H. York, 720 Hinman av., Evanston, general chairman of the two night festival, announces that tickets for both nights are on sale. The festival, held in connection with THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S 16th annual Chicago Music Festival, is sponsored by the Evanston Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Evanston Girl Scout council.

JOHN ROBERT OLSON OF EVANSTON HOME AFTER 50 MISSIONS

John Robert Olson, whose wife lives at 2650 Ridge av., Evanston, is at home on leave after a recent promotion to first lieutenant and the completion of 50 missions as pilot of a Liberator bomber based in Italy.

Lt. John Olson

Lt. Olson holds the air medal with eight clusters. He entered service in January, 1943, and went overseas last October. He was graduated from Evanston Township High school and attended Northwestern university.

A brother, Donald, is stationed with the navy at Manteo, N. C.

FETE PRESIDENT OF ANSHE EMET TUESDAY NIGHT

Member of Anshe Emet synagog, Pine Grove av. at Grace st., will pay tribune to Hyman N. Kohn, who has completed 12 years as president of the congregation, at a dinner Tuesday night in the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel.

Greeting will be extended by presidents of the Men's club, Sisterhood, Junior synagog, Business Woman's group, Alumni, and school, youth, and affiliated organizations, and by William A. Nudelman, executive director. Rabbi Solomon Goldman will speak, and Meyer T. Lazar will be toastmaster.

Cantor Moses Silverman and Leah Schiff of the synagog choir will present a musical program.

Methodist Club Will See Wire Recorder at Work

When the men's club of First Methodist church, Evanston, meets at 6:30 p. m. Tuesday members will witness a demonstration of recording sound on magnetized wire. W. H. Brott will give the demonstration. A dinner at 7 p. m. and election of officers also are scheduled.

New Baby Photos for Dads Overseas

It's Mother's day at home, but service men overseas who receive these V-mail pictures of their wives and babies will feel more like celebrating Father's day. The photos, already sent to wives thru a service of the Metropolitan section of THE TRIBUNE, are on their way to husbands in war zones.

If 4 months old John Lowe Felmeth Jr., 6911 Ravenswood av., grows up to be more patriotic than usual, the reason no doubt will be that both his parents were in uniform in World War II. Mrs. Felmeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Meyers of the Ravenswood av. address, was a control tower operator at the Norfolk, Va., naval air station 16 months. While there she met Marine Lt. John Felmeth of Elizabeth, N. J., and they were married three months later.

Looks Toward Harvard

Lt. Felmeth has been in the South Pacific since last August. His son was born Jan. 31. "My husband is a Harvard man and I think he has plans for John Jr. to be a Harvard football captain about 1962," Mrs. Felmeth laughed.

Susan Scott, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. George B. Scott, Lake Forest, was born last Sept. 18. Her father, pilot of a Liberator bomber, was sent to the South Pacific in January, 1944. He has completed more than 50 missions and holds the air medal with four clusters and the Purple Heart. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Hay Scott, also live in Lake Forest.

A Northwestern university law school graduate, Staff Sgt. Max J. Becker was a member of the Daniel D. Carmell law firm in Chicago before entering service three years ago. He was sent to the European theater in April, 1944, and now is in France. His daughter, Susan Lynne, was born Dec. 13, 1944. She and her mother live at 905 Lawrence av.

Sports GI Haircut

Tho his father is a chief petty officer in the navy, Charles David Tewksbury sports a GI haircut. "His hair just hasn't grown out yet," Mrs. Charles F. Tewksbury, 2811 Fitch av., said. Her husband has been in service more than four years and on duty in the Pacific since February, 1944. The baby was born Nov. 17, 1944.

Staff Sgt. Arnold M. Owens has been with the weather division of the army air forces in Africa since April 25, 1944. His daughter, Barbara Diane, who was born last Sept. 26, and Mrs. Owens live at 3173 Pine Grove av.

"Has Eyes of Father"

"Curly hair and black eyes like his father," is the way Mrs. Richard D. Roberts, 4504 Hazel st., describes her son, Richard Jr., who was born Nov. 10, 1944. The baby's father is a pharmacist's mate 1st class with the seabees in the Philippines. He went overseas last September after spending seven months at home following his return from duty in Africa. He entered service in 1942 and was stationed in Africa nine months.

Carolyn Ann Malone, who will celebrate her first birthday July 11, is "pure Irish" and "looks like her dad from the nose on up," Mrs. John Francis Malone, 1327 Addison st., declared. Her husband, a chief commissary steward in the navy, has been in the Pacific a year, and in service five years. He has sent Mrs. Malone all sorts of souvenirs, including grass skirts, walking sticks, and ash trays made from bullets.

Corp. Reeves D. Smith, whose wife lives at 4502 N. Paulina st., is with the army in Belgium. He went overseas in April, 1944, and has been in service 18 months. His daughter, Lynn Carol, was born Dec. 6, 1944.

Dad in Marianas

The father of Roberta Darlene Grant, born last Oct. 7, is Robert H. Grant, aviation machinist's mate 1st class, who has been overseas a year and now is in the Mariana Islands. He has been in the navy almost five years. The Grants live at 1704½ Juneway terr.

Sgt. Donald Graves, an x-ray technician with the medical corps in New Guinea, went overseas in December, 1943. His daughter, Penelope, who lives with her mother at 6806 N. Wolcott av., will mark her first birthday June 18.

Glen Ossian Olson, 4715 N. Leavitt st., is a boatswain's mate 3d class with the navy and has been in the Pacific more than a year. He entered service in January, 1942. The sailor's son, Robert Glen, was born Oct. 25, 1944.

Altho her father has never seen her, Nancy Joanne Pruneau of 1405 Thome av., is getting to be a big girl—she'll celebrate her second birthday next Oct. 1. Staff Sgt. James J. Pruneau has been overseas since the spring of 1943. He fought in Africa and Italy and was one of the first soldiers to land at Salerno.

Pvt. George J. Knapp, 1461 Carmen av., has finished fighting for a while at least, for he is with the army in Germany. He entered service in September, 1942, and went overseas in November, 1943. His son, Francis George, was a year old last Dec. 26.

John M. Schmidt, metalsmith 2d class with the seabees, has been in service since September, 1943, and in Hawaii since spring of 1944. His wife and daughter, Merikay, who was born Oct. 23, 1944, live at 841 Roscoe st.

Military Wedding

LT. AND MRS. GRIGGINS

Miss Antoinette Petrovic, Waukegan, and Lt. Anthony Griggins, North Chicago, were married recently with military ceremony in Mother of God church, Waukegan.

SOLDIER IS GIVEN HOSPITAL LEAVE FOR HIS WEDDING

A military wedding, even to the arch of rifles under which 1st Lt. Anthony J. Griggins and his bride left Mother of God church in Waukegan, brought a climax to the lieutenant's four years of army life, nearly half of which has been spent in hospitals.

Lt. Griggins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Zabrowski, North Chicago, and Miss Antoinette Petrovic, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Petrovic, Waukegan, were married in a nuptial high mass by the Rev. M. J. Hiti, church pastor. A breakfast in the church hall followed the ceremony, and a reception for several hundred guests was given in the evening.

Gets 30 Day Recess

After a 30 day leave for a wedding trip to Wisconsin Lt. Griggins will return to Gardiner General hospital for another operation. He has been in the hospital since March, 1944, receiving treatment for a leg injury suffered Nov. 6, 1943, in Italy.

The officer holds the Purple Heart with one cluster, the silver star, and four campaign ribbons for action in Africa, Tunisia, Sicily, and Italy. He entered service in February, 1941, and arrived in Africa in November, 1942.

Wounded Twice in Italy

Lt. Griggins received the silver star for courage in destroying two machine gun nests in Italy. He was wounded twice in the campaign, the second time seriously. Hit by shrapnel at 9:30 a. m., the officer lay without treatment until 5:30 p. m., when enemy resistance in the sector was wiped out and hospital corps men were able to reach him. Lt. Griggins was in a cast 13 months and has had five operations.

In civil life he was a life guard on North Chicago and Waukegan beaches.

American Legion.

The Rogers Park post of the American Legion, 1630 Devon av., will join the Winnetka post at the 7th district meeting at the Winnetka community house Wednesday night.

LT. WALTER A. HANSON WOUNDED IN THIGH BY 'KAMERAD' GIVING UP

Wounded in the right leg by a rifle shot from a Nazi fanatic while leading a platoon attack to capture Ooslonavich [a town between the Ruhr and Rhine rivers], 2d Lt. Walter A. Hanson, 1505 Dearborn pkwy., has been awarded the Purple Heart and is recovering in an army convalescent camp in England.

Lt. Hanson.

As the platoon captured its objective one German came out with his hands above his head, Lt. Hanson recounted, "I ordered the men not to shoot him. The German approached within a few feet of me, suddenly grabbed his gun and shot me in the thigh. It was suicide for him. My men riddled him with bullets."

Before entering the army in March, 1943, the 23 year old lieutenant was a physical education student in the University of Illinois. He attended infantry officer candidate school at Fort Benning, Ga., and was commissioned Dec. 6, 1944. His mother, Mrs. Marguerite Hanson, lives at the Dearborn pkwy. address.

LEYTE FIGHTER GIVEN BRONZE STAR AWARD

The bronze star medal has been awarded Tech. Sgt. John P. Crane, brother of Miss Mary Crane, 2212 Giddings st., for heroic achievement at Doulag harbor, Leyte, last Nov. 12. When an enemy plane made a suicidal dive and crashed onto the vessel on which Sgt. Crane was assigned, he helped to extricate the wounded and dead from the flaming deck.

Sgt. Crane

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

Lt. John E. Lawlor Jr. is spending a leave at the home of his parents, 3757 Lakewood av. Pilot of an 8th air force Flying Fortress, he completed 35 missions in 10 months overseas. Lt. Lawler holds the air medal with five clusters and a Presidential unit citation.

Lt. Lawler

The silver star has been awarded Corp. Theodore A. Tiburtini, son of Mrs. Mary Tiburtini, 667 Barry av., for gallantry in action in Belgium last Jan. 7.

Lt. John A. Youngren, 7667 Sheridan rd., has been decorated with the bronze star for gallantry in action in Germany from Feb. 28 to March 7, 1945. He has been in service since April 11, 1941. Lt. Youngren's wife resides at the Sheridan rd. address. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. John A. Youngren, 1729 Farwell av.

Lt. Youngren

A veteran of the battle of Peleliu, Ensign George W. Syfert, Winnetka, is honor man in the officer training class at landing craft school, Coronado, Cal. He entered the naval reserve in August, 1943.

SUITS ARE RADICALLY DIFFERENT

Shoulders are softened, necklines are collarless. Waists are well defined, cleverly accentuated. Lines are soft and subtle like the lovely wool crepe suit we have pictured. Edging of the same fabric used as a binding is the trim. Front and back pleated skirt. In a great variety of colors for all sizes up to 20. Lots of gabardines, too, in the most complete selection of suits we've had.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, May 14

One of the most important activities in the war garden is thinning plants in each row. Keep the hoe going at least once a week. Thinning is simply removing plants when they are too close together in order that those remaining will have full space in which to develop.

Perennials should not be permitted to grow until they encroach on others to the detriment of all. Those that are strong growers spread over the ground rapidly and crowd out slower or weaker growers. They should be kept in bounds and the only way to do it is to thin them out and restrict them.

Tuesday, May 15

Weather permitting, tomato plants can be set in the ground. Eggplants and peppers should be planted at the same time because they are strictly tropical and must be treated as such.

Vegetables require at least six hours of sun and should not be close to trees, for the tree roots sap the ground of food and moisture. Grass does poorly under trees unless the shade is light.

Wednesday, May 16

When planting perennial flowering plants prepare the ground by deep digging and by thoroly breaking it up. This induces deep rooting. Do not crowd the plants or plant annuals too close together in the border, for it induces disease and insects to increase.

Plant perennials immediately. Spray hollyhocks, phlox, and peonies. Lay in green stakes or suitable stakes for perennials and other tall plants.

Thursday, May 17

Keep after the insects, for unless they are combatted continually the plant may be seriously injured. Many authorities believe that dusting is more effective and not so messy as spraying and it is an easy method.

Fold cheesecloth eight times, placing the dust—such as rotenone dust, tobacco dust, or pyrethrum dust—in it. Shake the cloth over the plants. A regular cloud of the insecticide issues forth.

Friday, May 18

Cultivate the borders as well as all other plants and especially newly planted borders. Shrubs are usually allowed to go along without much attention, but it is not conducive to good growth. Old shrubs need feeding and if animal manures are not available use commercial fertilizers.

When growing seedlings, give them the maximum of light, for light is absolutely essential to produce healthy and sturdy plants. Some plants require subdued light. These are the English ivy, palms, fancy leaved caladium, African violet, ferns, dumb cane, and similar plants. Most flowering plants like sun.

Saturday, May 19

Try to have window boxes full of plants and annual vines on porches or wherever they are needed to aid in beautifying the home. Annuals also can be grown in baskets in an effective manner. Some of these are canary vine or creeper, tall nasturtiums, gypsophila elegans, and nemophila insignis. Even schizanthus is worth a trial.

Take a wire basket, line it with a layer of sphagnum moss, dried or fresh, and fill the space with good, rich compost, adding a small amount of commercial fertilizer.

GERMAN PRISON HOSPITAL MOST UN-HOSPITABLE

Yank Received No Heat or Care—Just Soup

The toasted almonds and good cigars Pvt. Leo Shafran, 3016 Sunnyside av., has been enjoying at McCloskey General hospital at Temple, Tex., are a far cry from his fare of the last three months. He was a prisoner in a German prison hospital at Heppenheim since he was wounded at Bitche, France, in January.

Pvt. Leo Shafran

In a recent telephone conversation with his wife, he related some of the treatment he and 280 other allied fighters received there.

"You couldn't exactly call it a hospital," he said. "There wasn't any heat and the windows were all barred. We had no solid food—just soup."

Unable to Escape

The day of his capture Shafran was on watch on a hilltop. He spotted a German battalion approaching and thought he could make it unobserved thru a heavy snowstorm to a shelter to warn his buddy, but a rifle bullet got him in the left leg.

Caught between the subsequent American artillery fire and German machine gun fire, Shafran spent the night in the snow trying to stop the bleeding from his wound. The following morning, in answer to his "comrade," "medic," the German medics bandaged his leg and took him to the cellar of his shelter house they had taken over. The next day he was evacuated to Heppenheim.

Get Little Medical Aid

The first six weeks, he said, the wounded men had no treatment except from two fellow prisoners, French medics. There were no gauze bandages, only paper ones. Things picked up a little later, he said, when a lieutenant and major of the United States medical corps were taken prisoner and transferred to Heppenheim.

While a prisoner, Shafran said, his diet was a loaf of black bread shared with nine other men each morning, potato peeling soup for lunch and dinner, barley coffee in midafternoon, and watery soup at night.

March 27 will always be a red letter day in Shafran's life—his day of liberation by members of the 3d armored division.

Sees Lost Yank First

For several days previous, Shafran related, the boys had "sweated out" American bombardment. On the night of March 26 all German guards fled, leaving the German commandant of the hospital to hold the fort alone.

The first liberator they saw—a lone Yank—was a distinct disappointment. He was an orphan of the storm and lost from his own Yank platoon. Soon, however, he was followed by a Yank tank and three riflemen. Within less than a week, the wounded Yanks had passed thru Paris on their way back to this country in air transports.

Shafran was a salesman for Sears Roebuck & Co. before entering the service in March, 1944.

American Women at War

Censoring WAC mail is the job of 2d Lt. Ruth Ford, 451 Wrightwood av., who has been in New Guinea a year. A former teacher in the 4th grade at Dante school, Lt. Ford enlisted in July, 1943, and received training at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga. Her uncle, H. R. Sternheim, 424 Diversey pkwy., said Lt. Ford probably was chosen for overseas duty because she speaks four languages.

Lt. Ruth Ford

The good conduct medal has been awarded two north side WACs. Pvt. Helen L. Johnson, 27 W. Ohio st., received the award at Fort Des Moines, Ia. Pvt. Hannah Pike, whose husband, Sgt. Harry Pike, is overseas, won the medal at Romulus, Mich., army air field. Her sister-in-law, Miss Ida Pike, lives at 5441 Kenmore av.

Pvt. Helen D. Moore, 1331 Loyola av., is with a WAC detachment at allied headquarters in Italy.

Second Lt. Eloise Schumacher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Schumacher, 6542 Newgard av., has completed basic training with the army nurse corps at Camp McCoy, Wis., and been assigned to Camp Gordon, Ga., station hospital. She was graduated from nursing school at St. Francis hospital, Evanston.

Lt. Schumacher

Frances L. Schaffer, 3445 Broadway, has been promoted to corporal at a supply base in France where she is a clerk in the office of the headquarters commandant. Sgt. Schaffer arrived in England in April, 1944, and was a member of the first WAC convoy to enter France the following September.

Corp. Ada I. Crawford, 1308 Winnemac av., is a clerk in the signal office of the southeast Asia command, Kandy, Ceylon. She arrived at Bombay, India, in December, 1943, and also has been stationed in New Delhi.

Pvt. Mary Louise Whalen, 1450 Cullom av., is serving at Fitzsimmons General hospital, Denver, Colo., after completing training at Fort Des Moines, Ia.

Top Priority on Essential War Effort ... Fine Training ... Good Pay ... Steady Work and Postwar Future in Aviation ...
COME TO DOUGLAS TODAY!

THE WAR IS NOT OVER UNTIL YOU HELP LICK JAPAN

The Truth is That Our Real Task is Just Beginning!

The big C-54 transport planes you can help to build here are even more necessary in the Pacific conflict. Companion planes to the largest bombers, these C-54's carry everything to our fighting men—jeeps, ammunition, types of supplies of every sort. And as long as men are being shot, and wounded, these C-54's will be needed in increasing numbers to move casualties to hospitals.

Then the C-54 Becomes the Commercial Airliner After the War

The skills Douglas employees acquire fit them for a future in aviation—and in working with the new light metals such as magnesium and aluminum alloys. When you work at Douglas, you have the best job that any loyal American could have today. Come out at once!

ANCIENT GREEKS KNEW SECRET OF USING ONE'S HEAD

But Trick, Slaves Learn, Is Done Only Once

BY RUTH LOGAN.

Fifty years from now, when the term military secret no longer signifies such matters as codes and ciphers used in the present war, we may learn that Germans and Japanese used human writing paper to send communications at the rate of a life a message.

If so, it will not be a new atrocity, asserted Dr. Joseph S. Galland, professor of Romance languages at Northwestern university, who has studied the science of cryptography or sending of messages in code since World War I.

Makes Good Greeting Card

The method was practiced in a leisurely fashion by the old Greeks and Romans, who seem to have thought of their own version of V-mail first. They would chose a slave, said Prof. Galland, shave his head and tattoo a message on the bald pate. After the hair had grown again the slave would be sent to the person for whom the message was destined. The recipient would shave his head, read the message, and order the slave killed.

Another favorite, quicker, and less expensive mean of communication was that in which a note was printed on a strip of papyrus which had been wound tightly about a staff. The papyrus would be unwound and sent on its way. In order to read the note the receiver had to wind the strip on a staff of the same size or the lines of writing would not dovetail.

Present methods have advanced beyond those early examples of cryptography, Prof. Galland indicated, but since secrecy shrouds anything pertaining to military intelligence, it may be a long time before today's codes are publicized.

Will Publish Book Soon

The professor's reference volume, "An Historical and Analytical Bibliography of the Literature of Cryptology," will be published this spring by Northwestern university with consent of the war department. The preface explains that the book is a register of the most important works written on cryptography and related fields.

Prof. Galland, who lives at 1609 Ridge av., Evanston, became interested in the subject when he served with army intelligence in France and Germany in the first World war. He received the Legion of Honor for his work.

Know Your Cryptology

Cryptography and cryptology sometimes are used interchangeably, Prof. Galland said. The latter, however, is a broader term including any enigmatical symbols from the dots and dashes representing victory to signals reputedly left on door posts by hobos telling how good the dinner, if any, is served by the resident. Cryptography is the writing of messages in code.

Economics rather than racial characteristics affect a nation's ingenuity in developing military codes, the professor believes. The country with money to support schools for teaching use and deciphering of codes has the best intelligence system.

SHOW COSTUMES THAT HELPED TO MAKE '90s GAY

Historical Society Puts Accent on Frills

A colorful whirl around the calendar, timed to the rhythms of yesteryear, is the tempo of a costume exhibit now on display at the Chicago Historical society, Clark st. at North av. The costumes are displayed jointly with Edward A. Wilson's paintings illustrating 12 familiar songs and verses of the gay '90s.

Mannequins masquerade in day time and evening clothes which were worn by fashionable Chicagoans of that time.

Show Tennis Frock of '94

A sweetheart dress of flowered blue dimity with a lace yoke is a counterpart of that worn by little Annie Rooney as she entertains her Joe in the painting by Wilson. A red and white tennis frock, once used by Jessie C. Ward while a Smith college student in 1894, is coupled with the sketch "A Bicycle Built for Two."

The World's Columbian exposition was a high point of the '90s and the elegance of the inaugural ball, which made history for the period, is reflected in the ice green satin and brocade gown worn by Jessie D. Gillett. A more romantic note from the decade is the bridesmaid's dress worn by Mrs. George Carpenter at her brother's wedding in 1890.

Show Other Heirlooms

In 1895, Mrs. Erich Gerstenberg had in her wardrobe a smart, black serge riding habit with the skirt cut in side saddle pattern. A trim derby completes the outfit which was donated to the museum by Miss Alice Gerstenberg.

Companion piece to the painting, "Good Old Summertime," is the pink and black dotted swiss with black lace trim designed in 1896 and presented to the costume collection by Mrs. Gentry Cash and Dr. Henrietta Calhoun. Many other costumes owned by Chicagoans of the period are included in the display which will be on view thru June. Doors are open from 9:30 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. weekdays and from 12:30 to 5:30 p. m. Sundays.

N. SIDE WOMAN'S CLUB WILL MARK UNIT'S BIRTHDAY

District and local club presidents of the National Federation of Colored Women's clubs will be guests when the North Side Woman's club, Elm and Orleans sts., celebrates its 44th anniversary with an open house from 3 to 6 p. m. Wednesday at 4941 South Park way. Mrs. Mary Wilson, 1043 N. Wells st., is president. Three charter members who will attend are Mrs. Emma Granberry, Mrs. Anna Daniels, and Mrs. Frances Askins.

Mrs. Wilson

SEAT LUTHERAN CHURCH LEADER ON NEXT SUNDAY

The Rev. A. G. Merkens formerly of Pittsburgh, Pa., will be installed as director of Chirstian education in the northern Illinois district of the Missouri synod at 4 p. m. next Sunday in First St. John's Lutheran church, Hoyne av. and Walton st.

The Rev. Ernest T. Lams, district president, will officiate. The Rev. A. R. Kretzmann, pastor of St. Luke's Evangelical Lutheran church, will be the principal speaker. The Rev. Carl L. Abel, district chairman of the board of education, will be liturgist and Gerhard Becker will be organist.

The Lutheran Teachers chorus, directed by T. G. Naeser, and the Lutheran Children's chorus of Arlington Heights, under supervision of Theodore Preuss, will sing.

Crown Ferry Hall May Queen on Wednesday

The crowning of the May queen by students of Ferry hall, Lake Forest, will be held at 3:30 p. m. Wednesday. Folk dances and a reception for guests, the queen, and her attendants, and for members of the graduating class with faculty members as hostesses will complete the program.

V-MAIL PHOTOS ADD MOTHER'S DAY MESSAGE

They Carry On While Husbands Fight

Printed today as a tribute to the mothers who must serve as both parents to their children until their husbands come home are more baby pictures which have been printed on V-mail stationery for wives who will mail them to husbands overseas who have never seen their new children.

One mother with a full time job on her hands is Mrs. Francis Myers, 918 E. 75th st., whose husband is an infantryman in Germany. In addition to Carolyn, 4 months, she also cares for Kathleen, 17 months, her twins, Mary and Margaret, 3, and Francis Jr., 5. She does all her own work and insists, "I enjoy it, really."

Misses Daughter by Month

Phyllis Rose Di Julio was born on Dec. 8, 1943, nearly a month before her dad, Pvt. Frank Di Julio, was shipped out with the marines. Di Julio will receive his picture of Phyllis and her mother on Okinawa. Phyllis, her mother, and her sister, Geraldine, 2, live at 258 W. 23d pl.

Mother and daughter in the Barton household at 5401 Woodlawn were quite excited recently to learn that Pvt. William Barton was in San Francisco, waiting to come home on furlough. Sharon Louise was born last November, six months after her dad left for the South Pacific with an armored force. Pvt. Barton has been in service three years.

Serves in ETO on LST

For the duration Mrs. George Rumsey and her son, Thomas, are living with her parents at 5756 Blackstone av. Lt. [j.g.] Rumsey, overseas since March a year ago, is serving on an LST in the European theater. His son was born Nov. 9.

Among those dads still in the country when their baby was born but who couldn't get home before being shipped out is John E. Johnson, shipfitter 3d class, whose wife and son, Daniel James, are living at 7349 Dorchester av. Johnson left for the South Pacific aboard a repair ship July 20. Daniel was born July 9.

When Craig Alexander Davison was born last November his dad, Lt. Craig O. Davison was already on his way to join a 7th army infantry division. Craig and his mother are living at 8042 Vernon av.

Await Father's Return

Mrs. Joseph Staszak and Joseph Jr., 10152 Yates av., are eagerly awaiting Pvt. Staszak's return from Germany. Pvt. Staszak, an infantryman, has been overseas since last May. Joseph Jr. was born in January.

Mrs. Ford Bradley II. and her son, Ford, divide their time between her husband's family at 724 E. 72d st., and her parents who live in Austin. Sgt. Bradley overseas since March, 1944, is in the intelligence division of the signal corps. His son was born July 13.

Sgt. Charles A. Danforth had been overseas five months when he received word of Charles' arrival in June. Mrs. Danforth and her son live at 5731 Michigan av. Sgt. Danforth is serving with the field artillery in the South Pacific.

Dad Overseas a Year

Sgt. Joseph Chessare will receive the V-mail picture of his wife and daughter, Janet, in Burma, where he is stationed with the army engineers. Sgt. Chessare has been overseas a year. Janet, born Oct. 1, and her mother live at 8362 Manistee av.

Raymond Michael, or Mike as he is called by his mother and 2 year old sister, Sharon Lee, was born last November while his dad, a sergeant, was with the army engineers in France. Mrs. R. W. Sanders and her two children live at 7310 Yates av.

Mrs. John R. Martin and Phyllis Mae, 6315 Harper av., anxiously are awaiting word from Pvt. Martin, who has been in Germany with a railway battalion. He was serving with the 3d army and has been overseas since last April. Phyllis Mae is nearly 5 months old and her mother is hoping her husband will get home in time at least for Phyllis Mae's first birthday.

In Engineers with Patton

Mrs. Herbert Barnett and her son, Richard, are living at 2221 E. 68th st. while waiting for Warrant Officer Barnett to come home. Barnett has been serving with the 3d army engineers in Germany. He had been overseas a month when Richard was born last November.

Mrs. Josph Reader, 1707 E. 67th st., reports that her husband who was wounded and received the Purple Heart twice is back on duty with an air force ground crew in England. He had been overseas six months when he received word of the birth of his son, Burt, last December.

MOUNT CARMEL MOTHERS PLAN WEEK'S EVENTS

Members of the Mount Carmel Mothers club will attend mass and breakfast with their sons at 9 a. m. tomorrow in the gymnasium of Mount Carmel High school, 6410 Dante av.

A party of games has been arranged for 8 p. m. Tuesday by Mrs. Frank Nessinger, 1627 E. 86th st., the chairman, in the gymnasium. On Thursday at 8 p. m., the club will sponsor a concert by the high school band and glee club in Orchestra hall. Mrs. Clarence Eklund is chairman of the concert recital.

For courageous and outstanding performance of duty as a member of a volunteer fire fighting and salvage party on a destroyer Coast Guardsman Donald J. Carroll, seaman 2d class, 1418 E. 71st pl., was awarded a commendation ribbon. When a fire broke out in the forward hold of a ship in convoy, Carroll volunteered to serve in a rescue party which boarded the burning and abandoned ship, despite the danger of further enemy torpedoing and the fact that a sizable quantity of ammunition was still aboard.

MOTHER GETS GREETING FROM 4 SONS AT WAR

Sgt. John K. Walsh sent a Mother's day greeting home recently that spoke not only for himself, but his three brothers in service as well. The boys are the sons of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas E. P. Walsh, 8241 Eberhart av.

The greeting, received a bit prematurely, was sent V-mail and consisted of a sketch of the four boys in their uniforms, and the verse: "It's all your boys from far away, sending our Love on Mother's day." Sgt. Walsh, overseas over a year, has been serving in a signal service company in Belgium.

His brothers include Lt. Thomas F. Walsh Jr., with the 7th army in Germany; Pvt. Robert G. Walsh, with an intelligence unit in France, and William J. Walsh, apprentice seaman finishing his boot training at Great Lakes.

REVIEW CADETS THIS WEEK AT 3 SO. SIDE HIGHS

Name Those Cited at Other Schools

R. O. T. C. cadets of Hirsch, Du Sable, and Hyde Park High schools will pass in review and display their military knowledge this week as federal inspection of nearly 10,000 cadets in 29 Chicago high school units is completed. Students of these south side schools will be among 216 Chicago cadets who will receive medals from THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE during the annual ceremonies.

Schools ranking first and second in the two week inspection will lead the R. O. T. C. parade May 25, provided the inspectors' decision is announced by that time. St. Mel High school cadets, who are not included in the Chicago high school unit, are assured of at least third place in the parade.

Three Schools Inspected

South Shore, Tilden, and Bowen High schools have been visited since inspection began May 4. Each unit is inspected by three officers from a group of 20 inspectors, headed by Lt. Col. Lewis C. Gordon, who are assigned to visit all R. O. T. C. groups in the 6th service command.

Lt. Col. Oscar N. Taylor, professor of military science and tactics for Chicago high schools, is attending a part of each ceremony, and Maj. Sydney S. Stocking, adjutant and training officer, and Lt. Abbott C. Combes, assistant adjutant, are in reviewing stands at many of the inspections.

The five R. O. T. C. area supervisors, Capt. J. A. Phelps, Capt. Fred D. Sauter, 1st Lt. Walter H. Dennis, 1st Lt. Curtis L. Evans, and 1st Lt. Nathan A. Calder, attend inspections in their districts.

Review Hirsch Tomorrow

The 200 members of the Hirsch High school battalion, headed by Lt. Col. Robert Crist, will be reviewed at 9:30 a. m., tomorrow, in Grand Crossing park, 7740 Ingleside av. As at most other schools, the ceremonies will be in the school gymnasium in case of rain.

In addition to the Tribune medals and R. O. T. C. department awards for efficiency, neatness, markmanship, and recruiting, awards will be made by the United Spanish American War Veterans, the Eaton-Priddy American Legion post, the American Legion auxiliary, and the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Master Sgt. Harold B. Alexander is military instructor at Hirsch.

Du Sable Review Wednesday

Lt. Col. Lucien Cruce Jr. is commander of the Du Sable High school regiment, which will be reviewed at 50th and State sts. Wednesday morning. Staff Sgt. Claude L. Shelton is military instructor for the 380 cadets.

Among organizations offering awards to outstanding Du Sable R. O. T. C. men are the United Spanish War Veterans' auxiliary, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the Cook County council of the American Legion auxiliary. Seven Tribune medals will be presented.

The Jackson park baseball grounds will be the scene of the Hyde Park High school inspection Thursday morning. The Hyde Park regiment of 480 students is headed by Lt. Col. James Barnett, with Corp. Oscar F. Hartman as military instructor.

Others to Give Medals.

Medals will be presented by the Woodlawn American Legion post and auxiliary, the Cook County council of the auxiliary, and the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Seventeen members of the Bowen R. O. T. C. unit have received awards.

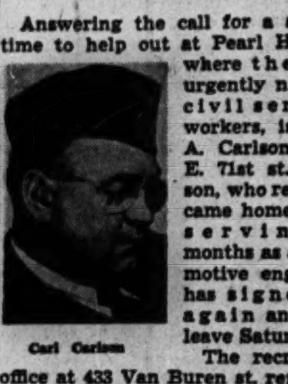
NAVY APPEALS FOR WORKERS AT PEARL HARBOR

South Sider Answers Call Second Time



Carl Carlson

Answering the call for a second time to help out at Pearl Harbor, where the navy urgently needs civil service workers, is Carl A. Carlson, 1441 E. 71st st. Carlson, who recently came home after serving 18 months as a locomotive engineer, has signed up again and will leave Saturday.

The recruiting office at 433 Van Buren st. reported that it was a simple matter to sign up Carlson again because he has what might be called a personal invitation from Rear Adm. William E. Furlong, Pearl Harbor yard commandant. The invitation is in the form of a citation for an act of bravery performed by Carlson during his last assignment.

Unloading Ammunition Ship

It happened a year ago. Carlson was in the cab of his engine, "watching the flying fishes skitter over the water," while his crew finished loading the last car from an ammunition ship. Scarcely a city block away there was a flotilla of LST ships loaded with ammunition ready to leave for the Southwest Pacific.

"Something caught my eye, sort of a blue light like a welder's torch on one of the ships," he said. "Then, the ship blew up with two more ships exploding right after. My fireman was knocked flat on his face. There I was with seven freight cars packed with ammunition while blazing hunks of steel flew all over the place.

"I guess I didn't have time to think, but I was angry because the crew ditched the train and left me in the cab. I ducked out of the cab and coupled the remaining cars. Before I could get back a side of one of the ships lit near the track killing a sailor and a marine. Jumping back into the cab I opened up the throttle and whistled out of there as fast as the engine could take me.

"There was nothing heroic about it," Carlson insisted, "it was the only thing to do, because if the fireworks got into those cars where would I be."

When he leaves for Pearl Harbor he will take his brother, Cornell, and his brother-in-law, Eugene Rosain. Both are machinists. Frank J. Fitzgerald, United States civil service commission, states there is a great need for machinists, sheet metal workers, and electricians. He said, "And these are not jobs just for repairing damaged ships during the clean-up of Japan. The navy has a big program of activity that will continue long after the war is over."

Gets Picture of Brother Sketched in Nazi Prison

A sketch of Lt. Robert C. Miller, made by a fellow prisoner while both were interned by the Germans, recently was presented his brother, Oliver Miller, 7242 Euclid av., with whom Lt. Miller makes his home. The presentation was made by Frank A. Hathaway, secretary, on behalf of the Y. M. C. A., which supplied materials to the artist.

Officer's Bride

MRS. MURRAY FLANDER

Judith Ann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo H. Rosenberg, 7518 Chappel av., was married recently to Lt. Murray S. Flander, son of Mrs. Mollie Smith of New York City. The bride is a graduate of South Shore High school and attended the University of Wisconsin. Lt. Flander, a graduate of Queens college in New York City, has been in service since August, 1942. He served a year in Alaska and returned to this country to enter officer candidate school.

Women at War

Lt. Evelyn Harner

Evelyn Lee Harner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Harner, 8235 Drexel av., recently was promoted to first lieutenant at the marine corps air station, Santa Barbara, Cal., where she is assistant navy supply officer. Lt. Harner, graduate of Northwestern university, has been in service two years.

WAC Pvt. Gladys Greig, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Greig, 6647 Woodlawn av., recently was graduated from a 16 week medical and surgical technician's course at Foster General hospital, Jackson, Miss.

Stationed with the Southeast Asia command at Kandy, Ceylon, India, WAC Ruth A. Relyea, formerly of 1215 E. 71st st., recently was promoted to technician 3d grade. She is a clerk-typist in the intelligence section.

Lt. Loyola Marsden

Lt. Loyola Marsden, army nurse, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Marsden, 9234 Cottage Grove av., recently completed her basic training at Camp McCoy, Wis., and has been assigned to the station hospital at Camp Gordon, Ga. Lt. Marsden, who has had six years nursing experience, is a graduate of Calumet High school and West Suburban hospital. Her brother, Pvt. Charles G. Marsden, is overseas with an anti-aircraft unit.

Two south siders are among WACs taking basic military training at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., as members of a newly organized medical company. They are Privates Estelle Tulsky, 4526 Drexel blvd., and Marie L. McIntyre, 2544 E. 77th st.

RED CROSS ASKS FOR VOLUNTEERS IN HOME SERVICE

Demands on Workers Show Increase

Four south side women recently completed classroom training as Red Cross home service volunteers and with 31 other south siders will give at least two days a week to the corps.

The new members are Mrs. Hjalmar Johnson, 5811 Dorchester av.; Mrs. Robert I. Logan, 1201 Madison pk.; Mrs. Cyrus Pancoast, 11216 Indiana av., and Mrs. Caspar S. Robbins, 2054 E. 69th st.

During the month the number of calls concerning enemy prison camps, veterans applying for assistance, and the number of service men's families needing help has increased.

Start New Class

Mrs. Edwin Eisendrath, chairman, said another class will be organized for May 28 so more urgently needed volunteers may apply. Application may be made at the south district office, 6208 Drexel av.

South side volunteer workers now include: Mrs. Hyman Alperwitz, 7731 Kingston av.; Mrs. Richard Alschuler, 4932 Lake Park av.; Mrs. Joy Camp, 4826 Greenwood av.; Mrs. Franklin B. Conn, 5480 Everett av.; Mrs. Abram Davis, 5483 Hyde Park blvd.; Mrs. Louis Delson, 6941 Merrill av.; Mrs. Lester Duetsch, 5145 Ingleside av.; Mrs. Paul Frase, 6808 Perry av.; Mrs. William Gibson, 7639 Colfax av.; Mrs. Paul Hahn, 7415 Euclid av.; and Mrs. Edgar Hooper, 8456 St. Lawrence av.

List Other Volunteers

Others are Mrs. Hugo Law, 5742 Kenwood av.; Mrs. J. Lawrence, 1400 E. 68th st.; Mrs. Max Loeb, 919 Hyde Park blvd.; Mrs. Gregory McClockey, 7321 South Shore dr.; Mrs. Roy McCormick, 5123 Kimbark av.; Mrs. Joseph Mayer, Hotel Shoreland; Mrs. Phyllis Pfaelzer, 5532 Everett av.; and Mrs. Ermin Plumb, 5807 Dorchester av.

Still others include Mrs. Louise Rappaport, 5126 Greenwood av.; Mrs. Stanley Rosensweig, 6835 Paxton av.; Mrs. William Sanborn, 6825 Paxton av.; Miss Marcia Schreiber, 6935 Paxton av.; Mrs. Emanuel Silberman, 7417 Clyde av.; Mrs. Jacob Stern, 7558 Yates av.; Mrs. Theodore Stone, 5528 Woodlawn av.; Mrs. Alexander Trachman, 7001 Clyde st.; Mrs. Frank Wagner, 6139 Kenwood av.; Mrs. Frank Weber, Windemere hotel; Mrs. Harvey Weiss, 5539 Hyde Park blvd.; and Mrs. Herbert Wolfner, 7014 Crandon av.

MOTHERS CLUB OF HYDE PARK CHURCH TO MEET

The Mothers club of the United church of Hyde Park will meet at 7:45 p. m. tomorrow in the home of Mrs. C. N. Rich, 5474 Greenwood av. New officers to be installed include Mrs. M. D. Englehart, president; Mrs. J. M. Herrmann, vice president; Mrs. C. N. Rich, secretary, and Mrs. Albert Peppler, treasurer.

OFFICER LEADS RHINE ATTACK THO WOUNDED

Lt. Col. Lutz

For personally leading his battalion against the Nazis on the Rhine river, Lt. Col. Harry Lutz has received the silver star. Victor of nine towns in the sweep across Cologne plains, Col. Lutz was wounded in the final assault on the Rhine but refused to be evacuated until assured there was no immediate threat of counter-attack.

The colonel, whose wife, Helen, lives a 1964 E. 72d pl., atiso wears the Purple Heart and bronze star. He is one in a group of south siders recently awarded the silver star.

Volunteers for Dangerous Job

Pvt. William H. Manley of the infantry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Manley of East Chicago, earned his star when he volunteered to accompany four of his buddies to carry supplies and important papers to an observation post about a mile away. Altho three of them were turned back by heavy fire, Manley and his sergeant continued. They encountered a 12 man German patrol that fired, wounding the sergeant. Manley killed one German and temporarily silenced their machine gun.

As darkness fell, the enemy closed in. Manley wounded two of them with hand grenades at 35 yards and caused the others to retreat. Altho wounded himself, he moved his injured sergeant to a near-by shell crater and continued to fight off enemy attacks. He then began a difficult and slow withdrawal, half carrying and half dragging the sergeant until he arrived near friendly lines.

Puts Guns Back in Action

While on a mission over Mukden in Jap occupied Manchuria, Sgt. Robert G. Foor of Whiting, Ind., top gunner on a Super Fortress, crawled thru the tunnel to the front compartment of his plane to recharge the guns which had frozen. He accomplished the job despite danger of frostbite at the 24,000 foot altitude while 20 Jap fighters continued to dive in.

The silver star was awarded Sgt. Joseph H. Hazen, 8049 Clyde av., son of Mrs. Inez Hazen, for gallantry in action on Luzon. When a member of his squad was hit by a Jap sniper and fell into four feet of water, he held up the wounded man to keep him from drowning. Despite heavy enemy fire, he managed to get him out of the water and then aided in carrying him thru over a mile of enemy fire lanes to a rear medical station.

Leads Kitchen Defense

Altho a supply sergeant, Charles A. Lugton of 7207 Michigan av. became a crack platoon leader and won the silver star during Von Runstedt's offensive in December. Lugton placed the supply and kitchen personnel in a defensive ring around the kitchen. Under onslaught of the enemy, he crawled to rescue some of his wounded buddies. Later, when forced to fall back, not a man in his platoon was lost.

While serving as a cannoneer in a tank during an operation against a heavily fortified enemy town in Germany, Corp. Thomas P. Stevenson, 9726 Avenue M, won his star. His tank caught fire but one member could not extricate himself. Despite the danger of the ammunition stock exploding, Stevenson remounted the tank and evacuated the soldier.

Observing a second tank which had also been hit, he crossed open terrain under fire to assist the injured crew. He made three other trips over the exposed route carrying wounded men to medical aid. Corp. Stevenson is the son of James Stevenson of the Avenue M address.

Avalon Park PTA

The Avalon Park PTA will meet at 1:15 p. m. Tuesday in the school auditorium, 8045 Kenwood av. A book review will be presented by the library committee of which Mrs. Charles Lauthers, 8252 Kimbark av. is chairman.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, May 14

One of the most important activities in the war garden is thinning plants in each row. Keep the hoe going at least once a week. Thinning is simply removing plants when they are too close together in order that those remaining will have full space in which to develop.

Perennials should not be permitted to grow until they encroach on others to the detriment of all. Those that are strong growers spread over the ground rapidly and crowd out slower or weaker growers. They should be kept in bounds and the only way to do it is to thin them out and restrict them.

Plants of this kind include the false dragonhead, hardy asters, manysedums, the Oswego tea, and many others.

Tuesday, May 15

Weather permitting, tomato plants can be set in the ground. Eggplants and peppers should be planted at the same time because they are strictly tropical and must be treated as such.

Vegetables require at least six hours of sun and should not be close to trees, for the tree roots sap the ground of food and moisture. Grass does poorly under trees unless the shade is light.

Wednesday, May 16

When planting perennial flowering plants prepare the ground by deep digging and by thoroly breaking it up. This induces deep rooting. Do not crowd the plants or plant annuals too close together in the border, for it induces disease and insects to increase.

Plant perennials immediately. Spray hollyhocks, phlox, and peonies. Lay in green stakes or suitable stakes for perennials and other tall plants.

Thursday, May 17

Keep after the insects, for unless they are combatted continually the plant may be seriously injured. Many authorities believe that dusting is more effective and not so messy as spraying and it is an easy method.

Fold cheesecloth eight times, placing the dust—such as rotenone dust, tobacco dust, or pyrethrum dust—in it. Shake the cloth over the plants. A regular cloud of the insecticide issues forth.

It is essential that it be applied as often as necessary to keep the pests under control. Rotenone kills eating and sucking insects; tobacco dust kills sucking pests, as does pyrethrum.

Unless a food crop is nearing maturity and eating insects or worms attack it, use a stomach poison, such as arsenate, but only until the crop is about half developed.

Arsenate is poisonous to humans, while rotenone is not. The latter is said to be 15 times stronger than arsenate of lead.

Friday, May 18

Cultivate the borders as well as all other plants and especially newly planted borders. Shrubs are usually allowed to go along without much attention, but it is not conducive to good growth. Old shrubs need feeding and if animal manures are not available use commercial fertilizers.

When growing seedlings, give them the maximum of light, for light is absolutely essential to produce healthy and sturdy plants. Some plants require subdued light. These are the English ivy, palms, fancy leaved caladium, African violet, ferns, dumb cane, and similar plants. Most flowering plants like sun.

Saturday, May 19

Try to have window boxes full of plants and annual vines on porches or wherever they are needed to aid in beautifying the home. Annuals also can be grown in baskets in an effective manner. Some of these are canary vine or creeper, tall nasturtiums, gypsophila elegans, and nemophila insignis. Even schizanthus is worth a trial.

Take a wire basket, line it with a layer of sphagnum moss, dried or fresh, and fill the space with good, rich compost, adding a small amount of commercial fertilizer. Sow nasturtiums and creeper an inch deep and three inches apart, the others lightly or simply by scratching in with a label.

S. Congregational Church Women Will Hold Benefit

A benefit party will be given by the Women's association of South Congregational church at 8:30 p. m. Friday in the parish house, 40th st. and Drexel blvd. Proceeds will go toward decorating the house. Mrs. John Tune is president.

Lutheran Church Women to Hear Three Speakers

A trio, composed of a Protestant, Catholic, and Jew will speak at 8 p. m. tomorrow before the woman's society of Woodlawn Lutheran church, 6401 Kenwood av. The subject will be "In Peace As in War: Teamwork." The program is sponsored by the Chicago Round Table of Christians and Jews.

Four special shows, with screen and radio stars, launching the 7th war loan drive will be aired over W-G-N-Mutual, WMAQ-NBC, WBBM-CBS, and WLS-Blue at 7:30 o'clock tonight. The bond broadcasts will close with a short talk by Secretary Morgenthau.

Claudette Colbert will appear on W-G-N-Mutual's show in a dramatization of Arch Obeler's "Strange Morning." Bob Hope and Bing Crosby will exchange jibes on the program to be offered over WMAQ-NBC. Listeners also will hear Frances Langford, Jerry Colonna, Vera Vague, and Skinnay Ennis' orchestra. Hollywood will be the origination point for a drama featuring motion picture personalities scheduled by WLS-Blue. Well known entertainers will star in a documentary presentation outlining the cost of war in lives and money on WBBM-CBS.

W. J. BARMORE WILL MANAGE CARILLCO BAND

William J. Marmore recently was appointed business manager of the Carillco concert band, of which Kenneth W. Resure is conductor. The band, three times winner of the Chicagoland Music Festival Class A band title, is comprised of employes from Gary plants of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corp.

William Barmore

Barmore, assistant to the division superintendent of fuel and power in the Gary works, has been with the plant since 1936. He is also recording secretary of the Gary Y. M. C. A.

SYMPHONY TO AIR J. A. CARPENTER SUITE TUESDAY

The W-G-N Symphony orchestra, directed by Henry Weber, will present the program at 8:30 p. m. Tuesday night over W-G-N and WGNB which was canceled last week because of V-E day. John Alden Carpenter, Chicago composer, will speak in preface to the playing of his orchestral suite "Adventures in a Perambulator." Other selections on the program will be Mozart's "Paris" Symphony and Frescobaldi's "Toccata."

Swarthout and Huey Sing on Dorsey Show

Gladys Swarthout, mezzo-soprano, and Richard Huey, baritone, will be guests on the Tommy Dorsey show over WMAQ-NBC at 3:30 p. m. today. Miss Swarthout will sing Berlin's "It's a Lovely Day Tomorrow" and Romberg's "Deep in My Heart." Huey and Dorsey will combine voice and trombone talents for "Blue Boogie Woogie."

CITIZENS SHOW WILL SPOTLIGHT UNIVERSITY HIGH

The University of Chicago High school will be saluted on the Citizens of Tomorrow program over W-G-N at 10 a. m. Saturday. The program will be recorded at 2 p. m. Wednesday in the school, 5835 Kimbark av. Speaker will be President Hutchins of the university.

President Hutchins

Warren C. Seyfer, principal, will be master of ceremonies and will give the welcoming address. Harry Gibbs, 5715 Kenwood av., will be added to the show's honor roll and will be interviewed on the program. Patricia Ann Pettit, West Waterloo High school, also will be placed on the honor roll.

Participates in Three Sports

Gibbs, who is president of the student council, has participated in interscholastic basketball and has won intramural awards for these sports and football. He hopes to attend the University of Chicago and later the University of Michigan to get degrees in business administration and in engineering.

Tribute will be paid alumnus Maj. Knox Calvin Hill, 6518 University av. Maj. Hill, how is also a university graduate, is commander of a supply battalion with the army air forces in Italy. He studied music from the age of 10 and is a pianist and organist. He has given carillon recitals at the university. While on leave last summer he went to Rome and saw the Pope and climbed Mt. Vesuvius.

Singer Will Entertain

Student star entertainer will be Eloise Elizabeth Stoughton, 7134 Ridgeland av., who will sing "Lo, Hear the Gentle Lark." Miss Stoughton, who hopes to become a professional singer, is in her second year at the American Conservatory of Music. The Jimmie Shanties chorus directed by Harris R. Vail, will sing three numbers also.

Taking part in the quiz part of the show will be Jack Donahue, Tom Marschak, Bob Jacobs, Jean Wolf, Winthrop Jordan, and Dorothy Drucker. Cheerleaders will be Henrietta Byers, Janet Fishbein, Joan Irwin, Dorothy Lewis, Gwyneth Oliver, Barbara Schwarts, and Sally Scott.

Mark Day of Prayer with Drama on WMAQ

"Remember This Day," a religious drama, will be aired over WMAQ-NBC at 4 p. m. today in accordance with President Truman's proclamation marking today as a day of thankful prayer for allied victory in Europe. The play, based on Biblical quotations alluding to war, was written by Arthur Hopkins.

'VAGABOND KING' IS SCHEDULED ON AIR THEATER

Rudolph Friml's "Vagabond King," with its story of medieval Paris, will be broadcast on the Chicago Theater of the Air at 9 p. m. next Saturday over W-G-N, WGNB, and Mutual before 4,500 guests at Medinah temple.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the speaker.

The singing part of Katherine de Vaucelles will be taken by Marion Claire, prima donna of the series. Bruce Foote will sing the part of Francois Villon, leader of the rabble of Paris. The role of Huguette will be sung by Ruth Slater, contralto.

Henry Weber will conduct the W-G-N Symphony orchestra and chorus in the spirited background music of the operetta. The dramatic cast will include Sondra Gair, William Everett, Laurette Fillbrandt, Forrest Lewis, John Barclay, and Carl Kroenke.

Celebrate Victory on Philharmonic Program

The New York Philharmonic orchestra, under direction of Bruno Walter, will devote its program over WBBM-CBS at 2 p. m. today to a celebration of victory in Europe. Eileen Farrell will be soloist on the special broadcast. She will be heard in "I Know My Redeemer Liveth," from Handel's "Messiah." The orchestra is to offer Beethoven's "Leonora" overture No. 3 and Brahms' Symphony No. 1 in C minor.

GIVE EMPLOYES PINS FOR LONG HOSPITAL HELP

Institution Marks 50th Year of Service

Certificates and pins for long time service have been awarded employes of the Lying-In hospital and dispensary at the University of Chicago by Mrs. Clifton Utley, president of the woman's board of the hospital. The presentation was part of a program observing National Hospital day and the hospital's 50th anniversary.

A dramatic program based on the life of the late Dr. Joseph B. De Lee, founder of the maternity center, and a talk on medical research by President Hutchins of the university, was broadcast.

In Hospital 38 Years

Among employes honored was Miss Mable C. Carmon, 5722 Maryland av., with a 38 year service record as director of the birth room. Miss Carmon has supervised the arrival of some 78,168 babies, including a 2 pound 1 ounce infant, three weighing more than 13 pounds each, 12 sets of triplets, and her own niece.

Miss Carmon first was associated with the hospital in 1907, 12 years after its founding by Dr. De Lee. At that time the institution was called the Maxwell Street dispensary. When the hospital moved to Ashland av., to 51st st., and Vincennes av., and then to the Midway, she came along as the physician's chief assistant. With him she collaborated on a book which she also helped Dr. Edward Davis, obstetrician, revise last year.

Honor Other South Siders

Five other south siders honored for 20 years or more of service include: Edward Ballard, 6102½ Drexel av., in the dietary department 27 years; Miss Elizabeth Ash, 754 Oakwood blvd., 25 years in housekeeping; Miss Cecilia Johnson, 4909 Champlain, 24 years in nursing; Dr. Edward Davis, obstetrician 20 years, and Miss Florence Balfour, 5841 Maryland av., registered nurse 20 years.

Other south side residents honored were: Miss Cinderella Sherod, 568 E. 51st st., 19 years; Miss Clara Larson, 5743 Drexel av., 18 years; Miss Florina Clark, 5743 Drexel av., 18; Mrs. Arrah Hathorn, 5040 Washington Park ct., 17; Mrs. Thelma Dore, 630 Oakwood blvd., 16; Mrs. Mildred Mitchell, 4840½ Drexel blvd.,

16; Miss Mary Newell, 6629 University av., 15; Ernest Christie, 1013 E. 62d st., 15; Dr. William J. Dieckmann, 8232 Paxton av., 15, and Dr. H. Close Hesseltine, 5712 Drexel av., 15.

WOMEN'S VOTERS GROUP TO HEAR LAWYER'S TALK

Albert E. Jenner Jr., member of the Chicago Bar association will speak before the Woodlawn League of Women Voters at 10:30 p. m. tomorrow in First Presbyterian church, 6400 Kimbark av. His subject will be "Judicial Selection."

Mrs. Bradford Patton, vice president of the Cook County League of Women Voters, will explain the bond issues in the referendum June 4. The program is in charge of Mrs. Ambrose Fuller, 1435 E. 60th pl.

BOND SELLERS IN MIGHTY 7TH READY FOR JOB

Start Door to Door Calls Tomorrow

An all-out bond campaign designed to boost sales in the mighty seventh war loan drive will get under way tomorrow as hundreds of west side volunteer salesmen begin knocking on doors and ringing doorbells in a house to house canvass.

The west side campaign will be part of a drive to sell $171,146,000 worth of E bonds in Chicago and Cook county. This is the largest quota of individuals' bonds ever set for residents of the metropolitan area. The E bond goal for the west metropolitan section is $15,000,000.

Typical steps taken to insure the success of the canvass are the preparations that have been made for the drive in south Austin. Each volunteer bond warden has received his seventh war loan service badge, a red, white, and blue emblem to be worn for identification purposes.

Tell of OCD Plans

They have also received kits with forms, orders, and stickers needed for taking orders. To secure adequate coverage, a warden has been assigned to every 20 families or apartments. Each senior warden will compile a report of the day's activity and forward it to the central community office to aid the war finance committee in determining the progress of the drive.

Plans for the west side drive have been made under direction of D. W. MacClay, OCD divisional chief, and Louis M. Leavitt, divisional director.

OCD divisional war bond chairman is William F. Conlon, who has served in that capacity since the 3d war loan drive.

Community war bond chairmen are Arthur L. Kimball, near west side; Charles Knehnle, central west side; Edward Rezebek, southwest central; John Sierocinski, south Lawndale; Leon Zimmerman, north Lawndale; Mrs. Mae L. McCarthy, east Garfield; Earl Young, west Garfield; Lewis Krueger, West Town; Stanley R. Perkins, south Austin; David Oliphant, central Austin, and Dr. W. Lloyd Kenny, north Austin.

Others to Do Job

Other community war bond activity will be carried on under direction of Lloyd Lehman, regional manager. Assisting him in selling bonds thru pay roll deductions, retail stores, clubs, schools, and other centers, will be the following chairmen:

William Granata, near west side; Harry Okin, west side; Joseph Kohout, southwest central; Judge Thaddeus V. Adesko, south Lawndale; Leon M. Zimmerman, north Lawndale; T. H. Golightly, west and northwest Garfield park; Ralph A. Neff, south Austin; Wilbur Pilgrim, central and north Austin, and John Boscia, medical center.

Charles L. Cobb will lead the drive in Hinsdale which has a goal of $650,000. To facilitate prompt subscriptions, all residents of the community will be given an opportunity to coöperate by mail and the response will enable the finance committee to determine how intensive a canvass may be needed.

Lead Drive in Hinsdale

Members of the campaign executive committee are W. B. Burr, Douglass Doolittle, Charles S. Craigmile, A. H. Klein, H. T. Moore, N. M. Symonds, N. H. Whiteside, and John C. B. Parker.

SEAT LEADERS OF RIVER FOREST GUILD ON FRIDAY

New officers will be installed by the St. Luke guild of River Forest at its annual spring luncheon at 12:30 p. m. Friday at the Oak Park Arms hotel. Mrs. Louise Suise Mitchell will give a book review.

Officers to be installed are Mrs. James P. McKeon, president; Mrs. Joseph A. Perry, vice president; Mrs. Frank J. Barry, treasurer; Mrs. Thomas C. Arado, financial secretary; Mrs. R. W. Noddins, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Walter C. Streeter, recording secretary. Mrs. Glen H. Tyrell is the outgoing president.

Reservations may be made at the St. Luke rectory or by calling Mrs. D. H. Shield, ticket chairman.

LYONS TOWNSHIP HIGH WILL STAGE SPRING FESTIVAL

Six high school music groups will take part in programs of the Lyons Township High school spring music festival Friday and Saturday nights in the school auditorium. Assisting soloists will be Rex Hogan, baritone, for Friday night, and Jean Panot, pianist on Saturday night.

Hogan, concert and radio artist, is a Purple Heart veteran with 17 months of service in the South Pacific. He has entertained in both American and Australian hospitals.

Miss Panot is the winner of recent auditions by the Society of American Musicians and Adult Education council to select the midwest's outstanding young pianist.

Gravel Gertie Hobnobs with Dick Tracy and Brenda Starr at High School Frolic

Marcella Chant chose the costume of Hu Shee in the comic strip, Terry and the Pirates, for the Publications Frolic planned by Quill and Scroll, journalistic organization at York High school. Proceeds of the dance and entertainment go toward the financing of the school newspaper, York-Hi.

Students who preferred to portray characters from Dick Tracy were Mark Stephenson as Gravel Gertie, Pola Wdoveck, Snowflake; Alan Cornelius, Dick, and Alan Heimert, Vitamin Flintheart. Costumes were planned by Jean Thoma, art editor of York-Hi. Heimert is acting president of Quill and Scroll.

Schools Mark Centennial in West Districts

Continuing the two week centennial celebration of free public education in Chicago, many west side schools will hold special programs and assemblies tomorrow thru Friday. The city's pioneer public school was the old Dearborn school, opened in May, 1845, near State and Madison sts. It was dismantled just before the fire of 1871.

The two oldest elementary schools on the west side are Brown, 1758 Warren blvd., and Foster, 720 O'Brien st. Brown, erected in 1857, was named after William H. Brown, born in Colchester, Conn., in 1796. He became president of a railroad company. He had charge of the school funds and became the first president of the Chicago Historical society.

Name Former Students

Among the students at Brown were Thomas [Tad] Lincoln, son of Abraham Lincoln, Cyrus Hall McCormick who developed the reaping machine, Mrs. Potter Palmer, Lillian Russell, Helen Morgan, Flo Ziegfeld, and Edgar Rice Burroughs who wrote the Tarzan stories.

Foster elementary school, also erected in 1857, was first known as school No. 9. In February, 1858, it was renamed after Dr. John H. Foster, who was a member of the board of education and creator of the so-called Foster diploma given to students who completed their elementary education with honor.

Oldest High School

Oldest secondary institution on the west side is Jones Commercial High school which had its inception in 1846 at the corner of Wabash and 12th sts. in a one story frame building. Destroyed by the fire of 1871, it was rebuilt on its present site, 607 Plymouth ct., in 1875. It was named after William Jones, who served 11 years as chairman of the board of school inspectors. He donated $1,000 to Jones school for textbooks.

Carrying on early traditions of secondary education is McKinley High school, 2040 Adams st. It is a descendant of the first high school in Chicago, Central High school, built in 1856 at Monroe and Halsted sts. After several changes of locale it was moved to its present site in 1904. Its name had been changed to McKinley High school in 1892.

Save Central Records

Records of old Central High are still in McKinley files. The first principal was Charles A. Dupui, and the first enrolment numbered 735.

Of interest to moviegoers is the fact that Walt Disney, former student, first drew Mickey Mouse as Mickey McKinley in the school.

On Wednesday Louis Lytton, actor, will address the McKinley student assembly. More than 3,000 students will hear his lecture on "I Am an American."

A special issue on the centennial has been prepared by the newspaper staff at Harrison Technical High school, 2850 24th st. There will also be art, household arts, technical and social science exhibits, and discussions.

Flower to Give Play

Harrison High school was established in 1909 as part of the Farragut school, 24th st. and Spaulding av. The first principal was Frank L. Morse. The name of the school was changed to Harrison in 1912 when the present building was erected. Louis F. Brook is the present principal.

At Flower Technical High school, 3545 Fulton blvd., there will be an assembly tomorrow at which students will present a play, "Schools of Yesteryear." There will also be a film on modern high schools. Parents of pupils will attend.

The winner of an essay contest on school history will be announced Tuesday at Crane Technical High school, 2245 Jackson blvd. There will also be a physical education demonstration for parents and stu-

Erected in 1890 at Monroe and Halsted sts., Crane was the first manual training center established in Chicago. Razed by fire in 1891, it was housed temporarily in a shack behind the factory of R. T. Crane.

REVIEW CADETS THIS WEEK AT 4 W. SIDE HIGHS

List Medal Winners at Harrison

R. O. T. C. cadets of Marshall, Austin, St. Mel, and Crane Technical High schools will pass in review and display their military knowledge this week, as federal inspection of approximately 11,000 cadets in 30 Chicago high school units is completed.

Schools ranking first and second in the two week inspection will lead the R. O. T. C. parade May 25, provided the inspectors' decision is announced by that time. St. Mel cadets, who are not included in the 3687th service command unit to which Chicago public school battalions belong, are assured of at least third place in the parade.

Harrison Already Visited

Harrison High school is the only west side unit already visited. Each public school unit in the city is inspected by officers from the group of 20 inspectors headed by Lt. Col. Lewis C. Gordon. The group has been assigned to visit all R. O. T. C. groups in the the service command.

Lt. Col. Oscar N. Taylor, professor of military science and tactics for the 3687th unit, is attending a part of each ceremony. Maj. Sydney S. Stocking, adjutant and training officer, and Lt. Abbott C. Combes, assistant adjutant, are in reviewing stands at many of the inspections.

Review Marshall Tomorrow

Marshall cadets, headed by Lt. Col. Perry Tobak, will be reviewed at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow in Garfield park. In addition to gold and silver medals offered by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and department medals for efficiency, neatness, recruiting, and band efficiency, awards will be made by Cook County council of the American Legion auxiliary, Veterans of Foreign Wars, United Spanish-American War Veterans, two American Legion posts, and the Oak Park Legion auxiliary.

Staff Sgt. Julius R. Levin is Marshall military instructor.

The 500 members of the Crane regiment will take part Tuesday in inspection ceremonies in the armory at 2653 Madison st. Lt. Col. James Troka is cadet commander of the unit, and Tech. Sgt. John Delaney is military instructor. R. O. T. C. medals and awards given by THE TRIBUNE and various organizations will be presented.

Inspect Austin Wednesday

Columbus park will be the scene Wednesday of the Austin inspection, during which 470 cadets will be reviewed. Among organizations offering awards will be the United Spanish-American War Veterans auxiliary, Veterans of Foreign Wars, 5th district American Legion auxiliary, Austin American Legion post, and Melin Romer American Legion post.

Lt. Col. Robert Beckers is commander of the Austin unit, with Maj. George Smetters as regimental adjutant and Maj. Jack Feigh and Maj. John Allen as battalion commanders. Sgt. Gayle B. Saxton is military instructor.

Members of the St. Mel regiment, only R. O. T. C. unit in a Chicago parochial school, will participate in two ceremonies this week. At a military honors day program, beginning at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the armory at 2653 Madison st., more than 100 medals and ribbon awards, including 20 Tribune medals, will be presented to outstanding cadets.

Platoons to Drill

Exhibitions by drill platoons and a review of the entire regiment of 1,100 cadets will take place. Among those present will be Brother James Luke, school director, and Maj. John F. Gardiner, professor of military science and tactics.

On Friday federal inspection will be held in the armory, with Lt. Col. Franklin W. Clarke, Maj. George M. Waters, 1st Lt. Frank A. Bridgewater, and 1st Lt. Walter A. Cadell as inspection officers. Col. John Culleeney is cadet commander at St. Mel, with Lt. Col. John Ryan as regimental executive officer.

Harrison cadets who received awards were:

Department medals—Maj. Daniel Bertz, officer's efficiency; 1st Sgt. Stanley Orzech, noncommissioned officer's efficiency; Edward V. [illegible]zorek and Raymond Landwehr, neatness; Sgt. Robert Woods, band efficiency; Lt. Col. Walter Gavelek, markmanship, and 1st Sgt. John Ward, recruiting.

List Tribune Medalists

Tribune medals—John Poloncsik, Edward Havlat, Sheldon Engel, and Alvin Handwerker, gold medals; Cadet Edward Svoboda, silver medal.

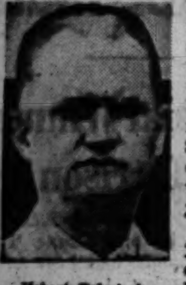
GRADE SCHOOLS' BAND OF CICERO TO PLAY MAY 25

75 Boys and Girls in 13 Year Old Group

The 13th annual concert of the Cicero grade schools band will be presented May 25 in the Lincoln school auditorium. Members of the band are 75 boys and girls from the 5th to 8th grades. Three of their selections will be judged.



Hobart Bolerjack

Chosen to be judged are "Lyceum Overture," by Holmes, "Symbol of Honor March," by Keats, and "Aurora Overture," by Yoder. For the last two years the adjudicator has rated the band "superior plus" in playing and sight reading.

"Merry Widow" Excerpts

Other selections on the program will include "Cossacks Invocation and Dance," by Lenikou, excerpts from "The Merry Widow," by Lehar, "Nobility Overture," by Holmes, and "American Patrol," by Yoder. There also will be several characteristic and comic numbers.

Soloists and ensemblists will compete in the afternoon at Lincoln school. The regular concert will be held at 8 p. m.

Development of the band was given impetus in the fall of 1931 when a group of parents sought to promote a greater interest in instrumental music and to encourage coöperation on the part of parents in the community. Members of the faculty and the administrative staff of the Cicero grade schools met at Burnham school and elected as officers George Nemec, president; Mrs. Frank Petru, vice president; William Uher, treasurer, and Mrs. Camille Burda, secretary.

Women Supply Uniforms.

"Work Hand in Hand" became the motto, and to start off the Cicero Players of the Cicero Woman's club donated $350 for uniforms from the proceeds of a Christmas play. To provide funds for the band club, several women sold their favorite cooking recipes. The Teachers' Welfare association contributed $84.

Observing the enthusiasm, the Cicero school board voted to pay for the uniforms, thus permitting the Parents club of the band to use its funds for sponsoring trips to band concerts and medal awards.

Since then the school board has furnished the sheet music and paid the salary of Hobart Bolerjack, who has directed the band since it was organized. The club sponsors an annual card party, a fall dance, Christmas parties, and picnics.

First Concert in 1933.

The band gave its first concert in the spring of 1933, and entered its first state concert in May of that year. The band won first in class AA at the state contests in 1940, 1941, and 1942. Altho travel has been curtailed, the Parents club of the band has continued to sponsor an annual concert and contest.

Officers of the Parents club, which meets the first Wednesday of each month at Burnham school, are Frank I. Kral, president; John C. Gelezines, vice president; Mrs. James Svoboda, recording secretary; Mrs. Harold Dusek, corresponding secretary; Harold Dusek, treasurer, and Mrs. J. J. Pachman, Mrs. J. A. Vilimocsky, George Schubr, Michael Jelinek, Robert Sefcik, and Arthur G. Peters, trustees.

30 GOLD STARS TELL RECORD OF HINSDALE HIGH

The service flag at Hinsdale High school now has 869 blue stars and 30 gold stars. The stars, representing the names of men and women who have attended the school, have been sewed to the flag at the end of each semester since the project was started two years ago.

In the school office there is a filing cabinet containing the names of the service men and women and giving their branch of service, their rank, and their most recent address.

Welcome Always Out

At the school entrance, there is a sign that reads, "Welcome, Service Men," and it has been the custom of those home on furlough to visit the school which most of them left within the last 10 years. Also, there are older men in uniform whose children are now students there.

In the early days of the war, an unusual number of boys at the school, who were its best students and athletes, received army air corps commissions and among these there have been many casualties.

Miss Nell Cline is faculty sponsor of the service men's Honor roll committee. On the student council committee are Jo Ann Kammeyer, chairman, Jean Petersen, Betty Peterson, and Mayme Saxer.

Ask Visitors to Register

Those who return to the school corridors are asked to register their names and addresses, and it is the aim of Miss Cline and the student committee to make the records accurate and complete.

Miss Kammeyer said but few of the former students now in the war were known to her personally before she started compiling the files.

American Women at War

Three west siders are taking basic military training at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., as members of a newly organized WAC medical company. They are Pvt. Lorraine E. Jankowski, 1523 S. Pulaski rd.; Pvt. Sophie Merijohn, 433 S. Leavitt st., and Pvt. Lillian J. Anderson, 3300 Carroll av.

Genevieve Robak, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Robak, 3021 S. Kenneth av., enlisted recently in the marine corps women's reserve. She is a graduate of Harrison Technical High school. Her brother, Pvt. Stanley Robak, is in the army.

Pvt. Veronica Winiarski, 3034 Cullerton st., has been assigned to an air forces company in northern Italy. She joined the WAC in November, 1943, and was in Smyrna, Tenn., before going overseas. Her brother, Pvt. Miles Winiarski, is at Camp Kilmer, N. J.

Mary Kathleen Fogarty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Fogarty, 19 N. Central av., a recent enlistee in the marine corps women's reserve, will take her boot training at Camp Lejeune, N. C.

The good conduct medal has been awarded to WAC Pvt. Alice R. Glogowski at Pratt [Kas.] army air field. She is the daughter of Mrs. Mary Sosnowski, 3051 Cullerton st.

WIVES CHAPTER OF NAPERVILLE PICKS OFFICERS

Mrs. Bernice A. Funk recently was elected president of the Naperville WIVES, an affiliate of a nonpartisan, nonsectarian national organization of wives of service men.

Other new officers are Mrs. Jeanne Miller, vice president; Mrs. Frances Johnson, secretary, and Mrs. Jeanette Eisele, treasurer. The Naperville chapter already has 20 members who attend meetings the second and fourth Wednesdays of each month at the Naperville Y. M. C. A.

The WIVES have a four fold program; to maintain their own morale while their husbands are away; to maintain the morale of their fighting husbands; to do all they can to help with the war, and to help obtain a secure and peaceful post-war world.

The Naperville chapter assists with bond drives, does Red Cross work, stimulates interest in the blood bank, and plans forum discussions on national issues and state legislation. Social activities will include monthly pot luck suppers, book reviews, and informal parties.

REVIEW CADETS THIS WEEK AT N. W. SIDE HIGHS

R. O. T. C. cadets of Schurz, Lane Technical, Foreman, and Steinmetz High schools will pass in review and display their military knowledge this week, as federal inspection of nearly 10,000 cadets in 29 Chicago high school units is completed. Students of these northwest area schools will be among 216 Chicago cadets who will receive Chicago Tribune medals during the annual ceremonies.

Schools ranking first and second in the two week inspection will lead the R. O. T. C. parade May 25, provided the inspectors' decision is announced by that time. St. Mel High school cadets, who are not included in the Chicago public school unit, will have third place in the parade if their regiment does not rank first or second.

Name Schools Inspected

Roosevelt, Von Steuben, and Taft High schools have been visited since inspection began May 4. Each unit is inspected by officers from the group of 20 inspectors headed by Lt. Col. Lewis C. Gordon and assigned to visit all R. O. T. C. groups in the 6th service command.

Lt. Col. Oscar N. Taylor, professor of military science and tactics for Chicago high schools, is attending a part of each ceremony. Maj. Sydney S. Stocking, adjutant and training officer, and Lt. Abbott C. Combes, assistant adjutant, are in reviewing stands at many of the inspections.

Inspect Schurz Tomorrow

The 370 members of the Schurz regiment, headed by Lt. Col. Clement Bilhorn, will be reviewed at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow on the campus of Irving Park school, Kedvale av. and Grace st. As at most other schools, ceremonies will be in the school gymnasium if weather is bad.

In addition to Tribune medals and R. O. T. C. department awards for efficiency, neatness, and marksmanship, awards will be made by various organizations, including Victory American Legion post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and United Spanish-American War Veterans auxiliary. Staff Sgt. Elmer W. Cox is military instructor.

Review Lane Tuesday

Inspection of the Lane regiment, which, with 1,000 cadets, is the nation's largest public high school R. O. T. C. regiment, will be held Tuesday morning in the school stadium. Among awards to be given are 18 gold medals for upper classmen and three silver medals for freshmen, presented by THE TRIBUNE.

Lt. Col. Vincent Tomei is cadet commander and Sgt. George R. Baxter is military instructor.

Philip Maxwell will present five Tribune medals Wednesday at the Foreman inspection in the Hanson park stadium. Headed by Lt. Col. John Cinelli, 255 battalion members will take part in the parade. Organizations presenting awards will be Daughters of the American Revolution, Cook county council of the American Legion auxiliary, and Belmont park American Legion post.

Staff Sgt. Steven A. Duttko is military instructor.

List Taft Winners

The Steinmetz campus will be the scene Thursday of a parade of 300 members of the Steinmetz regiment, headed by Lt. Col. Lawrence Wysocki. Awards will be given by representatvies of United Spanish-American War Veterans auxiliary, Veterans of Foreign Wars, PTA, and Gen. George Bell Jr. and Hilmer J. Behrentz American Legion posts.

Corp. Charles H. Duckworth is Steinmetz R. O. T. C. instructor.

Taft cadets who have received awards are:

Department medals—Capt. Ralph Mueller, officer's efficiency; 1st Sgt. James Geisler, noncommissioned officer's efficiency; Sgt. Richard Schwendeman, neatness, and Corp. Hartley Kopke, marksmanship.

Tribune medals—Sgt. Chester Dankowski, gold medal, and Sgt. Roy Rauschenberg and Sgt. Jack Mason, silver medals.

Other awards—First Lt. Ralph Sogge, 1st Sgt. Robert Pownal, and Corp. Robert Rogers, American Legion; 1st Lt. Robert Black, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Von Steuben Recipients

Twenty-two Von Steuben students have received awards:

Department medals—Capt. Earl Brown, officer's efficiency; Sgt. Joseph Rubin, noncommissioned officer's efficiency; Sgt. Ronald Teichner, band efficiency; Sgt. Harold Gibberman, Sgt. Einor Peterson, and Sgt. Lee Carlson, neatness, and 2d Lt. Michael Grehl, marksmanship.

Tribune medals—Corp. Richard Nathan, Sgt. Sheldon Gamis, Sgt. Saul Borash, Sgt. William Nickels, and Cadet Frank Walsh.

American Legion awards—1st Lt. Stewart Schlesinger, Sgt. Joseph Kaplan, Sgt. Donald Anderson, Corp. Norman Scheffel, and Sgt. Vincent Beuder.

GROUP IN BLOCK ADOPTS GI JOE WAR BOND PLAN

Start 7th War Loan Tomorrow

Five service men who are the reason for the existence of the Block club, composed of residents in the area bounded by Palmer, Keating, Belden, and Cicero avs., will be recipents of war bonds bought under the Dad to GI Joe plan suggested by THE TRIBUNE.

The bonds will go to Sgt. Dominick Armato, 2235 Keating av.; Pvt. Dorothy Eleysian, 2224 Keating av.; Pvt. Richard Howard, 4736 Palmer st.; Marine Corp. Harold and Staff Sgt. Robert Fugman, 2209 N. Cicero av.

Organized in 1942

The club was organized in April, 1942, by Harold Fregd, OCD zone captain, to remember service men and women on birthdays, Christmas, and Easter. Funds for the gifts were raised at monthly parties, said Alphonses Wade, president, 2253 Keating av. The usual Christmas present amounts to about $10, he said. Between gift dates, the club whips up frequent batches of cookies and prepares food boxes with cigarets for the four boys and one girl in the block called into service.

The club has widened its activities to neighborly acts of kindness, such as sending flowers or candy when one of the 32 home front members is ill.

Three Still in Country

Three of those in service are still in this country: Pvt. Eleysian at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga.; Howard at Scott Field, Ill.; and Harold Fugman at Cherry Point, N. C. Armato is in Germany and Robert Fugman is in the South Pacific.

Other officers of the club are Mrs. Beulah Anderson, 2213 N. Cicero av., vice president; Frank Howard, 4736 Palmer av., secretary; and Michael Murphy, 2336 Keating av., treasurer.

8,000 TO OPEN DRIVE

Beginning tomorrow morning 8,000 men and women serving as war bond volunteers will begin a house to house canvass on the northwest side for the war loan. The workers are expected to call on the majority of the northwest's 675,000 population.

More than 95 per cent of the 400 companies on pay roll savings already have been contacted for additional bond purchases, Louis J. Wiemann, northwest regional manager of the war finance committee of the treasury department, said.

Church Goes to Work

Members of the Austrian Galician congregation, who have voluntarily set a quota of $150,000 for the church membership, will launch their own part of the "Mighty 7th" drive with a bond rally tomorrow morning at the church, 1357 California av. A message by Rabbi Moses Eichenstein will open the drive. A movie, "Fury in the Pacific," will be shown. Joseph Hartman and Nathan C. Kessler are cochairmen of the rally.

Headed by Wiemann, 175 committee members with other volunteers will contact personnel of stores, companies, banks, national and local clubs, schools, churches, and other institutions for subscriptions.

List N. W. Side Leaders

Chairmen in the 13 communities are:

A. G. Lauterbach, Northwest Town, Humboldt Park; Bernhard C. Fromm, Belmont Cragin, Hanson Park; Herbert Kirchhoff, Mont Clare; John Freislinger, Logan Square, Milwaukee-Western.

John Klaus, Avondale; W. H. Heitmann, Irving Park; Arthur E. Stolle, Sauganash, Edgebrook; Roy L. Haines, Mayfair; George S. Severance, Portage Park; John Krohn, Jefferson Park; Krist Studstrup, Norwood Park, and William Edwards, Edison Park.

Workers will be identified by war bond volunteer buttons, and purchasers will receive window stickers designating them as 7th war loan bond purchasers.

B'nai B'rith Group

Mrs. Bernard Brown, coördinator of women's activities for the Chicago Round Table, will speak on "Ours Is the Choice" at 3:30 p. m. Saturday before the Haym Solomon B'nai B'rith women's auxiliary at the home of Mrs. Franz S. Steinitz, 5651 N. Drake av.

PASTORS HOME FOR LUTHERANS' 75TH JUBILEE

1st Gethsemane to Hold Services

The first Gethsemane Lutheran church, Oakdale and Lamon avs., is celebrating its 75th anniversary this month with a series of special services.

Guest preacher at this morning's service will be the Rev. Victor R. Pearson, head of the Christianity department, Augustana college, Rock Island. Dr. Pearson served Gethsemane church from the time of its merger with the Lebanon church in Cragin community until 1935 when he took the position at Augustana college.

Will Receive Communion

A meeting of all confirmands will be held at 4:30 p. m. today to be followed by communion at 5 p. m. The Rev. Wilbur N. Palmquist, pastor, will be celebrant, and the Rev. C. O. Bengtson of the Immanuel Lutheran church, who served Gethsemane from 1913 to 1916, will deliver the sermon. A social hour will follow, with members of the Dorcas society and Ladies guild as hostesses.

A musical program at 8 p. m. Tuesday in the church will mark the anniversary date. The address will be delivered by Dr. Oscar N. Olson of Rock Island, who organized the Lebanon church in 1906.

Dr. Oscar A. Benson, president of the Illinois conference, will speak at the banquet at the Irving Park Lutheran church Friday. Carl R. Chindblom, who was the first child of the new congregation to be baptized, will be the toastmaster.

Former Pastor to Speak

Special services also will be held at Gethsemane church next Sunday when another former pastor, the Rev. Emmer Engberg, who left the church last summer to assume a pastorate at Pasadena, Cal., will preach at 9:15 a. m. The Rev. Sigfrid Engstrom of Minneapolis, regional director of home missions of the Augustana synod, will preach at the 10:45 a. m. service. The Rev. Mr. Engstrom was a member of the congregation as a boy. Two other men from the congregation are ministers: the Rev. David F. Engstrom of East Moline, Ill., who will give the invocation, and the Rev. Arvid Chindblom, assistant pastor at the Irving Park Lutheran church, who will be liturgist.

The church was organized on May 15, 1870, with the first building at Sedgwick and Superior sts. When the original building was destroyed by the Chicago fire, the congregation moved to Huron and May sts. where it was located until 1921. For more than 30 years of this time the Rev. Dr. M. C. Ranseen was pastor of the congregation.

Sell Property to City

Gradually members moved from the old neighborhood and when Ogden av. was extended the church property in the direct line of this extension was sold to the city. The congregation moved once more, this time to its present location at Oakdale and Lamon avs. A merger was effected with the Lebanon church at Cragin, and in 1923 the present church was erected.

As an expression of gratitude, the congregation of 750 persons has set a goal of $7,500 for its anniversary offering, of which $6,000 already has been received.

D.F.C. AND AIR MEDALS GIVEN GERMAN BORN NAVY TURRET GUNNER

A German born bluejacket, Ernest H. Hanke, aviation ordnanceman second class, has been credited with several distinguished actions in the Pacific.

Ernest Hanke.

A turret gunner on a navy torpedo bomber, Hanke used his gun to drive off a large force of Zero planes swooping down on his plane which had been crippled and forced out of formation. He also is credited with having a hand in the sinking of a Natchi class cruiser, two Jap carriers, a 9,000 ton cargo ship, and in the destruction of many planes on the ground.

For these feats he recently was awarded the distinguished flying cross and the air medal with gold star. Born in Hamburg, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hanke, 3815 Chicago av., he was brought to America when a year old.

St. Mary of Nazareth Hospital Group to Meet

Annual spring guest day and a reunion of old members will be held by the woman's auxiliary of St. Mary of Nazareth hospital at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday. First prize winners in the recent high school music contest will entertain. They are John Przypyszny, Richard Buczynski, Edwin Lasak, and Yvonne Bellamy. The hostesses will be Mrs. Edward Boarini, Mrs. Charles Buczynski, Mrs. John Drasga, and Mrs. Leon Shalla.

ADD OPERATIC STARS TO MUSIC FESTIVAL TESTS

20 Singers Sign for Evanston Tryouts

Virginia Haskins, soprano, a member of the Chicago Opera company, who is often heard on the W-G-N Theater of the Air operettas, will be the star of the second night concert of the first Evanston Music Festival Saturday, June 16, in Cahn auditorium of Scott hall on the Evanston Northwestern campus. Mark Love, basso, will be the leading solo attraction on the first night, Friday, June 15.

Virginia Haskins

Mrs. H. E. Miller of 128 Custer av., Evanston, chairman of the Evanston vocal contest, which includes the north and northwest sections of Cook county, reports that 20 singers have entered the vocal competition. They will be heard in contest Monday night, June 11, at Lutkin hall on the Evanston Northwestern campus. At that time the two best men singers and the two best women singers will be selected. The women will appear on the first festival night in competition and the men at the latter competition.

Leslie H. York, 720 Hinman av., Evanston, general chairman of the two night festival, announces that tickets for both nights are on sale. The festival, held in connection with THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's 16th annual Chicago Music Festival, is sponsored by the Evanston Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Evanston Girl Scout council.

Royal League Council to Honor Old Timers

Metropolitan council of the Royal league will hold its Old Guards program Friday night in the lodge hall at 4221 Irving Park rd., with a presentation of a diamond pin to members belonging for more than 50 years. The awards wil be presented by Fred A. Johnson, supreme archon.

★ With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS ★

Corp. Norbert B. Blaski was helping construct a bridge across the Roer during the 9th army's push to the Rhine when an 88 mm. shell plowed into the ground near him, spattering him and his comrades with mud. Luckily, he wrote his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bruno Blaskiewicz, 4434 N. St. Louis av., it did not explode. He has been overseas since last November.

Corp. Blaski

Mrs. Gloria Schultz, 3500 Hirsch st., recently received a Nazi swastika from her son, Pvt. Mitchell G. Schultz, who said it was "taken under terrific odds." Schultz was in the battle of the bulge and was wounded last Feb. 28, but has returned to duty after receiving the Purple Heart.

Staff Sgt. Andrew G. Erbach, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Erbach, 2435 Moffat st., has been awarded a fourth cluster to his air medal at a bomber station in England. Ball turret gunner, he has completed 30 missions. A graduate of Lane Technical High school, he entered the air forces in August, 1943.

Andrew Erbach

The air medal and cluster won by 2d Lt. Lars E. Skoug has been presented his father, John L. Skoug, 3246 Normandy av. The lieutenant, a prisoner 14 months, was held at Stalag 7A near Munich.

Corp. Joseph Scienski, son of Mrs. Josephine Scienski, 1086 N. Marshfield av., has been commended for constructing from salvaged materials a pneumatically operated vise which is speeding modification of target marking smoke bombs. Scienski is a machinist at an air service command depot in England. He was graduated from Lane Technical High school.

Corp. Scienski

Holder of the air medal with four clusters, 1st Lt. Joseph J. Cohn, copilot of a B-17, has completed more than 30 missions from an 8th air force bomber station. The attacks have included Hamburg, Berlin, Cologne, Misburg, and Nurenberg. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Cohn, 4949 Monticello av. A graduate of Lane Technical High school and Wright Junior college, he was employed by jewelers before entering the army in February, 1943.

Lt. J. J. Cohn

Staff Sgt. Richard J. Linden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Linden, Des Plaines, recently passed the 50 mission mark. Overseas since last August, he is ball turret gunner in a Liberator based in Italy. He entered service in September, 1943. He is a graduate of Des Plaines High school, where he was class president.

Sgt. Linden

A third cluster to the air medal recently was presented Staff Sgt. Robert F. Altmaier, son of Mrs. F. J. Altmaier, 5902 Berenice av. A graduate of Austin High school, he was employed by Bodine Electric company before entering service in August, 1943. He is a tail gunner on a B-17 based in England.

Marine Sgt. Michael Zaruk, 4644 N. Lawler av., was recently commended for his courage in racing 100 yards thru Japanese, machine gun and rifle fire on Okinawa to pull his wounded company commander to safety. The company had rounded a hillside when it encountered heavy Jap fire which hit the company commander. Zaruk ran to his aid, not once dropping for cover, and with bullets zipping past him, administered first aid and assisted the officer back to the lines.

Slightly wounded in the left arm by shrapnel during an attack near Faymonthville, Belgium, Pvt. Dominick V. Mosca, 510 N. Western av., is now convalescing at the 141st general hospital in England. He has received the Purple Heart.

Lt. Samuel E. Riggs, son of Mrs. Harriet Riggs, 4008 N. Central Park av., has been named pilot of an 8th air force B-17 lead plane. He formerly was a student a the University of Illinois.

Samuel Riggs

A bend in a road in France saved the life of Pvt. Howard Degen, cavalryman, now at William Beaumont General hospital, El Paso, Tex. His outfit of tank destroyers turned a curve as German planes strafed the highway. Their bombs and bullets missed the point where Degen and his outfit crouched. Son of Mrs. Margaret Degen, 1442 N. Leavitt st., he was wounded near Cologne in December.

A recent graduate of Altus army air field, where he won his wings as pilot of a B-25, Lt. Raymond A. Pedersen spent a short leave with his father, Leonard Pedersen, 5237 Potomac av. He is a graduate of Austin High school. He is now stationed at Brookfield [Tex.] army air field for further training.

Navigator on a B-24 based in England, Richard E. Bellgardt, 4551 Montana st., has been promoted to first lieutenant. A graduate of Foreman High school, he entered the army in March, 1943. A brother, 1st Lt. Roy A. Nelson, is also in the air forces.

Lt. Bellgardt

Recently liberated from a Nazi prison camp by the Russian army, Staff Sgt. Arthur H. Groves, whose wife lives at 2351 Mobile av., is being returned to this country on a coast guard transport.

Sgt. Jack Shanker, who recently returned from overseas, is now convalescing from battle wounds at McCloskey General hospital, Temple, Tex. His wife, Mrs. Faye Shanker, resides at 4603 Monticello av.

FAITHFUL PAPER DOG HALTS ONLY FOR STRAY CATS

Zino is not by nature a publicity hound. She is just a dog, part cocker spaniel and part bull, who's been trained by her master, Harold Fotre, 5911 Leader av., to harness up to the little red wagon and help him on his regular morning delivery of newspapers.

Altho out of service during the winter [she doesn't mush very well] Zino, with the first warm day and a whistle from Harold, backed between the shafts, ready for work on this spring's delivery route.

Like a milk wagon horse, Zino knows the route as well as Harold, stopping before the right houses and waiting. Zino disdains fraternizing with canine friends on company time, but cats are another matter, and if a cat, black or white, crosses his path, its bad luck—for the cat.

Harold is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Harold C. Fotre.

V-MAIL PHOTOS ADD MOTHER'S DAY MESSAGE

While Mates Fight They Carry On

More northwest side service men recently answered mail call on wide-spread battle fronts and found V-mail pictures of their wives and babies, provided thru a service of the Metropolitan section of THE TRIBUNE. Published today, they furnish a reminder on Mother's day of those who carry on at home. All of these babies were born after their fathers had left this country.

Sgt. Donald B. Stenfelt, Park Ridge, received three in one with his V-mail picture in Italy—a photograph of his wife, May, and 8 months old twins, Darlene Joan and Donna Jean. Stenfelt went out forthwith and purchased two pink angora sweaters for the babies, and the boys in the company sent a handful of Italian money for their scrapbooks. Overseas a year, Stenfelt has been in two major engagements in the Italian campaign.

Struts in Grass Skirt

The grass skirts which Sgt. Kenneth L. Heck sent his blue eyed daughter, Martha, have caused a mild disturbance, his wife, Mrs. Kenneth Heck of 4309 N. Avers av., reports. Martha, born Feb. 4, 1944, wents to strut in them. The sergeant sent the skirts from Hawaii, where he was stationed until he was transferred as a mail clerk to Okinawa.

Two Jap supply parachutes, one a bright blue and the other yellow, that came floating down in New Guinea are going to make two silk comforts for David Russell, son of Lt. and Mrs. Russell Dunn. Mrs. Dunn lives at 4530 Monticello av. Her husband, overseas a year, is now an M. P. in New Guinea. David was born Sept. 28, 1944.

Daughter "Image of Dad"

Mrs. Harvey Maglott Jr., 5101 Ainslie st., reports her daughter, Harva Lee, born Sept. 26, 1944, is the image of her father, Lt. [j. g.] Maglott, who has been overseas 14 months and is stationed in England.

The favorite utensil of curly headed Michael Roy Halpern, son of Mrs. Bernard Halpern, 955 N. Hoyne av., is a drinking cup sent him by his father, Lt. Halpern, stationed in England with the medical corps. Next to that he likes the black Scottie dog which his father sent him from Scotland. The lieutenant sent his wife, Blanche, a set of tea dishes recently. He has been overseas 13 months. His son was born April 9, 1944.

Dad in Eight Battles

John R. Johnson, petty officer 3d class, will have many tales to tell his daughter, Carol Marie, who was 1 in March. His wife, Marie, and Carol live at 3816 N. Sawyer av. Overseas more than a year on a battleship in the South Pacific, Johnson is a veteran of eight major engagements, including Saipan, the Philippines, and Guam.

Ronald Michael Acerrano, son of Mrs. Jerry Acerrano, 4435 Elston av., was born on Jan. 13, 1945. Her husband, a seaman 1st class, is on a battleship in the Pacific. He has been out of this country eight months.

Lt. Ralph Monson Jr., father of 3 month old Philip Ralph, has been in the field artillery in Burma since August. His wife and baby live with Mrs. Monson's mother, Mrs. Georgia K. Stoeckert, 4484 Kasson av. Monson has been in the service three years.

Stationed at Pearl Harbor

Russell Frederick Rowe, daughter of Mrs. Frederick B. Rowe, was born Oct. 7, 1944. Her father, an aviation machinist's mate 3d class, has been overseas since June, 1944, and is now stationed at Pearl Harbor. Mrs. Rowe and the baby live with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bacarella, 4219 Leland av.

Carol Ann Sager, 5 months old daughter of Mrs. Oscar Sager, 3934 North av., is due to receive a handmade locket soon, according to a letter from Carol's father, who is a petty officer 2d class stationed in the Admiralty Islands. Sager has already sent his wife, Carolyn, a dinner ring and brooch, set with mother of pearl, which he made. He has been overseas a year.

Lt. Robert Wilson, a paratrooper, was busy getting ready to invade France when informed of the birth of a son, Bobby, on May 22, 1944. The next information his wife, Hannah, who lives at 6844 Olcott av., had from the lieutenant was notification that he had won the bronze star for destroying three Nazi machine gun nests hindering his progress. Overseas more than a year, Wilson is now recovering in a hospital in France.

Toddler Wears Wings

Janet Lynn, the toddler in the home of Mrs. Andrew J. MacDonald, 3249 Wilson av., is almost overbalanced strutting with the wings of German flyers captured by her father, Pvt. Andrew MacDonald. Janet was born Jan. 8, 1944. Her father, overseas 15 months, is with the 9th army in Germany.

Charles E. Brooks in the South Pacific wouldn't have to answer mail call to get the V-mail photo of his wife, Mrs. Lucille Brooks, and daughter, Cheryl Lynne, 5317 Manila av. Charles is chief mail clerk in the navy. Cheryl Lynne was born April 18, 1944.

Altho Jill Ellyn is a red-head like her mother, Mrs. Marion Johnson, 5456 N. Monitor av., she looks like her daddy, Staff Sgt. Gilbert C. Johnson, now crowding the Japs out of the Philippines. In the army three years, Johnson has been overseas since October, 1943. Jill was born March 1, 1944.

Wears Imported Clothes!

Georgeanne, daughter of Lt. and Mrs. George Edgar, 4946 N. Karlov av., has an imported wardrobe. Among the clothes her father, an engineer with the 9th army in Germany, has sent are two knitted dresses from Belgium, and a dress, handmade by a woman in Holland. Georgeanne was born May 22, 1944. Lt. Edgar went into France on D-day, won a battlefield promotion in September and later the bronze star for his work in helping to bridge the Moselle river. He has been overseas 16 months. In a recent surprise package from her husband Mrs. Edgar received a set of china from Holland.

The favorite toy of Junior Slobodzian, curly headed son of 1st Lt. and Mrs. Theodore Slobodzian, 1247 Fry st., is a panda sent by his father just before he sailed for Europe. A D-day veteran, Lt. Slobodzian is an engineer with the 1st army in Luxemburg.

Gas Shortage No Problem Here

Like a milk wagon horse, Zino, part cocker spaniel and part bull, knows the newspaper route as well as her master and trainer, Harold Fotre, 5911 Leader av. She pulls up to the right houses and waits while Harold makes deliveries and collections.

Boca Beauty

ELAINE CHEEVERS

Miss Elaine Cheevers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Cheevers, 4620 N. Drake av., has been named Boca Beauty by service men at Boca Raton [Fla.] army air field. The young Chicagoan, secretary to the commanding officer, was graduated from Roosevelt High school. Miss Cheevers has worked for the army at Maxwell field, Ala.; Nashville, Tenn., Chicago, Miami Beach, Fla., and at Boca Raton.

LEAVES EDISON FIRM WITH 40 YEARS' SERVICE

After chalking up nearly 40 years of service with Commonwealth Edison Co., William S. Andrew, Park Ridge, retired recently.

William Andrew

Born on a farm near Manhattan, Ill., Andrew came to Chicago as a boy to attend business school, entered the employ of the utility in 1905 as a bookkeeper, and advanced thru the ranks to general supervisor of credit and collection.

REFUGEE TO GIVE TALK ON WAR TO NORWAY WOMEN

Singer to Lecture on Wednesday

The five Chicago chapters of Daughters of Norway will present Hulda Frish Gran, Norwegian opera singer and lecturer, Wednesday night at the Chicago Norske klub, 2346 N. Kedzie av.

Hulda F. Gran

Miss Gran, who will tell of her experiences in the war, was a radio announcer and opera singer in Bergen, Norway, at the time of the Nazi invasion. When the Gestapo ordered her to broadcast for them she refused. With two Norwegian youths she walked thru the mountains and joined Norwegian army troops. She remained with them until they were close enough to the coast for her to escape in a stolen sailboat to England with 22 others.

GI JOE ASSERTS STEINMETZ HIGH CAN NOT FORGET

Three thousand Steinmetz High school alumni in military service are remembered at least three times a year by their alma mater. Contact with the men has been maintained since Christmas, 1941, when personal greeting cards were sent to the 97 then in service.

A faculty committee of 10 members headed by Ruby Yetter, English instructor, keeps the school in touch with former students. A file showing names, addresses, honors and citations received, and injuries suffered is kept up to date thru cooperation of the men and their parents.

Mailed Twice Annually

Each December and May the Steinmetz Star, school newspaper, publishes a service men's issue devoted to letters sent from war theaters in Europe and the Pacific. The issue accompanied by a letter from Principal Matthew L. Fitzgerald is sent to every former student in service. More than half of the last issue was sent overseas.

Birthday greetings, signed by teachers who knew the students, are sent as birthdays occur. Those whose birthdays occur during the summer are not forgotten. Cards are prepared before school closes. More than half of the 225 which go out each month are sent V-mail. The design for this greeting was drawn by Alice Arntzen, who was graduated last June.

Deliver Card Later

When a card fails to reach its destination and is returned, it is kept on file and presented when the service man again visits the school. When a service man is killed, his record is transferred to the gold star file of which Mrs. Elma Boughton, dean of women, is in charge. The information also is sent his parents. At present Steinmetz has 70 gold stars, and lists 21 men missing in action and 18 prisoners of war.

Letters from service men and women are posted on a bulletin board. If there are any requests, James Downey, another committee member, answers them.

When they come home on leave, they meet in the school foyer where they can consult the files for classmates' addresses and renew acquaintances with former teachers. Students ply them with questions of their experiences.

GERMAN PRISON HOSPITAL MOST UN-HOSPITABLE

Yank Received No Heat or Care—Just Soup

The toasted almonds and good cigars Pvt. Leo Shafran, 3016 Sunnyside av., has been enjoying at McCloskey General hospital at Temple, Tex., are a far cry from his fare of the last three months. He was a prisoner in a German prison hospital at Heppenheim since he was wounded at Bitche, France, in January.

Pvt. Leo Shafran

In a recent telephone conversation with his wife, he related some of the treatment he and 280 other allied fighters received there.

"You couldn't exactly call it a hospital," he said. "There wasn't any heat and the windows were all barred. We had no solid food—just soup."

Unable to Escape

The day of his capture Shafran was on watch on a hilltop. He spotted a German battalion approaching and thought he could make it unobserved thru a heavy snowstorm to a shelter to warn his buddy, but a rifle bullet got him in the left leg.

Caught between the subsequent American artillery fire and German machine gun fire, Shafran spent the night in the snow trying to stop the bleeding from his wound. The following morning, in answer to his "comrade," "medic," the German medics bandaged his leg and took him to the cellar of his shelter house they had taken over. The next day he was evacuated to Heppenheim.

Get Little Medical Aid

The first six weeks, he said, the wounded men had no treatment except from two fellow prisoners, French medics. There were no gauze bandages, only paper ones. Things picked up a little later, he said, when a lieutenant and major of the United States medical corps were taken prisoner and transferred to Heppenheim.

While a prisoner, Shafran said, his diet was a loaf of black bread shared with nine other men each morning, potato peeling soup for lunch and dinner, barley coffee in midafternoon, and watery soup at night.

March 27 will always be a red letter day in Shafran's life—his day of liberation by members of the 3d armored division.

Sees Lost Yank First

For several days previous, Shafran related, the boys had "sweated out" American bombardment. On the night of March 26 all German guards fled, leaving the German commandant of the hospital to hold the fort alone.

The first liberator they saw—a lone Yank—was a distinct disappointment. He was an orphan of the storm and lost from his own Yank platoon. Soon, however, he was followed by a Yank tank and three riflemen. Within less than a week, the wounded Yanks had passed thru Paris on their way back to this country in air transports.

Shafran was a salesman for Sears Roebuck & Co. before entering the service in March, 1944.

'HERE'S MUD IN YOUR EYE' IS MORE THAN A QUICKIE IN THIS SPOT

The only thing the other seven men in Sgt. Howard Kopp's squad could do when 50 Japs attacked their Negros island position was point their rifles and say, "Here's mud in your eye."

Jap fire on the advancing squad had been so intense the Yanks could only infrequently raise their heads above their foxholes and mud had plugged their rifles. Sgt. Kopp was the only man able to fire.

The sergeant, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Kopp, 2621 N. Springfield av., fired 76 rounds before other members were able to get enough mud out of their rifles to discourage the enemy.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, May 14

One of the most important activities in the war garden is thinning plants in each row. Keep the hoe going at least once a week. Thinning is simply removing plants when they are too close together in order that those remaining will have full space in which to develop.

Perennials should not be permitted to grow until they encroach on others to the detriment of all. Those that are strong growers spread over the ground rapidly and crowd out slower or weaker growers. They should be kept in bounds and the only way to do it is to thin them out and restrict them.

Plants of this kind include the false dragonhead, hardy asters, manysedums, the Oswego tea, and many others.

Tuesday, May 15

Weather permitting, tomato plants can be set in the ground. Eggplants and peppers should be planted at the same time because they are strictly tropical and must be treated as such.

Vegetables require at least six hours of sun and should not be close to trees, for the tree roots sap the ground of food and moisture. Grass does poorly under trees unless the shade is light.

Wednesday, May 16

When planting perennial flowering plants prepare the ground by deep digging and by thoroly breaking it up. This induces deep rooting. Do not crowd the plants or plant annuals too close together in the border, for it induces disease and insects to increase.

Plant perennials immediately. Spray hollyhocks, phlox, and peonies. Lay in green stakes or suitable stakes for perennials and other tall plants.

Thursday, May 17

Keep after the insects, for unless they are combatted continually the plant may be seriously injured. Many authorities believe that dusting is more effective and not so messy as spraying and it is an easy method.

Fold cheesecloth eight times, placing the dust—such as rotenone dust, tobacco dust, or pyrethrum dust—in it. Shake the cloth over the plants. A regular cloud of the insecticide issues forth.

It is essential that it be applied as often as necessary to keep the pests under control. Rotenone kills eating and sucking insects; tobacco dust kills sucking pests, as does pyrethrum.

Unless a food crop is nearing maturity and eating insects or worms attack it, use a stomach poison, such as arsenate, but only until the crop is about half developed.

Arsenate is poisonous to humans, while rotenone is not. The latter is said to be 15 times stronger than arsenate of lead.

Friday, May 18

Cultivate the borders as well as all other plants and especially newly planted borders. Shrubs are usually allowed to go along without much attention, but it is not conducive to good growth. Old shrubs need feeding and if animal manures are not available use commercial fertilizers.

When growing seedlings, give them the maximum of light, for light is absolutely essential to produce healthy and sturdy plants. Some plants require subdued light. These are the English ivy, palms, fancy leaved caladium, African violet, ferns, dumb cane, and similar plants. Most flowering plants like sun.

Saturday, May 19

Try to have window boxes full of plants and annual vines on porches or wherever they are needed to aid in beautifying the home. Annuals also can be grown in baskets in an effective manner. Some of these are canary vine or creeper, tall nasturtiums, gypsophila elegans, and nemophila insignis. Even schizanthus is worth a trial.

Take a wire basket, line it with a layer of sphagnum moss, dried or fresh, and fill the space with good, rich compost, adding a small amount of commercial fertilizer. Sow nasturtiums and creeper an inch deep and three inches apart, the others lightly or simply by scratching in with a label.

TRAVELERS AID SERVICE SET UP FOR SQUIRRELS

Mrs. Emeline Kasper, 2519 N. Artesian av., didn't know that she would have to turn her home into a traveler's aid society for squirrels if she fed them peanuts from her front steps.

Merle, the squirrel, is a regular customer at the front step breakfast, and Mrs. Kasper worried when she didn't show up for a couple of days, fearing she had come out on the short end of an argument with some neighborhood dogs. The other day during a storm Merle reappeared with reinforcements.

"Now Make Yourself at Home"

While Mrs. Kasper left her front door open to set an extra place, Merle made herself at home in the front hall and deposited her drenched offspring in the corner, with what, as well as Mrs. Kasper could interpret squirrel jargon, were definite instructions that it should stay there until called for.

With other ideas on the subject, the baby squirrel attempted a couple of times to follow its mother but Merle let it know it was strictly a "will call" article. Mrs. Kasper took a philosophical view of the whole matter and made the unwanted guest as comfortable as possible in a cardboard box with plenty of peanuts.

Calling All Squirrels

The next day when the sun came out Merle called for her orphan of the storm, taking care of the little matter of releasing her by scratching some of the air holes big enough to reach in after the baby and drag her out.

Note to squirrels: "For rent, one cardboard box, well ventilated, for squirrels only."

Irving Park Lutherans Mark Victory Tonight

MOUNT EMBLEM
ILLINOIS' MOST BEAUTIFUL CEMETERY
"Without the Gates of the City"

HERE you will see a Living Memorial of superb natural loveliness; eternal beauty where one feels the depth, the breadth, the vastness of Nature. At Mount Emblem there is a notable absence of the usual "cemetery" atmosphere; but rather an atmosphere of quiet, comfort and charm to uplift the weary spirit.

A WELCOME surprise awaits everyone who visits Mount Emblem for the first time. Its memorable beauty is an inspiration.

MOUNT EMBLEM is the site of the Old Dutch Mill, built in 1850. This Mill is a rare tribute to the ingenuity, perseverance, and craftsmanship of a past age. The grist mill machinery is in place, just as it was many years ago when grinding grain. It is an interesting exhibit.

Enjoy the quiet loveliness of an evening at Mount Emblem during the week. An hour spent in the solace of shadows cast by the setting sun will be long remembered.

Each evening Sacred and Concert music is broadcast across the cemetery from the Old Dutch Mill which serves as a Chime Tower. The Gates are open until dark.

The big C-54 transport planes you can help to build here are even more necessary in the Pacific conflict. Companion planes to the largest bombers, these C-54's carry everything to our fighting men—jeeps, ammunition, supplies of every sort. And as long as men are being shot, and wounded, these C-54's will be needed in increasing numbers to move casualties to hospitals.

FLEES SCHOOL'S RIGORS TWICE FOR WAR'S LOT

He Wonders Now When His Pupils Enlist

Sherman may be right, but on two occasions Lewis Bramkamp, who recently resumed teaching history classes at Steinmetz High school, preferred war to preparing term papers and reports. He has just been discharged from the American volunteer field service after a year overseas.

The first time he snapped a finger at Sherman's warning was in 1918 when he was a freshman at Carthage college. His English term paper was overdue by six weeks. He didn't think his professor would understand. He hopped the Burlington to Quincy and enlisted.

Prepared to brave his teacher after the war, he discovered his professor had been drafted about the time he left and that the army had mellowed him considerably, and that the teacher had forgotten about the paper, anyway.

The second time was in December, 1943, when as a history teacher at Steinmetz he was to turn in a report on developmental reading to the principal, Daniel F. O'Hearn, now retired. Bramkamp says he doesn't know exactly what the report was to be about because he left before he got into details. He marched off the campus and into the American volunteer field services as a lieutenant.

Now, when a boy enlists from his class, he sometimes wonders.

Often Drove Snaky Roads

Bramkamp spent 10 months in Burma and Assam, arriving at Kohima, the Japs' point of deepest penetration, at the height of the battle. Altho assigned to administrative work, Bramkamp, in the emergency, drove ambulances during the battle, evacuating wounded over the molasses-like road 41 miles to the nearest railhead. Several round trips a day often were necessary for each ambulance, he said, and casualties from snipers were high.

Compared to some of the Indian drivers, newly accustomed to army vehicles, the Sunday drivers of the '30s were a careful lot, apparently. On the road snaking thru the mountains from Imphal to Tiddim, a difficult drive for the most experienced, he estimated he saw a couple thousand army vehicles at the bottom of the 2,000 foot drop.

Noted Pro-Jap Feeling

However, considering their brief training during the emergency of the Jap push, and the winding roads, he said the Indians did a good job.

He observed some pro-Jap feeling among the better educated class in Burma. This he attributed to the fact they believed any change from British rule would throw them into power. To the coolie, he said, it didn't seem to make much difference who was in power.

Bramkamp was one of four men in his group of 50 who did not land in a hospital, either as a Jap casualty or ill with a tropical disease.

HELPING OTHERS NATURAL FOR A TRAVELERS AID

Interesting, Not Tiring, Volunteer Says

BY NORMALEE RUGAN

Answering questions asked by 300 persons in a single afternoon would seem to take an unusual amount of patience. Mrs. Nan Helfrich of 4202 N. Sacramento av., volunteer of the Travelers Aid society, however, declares it isn't nearly as trying as one might think. "I find each is more interesting than the last."

She was speaking of the hundreds of distressed strangers who come to the Travelers Aid desks located in railroad and bus terminals for help and advice on problems they encounter upon arriving in the city.

"Each case is different. Most of ours are, of course, from persons who are at the moment unhappy. It may be a lost piece of luggage, failure of some one to meet them at the train, a frightened teen-age youth who has run away from home, or a service man who has never been in Chicago before."

Has Son in Navy

A volunteer at the Dearborn street station, Mrs. Helfrich took up the work a year and a half ago when her son, Donald Dyer, enlisted in the naval air corps. "It occurred to me the more I saw the effects of war that I should do some sort of volunteer work connected with the war. I chose Travelers Aid because I often had pictured my son going into a city unfamiliar to him. I know how much he would depend upon help from these volunteers in finding his way about." Donald is a first class seaman in an aerial gunnery school at Jacksonville, Fla.

The 2,762,977 services given last year by the society in Chicago was the greatest test in its 31 years. For the last three years military and industrial recruitments have caused large dislocations of populations. Wives and families have followed service men from camp to camp. Industrial recruits were accompanied by their families. These were all problems with which the society has had to contend.

Meet More Vets, Now

Now more and more veterans are returning home. "The last civilians to cheer the men overseas, we are often the first to welcome them back. With tottering self-confidence, the men test our civilian reactions to missing arms or legs, blindness or other disfigurements. They are often bitter, worried, restless. We attempt to build up their confidences and hopes," she said.

Mrs. Helfrich reported that in 1944 the Travelers Aid gave constructive help to 1,041 boys and girls who, anxious to earn big wages, had run away from home to take jobs in Chicago. Often they found the big city too much to cope with and were ready to have a worker wire their parents for the return fare home.

Help Out Aged Persons

The aged travelers have their problems, too. "Hardly a day goes by that an aged person doesn't become confused in the turmoil of the station and get lost. Some are unable to read or write, become seriously ill or find themselves without enough money to complete the trip," she said. The society cared for more than 1,315 such cases last year.

"The majority of requests come from service men. We help them plan last minute weddings, meet their sweethearts when they are unable to, and suggest places of entertainment.

"The saddest thing we see is a returned service man not being met at the train by his family. The fault usually lies in a misunderstanding between the two parties as to the correct meeting place," Mrs. Helfrich stated. Their reactions? Tears, anger, or a wish to go back overseas where they feel more at home with "the boys" than the confusion of returning to live in a world of civilians.

Teaches One Tolerance

"If this kind of work doesn't teach you to be tolerant, nothing will," she declared.

Six hundred volunteers gave 93,614 hours of service daily from 8 a. m. to 11 p. m. in 1944. Most of the workers give at least 6 hours a week. At present the society is conducting its annual spring registration drive for new members.

Mrs. Helfrich recently was elected chairman of volunteers at Dearborn station at the annual meeting. Another northwest side resident elected to the volunteer advisory committee was Mrs. W. F. Stegner of Park Ridge. She is in charge at the U. S. O. troops-in-transit lounge at Northwestern station.

BOND SELLERS OF MIGHTY 7TH READY FOR JOB

9,000 S. Siders Go to Work Tomorrow

Several thousand volunteer salesmen tomorrow will begin ringing doorbells thruout Chicago as the mighty 7th war loan opens. More than 200 OCD committee members will direct 9,000 workers covering the southwest side.

Special emphasis is being placed on the purchase of E bonds, so-called people's bonds. The treasury department has raised the quota on this series 60 per cent over that of the 6th war loan, setting Cook county's goal on E purchases at $171,146,000.

Rathje Heads Campaign

Under the city chairmanship of Frank C. Rathje, the OCD will conduct the house to house canvass thru six division heads and 108 community commanders as was done in previous drives. All other war bond activity will be under direction of Walter J. Lozier of the treasury department.

Directors of southwest side OCD districts are Clarence Poffenberger and D. E. Northam in division 1, James H. Gately and Forrest Lull in division 2, and Rathje and Robert P. Bantz in division 3.

More than 96 per cent of the 150 companies in the district already have been contacted by the pay roll savings committee with pledges for additional bond buying during the campaign. The communities division of the war finance committee is coöperating in the house to house canvass.

Set Community Quotas

Each of the communities has a chairman and vice chairman for the following divisions: Pay roll savings, retail, special events, service clubs, banking, publicity, savings and loan, national groups, women's division, religious, schools, and clubs.

Following are the quotas for the southwest side communities: Roseland, $1,510,000; Pullman and West Pullman, $430,000; Riverdale, $60,000; Auburn Park, $1,000,000; Beverly, $400,000; Morgan Park, $200,000; Washington Heights, $350,000; Fernwood, $65,000; Mount Greenwood, $100,000; Chicago Lawn [including West Lawn and Ashburn], $400,000, and Englewood, $3,800,000.

Treasury department chairmen are William M. Antonisen, 3252 S. Halsted st.; R. E. Kileen, 4150 S. Halsted st.; Mrs. Peter E. Conraths, 5421 S. May st.; E. B. Belding, 6910 S. Halsted st.; Ernest Geissler, 2749 W. 63d st.; William Krueger, 3519 63d st.; Frederick Abrams, 3011 W. 111th st.; Arthur Baer, 1357 W. 103d st., and Philip Koenig, 11002 Homan av.

Rally to Show Navy Film

Typical of the many programs that will be scheduled during the drive is the rally planned for 7 p. m. tomorrow night by the town of Lake community at the University of Chicago settlement, 4630 McDowell av. The navy invasion picture, "Fury in the Pacific," will be shown. Frank Bello of the Illinois war finance committee will be the principal speaker.

Because of the great need for workers, Rathje has issued an urgent call for war bond wardens to work in their own neighborhoods. Those wishing to volunteer are asked to communicate with the local OCD community commander or call Central 8760.

PTA AT MORGAN PARK HIGH WILL HEAR REPORTS

Annual reports of committee chairmen will be heard Thursday by Morgan Park High school PTA in the school, 1744 Pryor av.

New officers to be installed are Mrs. A. F. Mirrielees, president; Mrs. Robert E. Meany, Mrs. Lester Ferguson, and Dr. Eston V. Tubbs, vice presidents; Mrs. L. O. Grieser and Mrs. George Glade Jr., secretaries, and Mrs. Vincent McDade, treasurer.

Mrs. Mirrielees will present plans for the coming year.

The Way to better living

To buy takes money. To buy worthwhile things takes more. When you have cash, you frequently pay less for what you get, which leaves you more for other things.

START TODAY to accumulate—for the better things you want tomorrow—for your own security and happiness. A little saved every pay day to buy war bonds, or to be invested by this bank in government securities, can make a big difference in your future. It's not what you earn but what you keep that counts.

IN TRIBUTE TO AMERICA'S MOTHERS

"A mother's love—how sweet the name!
What is a mother's love?
A noble, pure and tender flame,
Enkindled from above
To bless the heart of earthly mould;
The warmest love that can't grow cold;
This is a mother's love.

V-MAIL PICTURES HONOR MOTHERS WHO CARRY ON

Tribute to the wives of service men on Mother's day is paid by the V-mail pictures which appear in today's Metropolitan section and are being sent to the fighting fathers thruout the world. As a service of THE TRIBUNE, wives receive the photos on V-mail stationery for remailing to their husbands.

Pvt. John T. Counihan has seen much of the Hawaiian Islands, New Guinea, and the Philippines during the last 18 months but he is still waiting to see his daughter, Kay, 20 months. For her first birthday he sent a wall plaque that he made from discarded aluminum. It hangs over the baby's bed in their home at 8114 La Salle st.

Counihan recently wrote his wife of being present when the first issue of the Overseas TRIBUNE came off the press in the Philippine Islands.

Sends Gown to Daughter

Sgt. La Verne Rennhak, radio repairman with the 5th army, sent home a mousseline de soie gown which his daughter, Ellen Rae, wore at her christening last January. His wife and baby live at 323 W. 52d st. Rennhak has been overseas since April, 1944.

Linda Anne Elliott was wearing her father's baby ring for her picture with her mother in their home at 7611 Eggleston av. Her father, a sergeant in an air force inspection company, has been in service three years. He left the country last October and Linda was born Nov. 26.

Janice Glens and her mother live at 5601 S. Morgan st. Her father, Lt. Maurice W. Glens, entered service in March, 1941, and was sent overseas with the air borne artillery in December, 1944. Janice was born last January.

Meets Husband at Hospital

Lt. [j. g.] Francis Arthur Pfium met his wife while she was a student nurse at Little Company of Mary hospital and he was a medical student. They were married in December, 1943, and he spent a year interning at Great Lakes Naval hospital. Francis Jr., born in January, and his mother live at 8412 Morgan st. Lt. Pfium left in December for an overseas assignment at a naval hospital in Guam.

Sgt. Thomas Skvarla is serving in his second theater of war. Entering the service in May, 1941, he was sent to the Hawaiian Islands in December of the same year. At Christmas, 1942, he instructed his father to present an engagement ring to his future wife. Returning home in March, 1943, he was married. Last July he was sent to England and then to France and Germany. Mrs. Skvarla remained at their home, 5421 S. Hamlin av. Doris Ann was born in October.

Machinist on PT Boat

Robert Anthony, motor machinist on a PT boat in the Philippines, has been overseas one year. He and his wife attended the Blue Island Township High school and were married on Valentine's day, 1942. Robert Jr., born in October, and his mother live in Blue Island. Anthony entered the navy in November, 1942, and was sent overseas in April, 1944.

Altho Holly Adeline is only 7 months, her mother, Mrs. Walter Howton of Matteson, says she knows her daddy's picture and gets excited every time it is shown to her. Mrs. Howton expects her husband to be equally excited when he sees the V-mail picture. Lt. Howton has been overseas since June, 1944.

Gets Word at Midnight

Two days after his son, Thomas Edward, was born last July, Corp. Albert E. Plowman, in England, learned he was a father. Even tho it was midnight he passed out the smokes and celebrated the event in typical style. He left his home, 11207 Emerald av., for an overseas assignment in February, 1944. Plowman sent Thomas a spoon, knife, and fork from England recently, his first presents to his son.

Sgt. Emil Oliva was shipped overseas in September, 1944, and his son, David, was born Nov. 26. Mrs. Oliva, who lives in Midlothian, sent him the news immediately but he did not learn he was a father until Christmas when a double celebration was held.

Mrs. Thomas Hathaway has lived with her father, Dennis Nolan, 455 W. 41st st., since her husband, Thomas, seaman 1st class, left for overseas in August, 1944. Their son, Daniel Joseph, was born Oct. 21.

Roseland Chorus

BUDA CO. CHORUS TO GIVE CONCERT TUESDAY NIGHT

La Verne Barllow

The mixed choir of 70 voices of Buda company, Harvey, will present a concert in Orchestra hall Tuesday night. Hugh Thompson of the Metropolitan Opera company will be guest vocalist.

The Buda mixed chorus, composed of men and women employed in the shops and offices of the war plant, is two years old. LaVerne Barllow, soprano, Chicago Heights, is one of the southwest siders who will appear in the program.

The Madrigal Singers from Thornton Township High school will assist the choir in anti-phonal response from the balcony. Josef Koestner and Stanley Martin will be pianists.

S. W. SIDE CHURCH WILL OBSERVE MOTHER'S DAY

Dr. Harry J. Hager, pastor of Bethany Reformed church, 111th pl. and Perry av., will deliver a special Mother's day message at 7:30 p. m. today. Music will be furnished by the Bethany choir, under direction of Gertrude Dixon, with Carl N. Shevedden guest soloist.

During the service recognition will be given the oldest and youngest mother present, gold star mothers, the mother with the greatest number of children in service, and the mother with the largest number of children in attendance.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, May 14

One of the most important activities in the war garden is thinning plants in each row. Keep the hoe going at least once a week. Thinning is simply removing plants when they are too close together in order that those remaining will have full space in which to develop.

Perennials should not be permitted to grow until they encroach on others to the detriment of all. Those that are strong growers spread over the ground rapidly and crowd out slower or weaker growers. They should be kept in bounds and the only way to do it is to thin them out and restrict them.

Plants of this kind include the false dragonhead, hardy asters, manysedums, the Oswego tea, and many others.

Tuesday, May 15

Weather permitting, tomato plants can be set in the ground. Eggplants and peppers should be planted at the same time because they are strictly tropical and must be treated as such.

Vegetables require at least six hours of sun and should not be close to trees, for the tree roots sap the ground of food and moisture. Grass does poorly under trees unless the shade is light.

Wednesday, May 16

When planting perennial flowering plants prepare the ground by deep digging and by thoroly breaking it up. This induces deep rooting. Do not crowd the plants or plant annuals too close together in the border, for it induces disease and insects to increase.

Plant perennials immediately. Spray hollyhocks, phlox, and peonies. Lay in green stakes or suitable stakes for perennials and other tall plants.

Thursday, May 17

Keep after the insects, for unless they are combatted continually the plant may be seriously injured. Many authorities believe that dusting is more effective and not so messy as spraying and it is an easy method.

Fold cheesecloth eight times, placing the dust—such as rotenone dust, tobacco dust, or pyrethrum dust—in it. Shake the cloth over the plants. A regular cloud of the insecticide issues forth.

It is essential that it be applied as often as necessary to keep the pests under control. Rotenone kills eating and sucking insects; tobacco dust kills sucking pests, as does pyrethrum.

Unless a food crop is nearing maturity and eating insects or worms attack it, use a stomach poison, such as arsenate, but only until the crop is about half developed.

Arsenate is poisonous to humans, while rotenone is not. The latter is said to be 15 times stronger than arsenate of lead.

Friday, May 18

Cultivate the borders as well as all other plants and especially newly planted borders. Shrubs are usually allowed to go along without much attention, but it is not conducive to good growth. Old shrubs need feeding and if animal manures are not available use commercial fertilizers.

When growing seedlings, give them the maximum of light, for light is absolutely essential to produce healthy and sturdy plants. Some plants require subdued light. These are the English ivy, palms, fancy leaved caladium, African violet, ferns, dumb cane, and similar plants. Most flowering plants like sun.

Saturday, May 19

Try to have window boxes full of plants and annual vines on porches or wherever they are needed to aid in beautifying the home. Annuals also can be grown in baskets in an effective manner. Some of these are canary vine or creeper, tall nasturtiums, gypsophila elegans, and nemophila insignis. Even schizanthus is worth a trial.

Take a wire basket, line it with a layer of sphagnum moss, dried or fresh, and fill the space with good, rich compost, adding a small amount of commercial fertilizer. Sow nasturtiums and creeper an inch deep and three inches apart, the others lightly or simply by scratching in with a label.

St. Leo Mothers to Hold 2 Meetings This Week

St. Leo Mothers club will meet twice this week. Tomorrow afternoon election of officers will be held at the monthly meeting in the school, 901 W. 79th st. Thursday afternoon the annual spring luncheon will be held at the Del Prado hotel. Mrs. Thomas F. Stapleton is arrangements chairman.

Open St. Rita's Annual Novena Today at Shrine

The annual solemn novena in honor of St. Rita of Cascia, conducted by the Augustinian fathers, will open today at the 9 a. m. mass in the Shrine of St. Rita, 63d st. and Oakley av. A procession will take place next Sunday afternoon. The novena will close May 22, feast day of St. Rita.

Y WORKERS OPEN EXPANSION DRIVE IN S.W. DISTRICTS

Report $20,000 Already Raised in One Area

More than 800 workers will contack 8,000 persons to raise $350,000 in the combined expansion drive of the Englewood, Auburn Park, and West Communities Y. M. C. A. under direction of Raymond S. Blunt, 8340 Elizabeth st., campaign chairman.

The funds are to be used for enlarging the Englewood building, 6545 Union av.; erection of two new Y. M. C. A. buildings for Auburn Park and West Communities branches and improvements at Camp Cutten at Lake Villa.

$20,000 Already Raised

In the Englewood drive, more than $20,000 have been raised. Auburn Park reports $4,897, and West Communities received $2,732. One person has pledged $7,500, the largest single promised sum.

The Rail Splitters, men's service organization of the Englewood Y, has pledged its members will be responsible for $30,000. Sgt. Harold Pilgrim, stationed with a bomber squadron in the Pacific, contributed $20.

J. F. McFarland, Englewood executive secretary, said more than 160 civic, religious, business, and social groups use the Y facilities each year. Three thousand boys and girls belong to over 100 Y sponsored clubs. Last year 2,100 employes of industrial plants paid regular visits to the Y.

Y. M. C. A. Teaches Swimming

In 17 years 9,317 boys and girls have been taught to swim. Every summer, thru the help of the Kiwanis club, 100 underprivileged boys are sent to the Y's summer camp. Every summer more than 1,000 school boys and girls enjoy the informal camping program. Another 650 boys and girls visit Camp Cutten each summer.

Group meetings were attended by 170,570 persons last year. Church basketball and softball leagues, training courses for church school teachers, and monthly meetings of Southtown pastors have been phases of the program.

Ray School PTA

The Ray school PTA will meet at 1:30 p. m. Wednesday in the school auditorium, 5631 Kimbark av. Summer time reading for children will be discussed.

RENAME SOUTH SIDE WOMAN TO EPISCOPAL POST

WALTER HENRY TENINGA, 10718 Normal av., senior at Morgan Park High school, was one of three students who recently received $750 three-term Horace Rackham scholarships to the University of Michigan. The awards, first to be granted since 1941, are made on the basis of moral character, good citizenship, scholastic ability, and capacity and promise of leadership.

LA VERNE MAES, 8205 Marshfield av., has been corresponding with 30 service men for three years. During 1944 she wrote 771 letters and received 631. Her list includes soldiers, sailors, marines, an R. A. F. flyer, a WAC, and a WAVE. One of the men is missing in action in Belgium. Another was discharged from the navy due to battle inflicted wounds. Postage alone cost La Verne more than $40 last year and this year she estimates it will be more.

Alexander Kumskis, 6615 S. California av., is a member of the Lithuanian mission attending the San Francisco conference.

Mrs. H. J. Kloeppel, Homewood, recently celebrated her 85th birthday with a luncheon at which she and her three sisters held their first reunion in 52 years. The three sisters, Mrs. F. R. Owens, Mrs. D. L. Andre, and Mrs. G. L. Bush, 79, 75, and 70 years old, respectively, and Mrs. Kloeppel, have an average age of 77. All are widows.

Leo T. Feehery, 6937 Normal blvd., has been pledged to Triangle fraternity at Illinois Institute of Technology. A graduate of Spalding High school, he is majoring in mechanical engineering.

Two southwest side girls were elected recently to sorority offices at DePauw university. Jean McArthur, 9901 Oakley av., was made rush chairman of Delta Delta Delta sorority. Ruth Bergstrom, 11648 Oakley, was elected secretary of Alpha Gamma Delta.

MR. AND MRS. JOSEPH CHVATAL, 6409 Racine av., recently celebrated their 60th wedding. Born in Czechoslovakia, the couple was married in Chicago and have lived at the same address 57 years. Of their 11 children, five are living. They have 21 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren.

Max B. Goldberg, 3255 S. Halsted st., recently was initiated into Rho Delta Rho fraternity at Illinois Institute of Technology. A Hyde Park High school graduate, Goldberg is majoring in electrical engineering.

Ravinia Guest Conductors and Soloists Announced

10th Festival Season Will Open June 30

By Claudia Cassidy

The Ravinia festival, which actually is not a festival at all in the true sense of the term, but rather six weeks of informal summer concerts by about 75 members of the Chicago Symphony orchestra with guest conductors and soloists, finally has made official announcement of plans up its sleeve for the 10th season opening Saturday night, June 30. As previously announced, the first concert will be a special performance under the direction of Désiré Defauw, with Oscar Chausow and Frank Miller on navy leave from Great Lakes to play Brahms' Double Concerto. Mr. Chausow went into service from our orchestra, and Mr. Miller was first cellist with Toscanini.

Guest conductors follow in this order: Artur Rodzinski, Tuesday evening, July 3; Erich Leinsdorf, July 10; George Szell, July 17; Massimo Freccia, July 24; Leonard Bernstein, July 31; Pierre Monteux, Aug. 7. Each conductor has the usual four concerts, on Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoon. The Budapest quartet will be unable to return for its fifth consecutive summer, so there will be an aftermath of four concerts of chamber music by the Pro Arte quartet, which inaugurated this pleasant custom in 1940.

Three soloists are now definite. Dorothy Maynor, the Negro soprano whose recent recital was such a delight, sings under Mr. Leinsdorf's

'OTHELLO' AT ERLANGER

Paul Robeson and Uta Hagen as they appear in the most celebrated uxoricide in stage history, that of "Othello," now at the Erlanger.

direction July 10 and 14. Jakob Gimpel, a pianist well received earlier this season, appears with Mr. Szell July 17 and 21. Erica Morini, the violinist, is Mr. Freccia's collaborator July 24 and 28. Mr. Bernstein will have a soloist not yet named. Why two appearances for each soloist? Perhaps to make the most of rehearsals, perhaps to cut costs. Why no soloists for Mr. Rodzinski and Mr. Monteux? Obviously because they don't need them.

Leonard Bernstein

Erica Morini

It's impossible not to admire wise booking, and to open the season with Rodzinski and close it with Monteux seems an exceptionally gracious gesture. Of all the conductors who have visited Ravinia in the last nine summers these two are head and shoulders the most popular. Mr. Rodzinski first came in 1938, and was back in 1939, 1940, and 1942. This will be his first visit since he left the Cleveland orchestra to take charge of New York's Philharmonic. Mr. Monteux arrived on our scene in 1941 and it was a case of love at first sound, at least on our side. He has been back every summer since, because we can't get along without him. Some of us treasure those four concerts each summer as we hoard memories of Bruno Walter's Mozart at the opera.

Mr. Szell also will be making his fifth consecutive visit, an admired figure with some of the concerts' outstanding performances to his credit. Mr. Bernstein was new last summer, when we considered him remarkable for his leap into conducting, plus his "Jeremiah" symphony, his performance as pianist in Ravel's G major concerto, and his engaging ballet, "Fancy Free." Since then he has written the score for one of Broadway's most popular musicals, "On the Town," with the ex-Chicagoan, Sono Osato.

Mr. Bernstein is 26 or 27 years old, which startles a lot of people, but, for that matter, Erich Leinsdorf is just about 33. Mr. Leinsdorf will be new at Ravinia, and will stir up considerable curiosity as a symphony conductor. We heard him just once in that capacity, when he brought the Cleveland orchestra to the Civic Opera house in November, 1943, for a Beethoven and Wagner concert with Helen Traubel. Otherwise, all his success here has been with the Metropolitan Opera, which he invaded so young both Flagstad and Melchior mistrusted him as a Wagnerian guide—but not for long.

Mr. Leinsdorf has an extraordinary background. Born in Vienna in 1912, he studied cello and composition. He was assistant to Bruno Walter at Salzburg and later to Toscanini. He conducted at the May festival in Florence and at the operas of Bologna, Trieste, and San Remo, and in 1937 was engaged for the Met. When Rodzinski left Cleveland, Leinsdorf, the youngest competitor for the post, got the job. The army took him for a time, but he goes back to Cleveland in the fall, with time off for opera.

Mr. Freccia, who conducts the New Orleans symphony, is particularly interesting to me because of what Giorgio Polacco has to say in his favor. He is a Florentine, born in that lovely city in 1906, and he studied violin and composition at the conservatory there. Later he went to Vienna to work with Franz Schalk, himself a pupil of Bruckner. Mr. Freccia conducted in such cities as Paris, Vienna, Budapest, Warsaw, and Prague, and in 1933 was made director of the Budapest Symphony orchestra. He has worked at the famous Augusteo and at the Basilica Massenzio in Rome. He made his American début at the New York Stadium concerts in 1938. Known chiefly as a conductor, he has written a symphonic poem, some choral works, and a cycle of songs to Baudelaire's "Fleurs du Mal."

Miss Maynor needs no additional description, and has needed none since Serge Koussevitzky introduced her beautiful voice to the world. Mr. Gimpel is a Pole of considerable European reputation which is being consolidated here. Miss Morini is a prodigious girl who already has appeared with the Chicago Symphony over a span of 23 seasons. Said to have made her début at Leipzig under the formidable Nikisch when she was eight years old, Miss Morini has led a charmed life. For one thing, she owns the priceless Davidoff Stradivarius, which dates back more than two centuries.

Paulist Choristers to Give Spring Concert Today

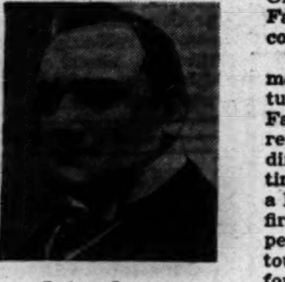
on the Aisle

by Claudia Cassidy

WHEN the wife of a famous man writes the story of his life it is likely to be just one side, however eloquent and intimate, of what for complete authenticity should be a more complex portrait. When Romola Nijinska wrote her fascinating life of Nijinsky, many informed people considered the picture distorted until Arnold Haskell balanced it with his companion book on Diaghileff. Perhaps there also are discrepancies in "Enrico Caruso, His Life and Death," by Dorothy Caruso [Simon and Schuster, $2.75], but far more important is the fact that it is an absorbing and revealing piece of work. It makes Caruso the man more interesting than Caruso the legend, and not the least of its points worth noting is that Mrs. Caruso [she uses that name despite two subsequent marriages] finally succeeded in having his tomb at Naples closed. Back in 1929 Tito Schipa told the press that every three years Caruso's friends dressed the body in the smartest new clothes London could offer. At that moment, he confided proudly, Caruso was wearing a snappy morning coat.

Story of Caruso by His Wife a Revealing and Absorbing Work

Mrs. Caruso doesn't waste much time refuting the kind of gossip that crystallizes into legend. She devotes two pages to plain facts about the great tenor, some in the nature of demolition bombs. She states flatly, for instance, that he never shattered either a mirror or a wineglass with his voice, and as for five plates of spaghetti for lunch, she lists the true simplicity of his fare, an intelligent diet, backed up by his letters, in which he occasionally mentions what he had to eat. My favorite is his plug for watermelon, which he describes as a food to eat, to drink, and to wash the face. But she tells in considerable detail the constant care he lavished on that magnificent voice, and more than one ambitious singer will be fascinated, instructed, and possibly terrified to discover the insatiable demands of such a career.



Enrico Caruso

For Caruso's life was no more beer and skittles than it was spaghetti and vino. It was a struggle to get to the top, and where this book is concerned, a fierce fight to stay there. Mrs. Caruso married Caruso about four years before his death, when he clung to the dizzy pinnacle where his fabulous voice and the adulation of the public had precariously placed him. Edith Mason once told me of her early days at the Metropolitan, when she sang Oscar the page to Caruso's Riccardo in "The Masked Ball." As they stood in the wings she noticed that Caruso was trembling. "Why, Caruso," she asked in amazement, "are you nervous?" "Mason," he answered, "other singers must sing 100 per cent. Caruso, 150 per cent." I told that story to Edward Johnson during the Metropolitan's recent visit, and he recalled with a rueful shake of his head that Caruso was only 48 when he died. "In any other field," he said, "a man who reaches the peak of his profession at 50 is in his prime, but a singer is beginning to be looked upon as a has-been." The general manager of the Met wasn't fooling when he added, "I was the luckiest man in the world to fall into this job when I gave up my career as a singer." Lucky to get the job, no doubt, but considerably more than that to be able to keep it.

But Caruso was a singer to the end. Not even a hemorrhage on the stage of the Metropolitan could stop him. His last performance, in "La Juive," was his 607th in that historic house, where he never accepted more than $2,500 a performance, tho his fees elsewhere ran as high as $10,000. He sadly closed the piano after the long siege of pleural pneumonia, but opened it again and sang superbly, his wife reports, in the days of what he believed to be his convalescence. He was before my time in music, so that I know his glorious voice only on records, but at least for me he has come to life in these stories of his last years, in his caricatures and photographs, including a particularly rare one of a slender Caruso singing Turiddu at the age of 22, and most of all in his adoring letters to his young wife and their child. These are the outpourings of a man deeply in love, essentially big of heart, shrewd of perception, witty of expression, and tenacious of purpose. And they are written in some of the most extraordinary English yet put on paper.

Letters Extraordinary Records

Most of these letters are from Havana in the midst of a strenuous tour on which Mrs. Caruso could not accompany him because of the impending birth of Gloria, their daughter. They are devoted, determined, altogether extraordinary records that may make you wonder what price career. In order to improve their knowledge of each other's language, Caruso wrote in his special English and his wife replied in Italian. He notes, "Your Italian is better of my English because you know all the words and your idee [how you speel this word, idey, aidy, or idy?] are perfectly put down and compresinbly, instead me, to write a period take me long time and I go crazy to find the right word. Sometime I say to myself, 'Why are you so stupid?' and I have a fight with Caruso because he said, 'I cannot do many things alltogether.' I excuse him and then we try to do our best, working very hard."

Remember, he was battling to stay at that stupendous top. "I feel so afraid," he wrote from Havana, "of all the things which I hear around here. I just finished to answer to a newspaper which wrote last night an article against me, in wishing me my Waterloo. Sometimes I cannot let pas such things and for consequence I was obliged to answer in a very dignitiouse way, in sending bak the bad wishes. I do not understand why in the world must be people who try to wish bad luck to the one who try to work onestly. Well, I wish that everything will be alright and let such people die of envy."

"I Have Win Another Victory"

Did he succeed? Count the triumph and the cost of these later letters—"Strow hat and cane come on the stage and after every song was veritable delirium. . . . I forgot there was lady singing with me and I transport with me everybody, maestro, orchestra, Barrientos, and for consequence, the public . . . the Cubans who heard me in New York says that never I sang better. This is 27th year that people says that. [Modesty a part.] I have win another victory and I hope to conquist at the end all the country. Goodnight because I am tired."

Perhaps he conquered more than he knew before he went to his last rest. The name of Caruso has not lost its magic.

Program to Be a Benefit for Summer School

By Albert Goldberg

The Paulist Choristers — tho not entirely inactive during the winter season since their war bond concert in Orchestra hall last December netted a total sale of $4,061,500 in bonds, the third largest of a series of such concerts held thruout the nation during the sixth war loan drive — will give their annual spring concert in Orchestra hall this afternoon at 3:30. Father Eugene F. O'Malley will of course conduct his charges.

The Paulist group is one of the most honored of local musical institutions. It was organized in 1904 by Father Finn—now again a Chicago resident—and remained under his direction for 14 years, during which time its activities were climaxed by a European tour and the winning of first prize in an international competition in Paris. In 1918 the choir toured the United States and Canada for the benefit of French relief, and sang 238 concerts in 113 cities.

When Father Finn left Chicago in 1918 to organize a similar Paulist choir in New York City, he took with him as his assistant a young boy who had been one of his choristers for many years. Eugene O'Malley was then only 16, but his talents attracted wide attention and soon he had organized his own subsidiary choir, the Gregorian Choristers of 60 voices. Pursuing his studies at the Catholic university in Washington he was organist and choirmaster at St. Paul's college for four years. Then a period of intensive study in Rome, the present world center of polyphonic music, prepared him for the post of conductor of the Chicago Paulist choir, to which he was assigned on his return to this country in 1928.

Today's concert will be for the benefit of the summer school of the choir at Sayner, Wis., where the training of the boys is continued under vacation conditions.

The Buda Mixed Chorus, consisting of 70 employes of the Buda company of Harvey, Ill., will give a concert at Orchestra hall on Tuesday at 8:15 under the direction of Jacques Homier. The soloist will be Hugh Thompson, baritone of the Metropolitan Opera, who will sing arias from "The Marriage of Figaro," "The Magic Flute," "The Damnation of Faust" and "A Masked Ball," and will join the chorus in the coronation scene from Moussorgsky's "Boris Godounoff."

The Alice Stephens Singers will appear in concert at the Eighth Street theater this afternoon at 3:30.

Aveah Kogan, Chicago pianist, will be heard in recital at Kimball hall on Wednesday at 8:20. Her program includes pieces by Pachelbel and Mozart, Beethoven's "Appassionata" sonata, a group of Brahms, Chopin's F minor Ballade, short works by Miaskowsky, Debussy, Rachmaninoff and Albeniz, and Ravel's Sonatine.

PIANIST

Aveah Kogan, who appears in piano recital Wednesday evening at Kimball hall.

The American Opera company will present "Rigoletto" at Kimball hall tonight at 8. The cast includes Ruth Skurnik, Michael Lester, Harold Willer, and Mildred Staley. Joseph Banahan is the conductor.

The Girls' Glee Club of Austin High school, consisting of 125 voices, conducted by Edna Pohlman, will give a concert in Orchestra hall tomorrow night at 8:15. For part of the program the club will be joined by an intermediate group, forming a combined chorus of 250 voices. The soloist will be Robert Weede, Metropolitan Opera baritone.

Anna Louise de Ramus, Negro pianist, will be presented in recital in Lufkin hall, Evanston, this afternoon at 4, for the benefit of the scholarship fund of Beta chapter, Sigma Alpha Iota musical sorority.

The Northwestern university a cappella choir, George Howerton conductor, and Stefan Bardas, pianist, will be presented in a joint concert by the Northwestern Associate Alumnae and Alumni association in Cahn auditorium on Wednesday at 8:15.

Professional musician members of the Arts club will present their annual program on Tuesday at 3:30. Participants will be Edward Collins, composer-pianist, and Kathryn Witwer, soprano. Lola Fletcher, Marie Sidenius Zendt, and Rose Lyon Du Moulin will present a satire of musical life called "Rival Prima Donnas."

The Aeolian chorus, Stephen Pepich director, will give its annual concert in Curtiss hall on Saturday evening. Fred Hoeppner, cellist, will be the soloist.

The De Paul University Symphony orchestra, conducted by Richard Czerwonky, and the De Paul university choir, under the direction of Arthur C. Becker, will give a concert in Orchestra hall Tuesday, May 22, at 8:15. Rose Goldberg will be the piano soloist in the Tschaikowsky concerto.

The Concerts Symphoniques de Montreal will hold its annual Gala du Printemps on Tuesday and Friday with Désiré Defauw, conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, directing. Mozart's "Requiem" will feature the second concert.

Geraldine La Sanke, a violinist born and trained in Chicago, will give a recital at Kimball hall on Tuesday at 8:20. With Jacob Hannemann at the piano she will play Vivaldi's Sonata in A major, the Glazounoff concerto, Vieuxtemps' "Ballade and Polonaise" and a group of short works.

Alexander Hilsberg, concertmaster of the Philadelphia orchestra, has been appointed associate conductor of the organization, succeeding Saul Caston, who becomes conductor of the Denver Symphony orchestra.

William Kapell, 22 year old American pianist, will be the next lend lease musical artist to be sent to Australia, following Eugene Ormandy and Marjorie Lawrence.

Application blanks for entry in the second annual audition for vocalists competing for an appearance in the Musical Arts vocal series sponsored by the Adult Education council and the Society of American Musicians are now obtainable from Edwin J. Gemmer, 501 Kimball bldg.

Special Schools for Returning Veterans Urged

G. I. Bill Fails to Aid Many, Educator Says

By The Rev. John Evans

Four million veterans, deficient in elementary education, will be unable to avail themselves of the GI Bill of Rights unless schools or classes for them are established, according to Prof. Paul A. Witty of Northwestern university, who for two years directed the army program which taught illiterates to read and write in eight weeks.

"More than 4,000,000 men had not completed elementary school when they entered the service," writes Dr. Witty in the current issue of the National Parent Teacher magazine. "Large numbers of them were classified as 'functionally illiterate' and the quickness with which they learned to read, write, and solve simple problems in arithmetic in the ASTP is one of the heartening lessons of this war."

The problem, Dr. Witty points out, is that while 90 per cent of these men are no longer 'functionally illiterate,' they are not sufficiently advanced to resume school work under the GI bill and existing facilities for adult elementary education are extremely limited, have had doubtful success, and are not geared to the needs of veterans.

"These veterans should not be placed in classes with public school children," he said. "They will require teachers trained in instructing adults and a curriculum which will enable them to make most of one to four years specialized training at the adult level."

Dr. Witty suggested that state and local authorities set up special schools, or separate classes in existing schools, with the expense provided thru the financial aid to veterans under the GI bill. He also urged that civic and social organizations stimulate interest in such schemes with leadership derived from the United States office of education, the National Education association, and other adult education groups.

"Schools and classes thus established might be correlated with efforts to eliminate illiteracy thruout the United States. A recent United States census report shows that one out of every seven adults in the nation may be considered 'functionally illiterate,'" Dr. Witty concluded.

[An individual is considered "functionally illiterate" who can read and write, but is incapable of fluent written expression or comprehension of printed logical thought.]

"The essential reward of learning, as pursued in universities, is ideas," said Prof. Arthur E. Murphy, head of the philosophy department, University of Illinois, in his address at the 21st annual honors day convocation. "Instruction in facts and methods at a university and the results of research while important in themselves are really the product of ideas, he added.

"Practical men would not be experimenting with corn today if other men had not already experimented with ideas, not for the sake of corn, but for the sake of knowledge," Prof. Murphy continued, adding that professions require a college education not so much for the skill acquired by those who possess it, but for the assurance that graduates "will know what they are doing."

Prof. Murphy stressed that the reason for honoring scholarship was not that the scholar was a prospective teacher or research associate, but rather a thinking man who thought about ways of getting things done which in the long run were worth doing.

Chicago's Cafes Are Back on Pre-Curfew Schedules

And the Shows in Clubs Are Talent Packed

By Will Davidson

Here we go again, far, far into the night life! Once more the Curfew merely tolls the knell of parting day;

The wining herd again moans lowly o'er the fee.
The showman gagward plods his weary way,
And heaves his words, in darkness, straight at me and Dawn, and Murdock, and Odmark, and Kup, and Dale, and Pence, and all the wights who write of nights. Just as we were getting adjusted to earlier hours, too—with at most a nightcap at Chez Davidson.

Well, one thing; you certainly can't say the burocratic Bessies who "breathed the husky whisper:—curfew must not ring tonight" caught the local bistrotters without any place to go. There was a scurrying and a hurrying over town last Wednesday, and before you could say cover charge, the joints were back on their old milk train runs. And the talent!

Only last Friday these openings were booked: Jimmy Dorsey and the Dinning Sisters at the Sherman; Frances Faye, Maurice and Maryea, and Lenny Kent at the Rio Cabana; Ted Lewis at the Latin Quarter, and DeMar and Denise at the LaSalle.

It is too early to be able as yet to report on the Friday openings, but I can reassure you that the Chez Paree, for instance, is back in its big time show stride, with Sophie Tucker leading the way. Sophia is Miss Show Business, and always welcome—even tho, as now, she forces you sadly to turn in a dissenting opinion on part of her performance.

One of the wonderful things about Sophie has been her ability to sing

COMEDIAN

Jan Murray is the young comedian featured in the 51 Hundred club show. The Condos brothers and Viola Layne are other star attractions.

lusty songs without being too rough on the sensibilities. She explains it in her book by saying that always she makes herself the goat of her songs—and that, while she may sing of sex, she doesn't sing of vice.

Now Sophie — admittedly hard pressed for material—has unfortunately let herself be talked into doing a number about a most unpleasant subject, one that too many lazy performers fall back on for forced laughs. There is nothing healthy, hearty, or humorous about it. I hope it is out of her repertory now.

Sophie's at her best in a reminiscent number, going back over the years, singing again the songs associated with her, and winding up with the greatest of all, "Some of These Days."

I had never heard Arthur Lee Simpkins before he opened with Miss Tucker in the current Chez revue, and I'm sorry now to have missed him earlier. He comes very close to stealing the show away from Sophie, and he deserves every bit of applause he gets. Mr. Simpkins varies his offerings with wisdom. His numbers range from the dramatic "Eli Eli" to "Aloette"—from the sentimental "Because" to "Begin the Beguine." He has a beautiful voice, with surprising range, rich quality, and tremendous feeling. He is show wise, gracious, friendly. A bow to Mr. Simpkins, one of the really great Negro entertainers.

Miriam LaVelle, held over from the previous show, is very good indeed. Her acrobatic dances are marvels of control and design. I am not acquainted with the technical terms that might describe her work, but the manner in which she elaborates on traditional acrobatic dance maneuvers is unusual, and splendid entertainment.

The Adorables carry over their Olive Bernard routines, best of which is that cute "Bloomer Girl" turn, and Gay Claridge continues to do the musical honors with his usual dexterity.

Dorothy Dorben's debut as producer of the Boulevard room shows in the Stevens hotel indicates well the wisdom of her selection. With the most beautiful line in town [and the most originally and exquisitely gowned] she ties together a group of variety acts into a gay and colorful little musical show.

The motif is "Vacation in Chicago," and beautiful Ballerina Rae McGregor starts it off as the girl who decides her trip really isn't necessary. Instead, the Boulevar-Dears come out in an unusual routine that turns into a lake regatta by clever costume and lighting tricks. Then it's Harris, Claire, and Shannon's turn, and that dance trio —two girls and a man—demonstrates again its very different and pleasant technique.

Dan Harding, long a favorite singer among Chicagoans, is back and appears in almost every number. His own solo spot is given over to a medley of nostalgic songs, done in his quiet and unassuming way. Masters and Rollins are screwball comedians of a type that can be very funny to you or very dull, depending upon your mood. My mood wasn't very receptive opening night. Maybe that was due to the dismal trouble Ted Weems was having with the score.

Rae McGregor's big spot is her version of the samba, a fascinatingly beautiful toe dance. Seldom do you find in cafes such supple grace and fresh charm, such ease of execution and vivid imagination. Miss McGregor is very definitely on my list of greats.

Another laurel goes to Renald and Rudy, whose hand balancing, and magnificent physiques are wonderful to behold.

There are several other Boulevard-Dear numbers, best of which is the Chinese turn. This is a typical Dorben show, and a good augury.

Boswelling the Bistros:

Add to the list of us who feel Henny Youngman could use some new material, Henny Youngman. He's looking for gag writers, and it might as well be you. Already three of his writers have gone over to Bob Hope, two to Jack Benny, one to Eddie Cantor, and one to the Duffy's Tavern program. The line forms at the key desk on the 23d floor of the Palmer House. . . . Which brings up the news that Merriel Abbott has contracted for the most expensive show in the twelve years of Empire room history, to open June 28. It has four stars—Patsy Kelly of movie and stage fame; Barry Wood, the singing ace; Eddie Peabody, banjoist and late naval officer, and Eddie Oliver, the popular bandsman. Here is a show that should make Hildegarde's records look sick.

A Little About the Movies on City's Screens

"Without Love." An inventor, Spencer Tracy, and a young widow, Katharine Hepburn, both unhappy, agree to marry without love for he needs an assistant in his work and she needs a companion. Keenan Wynn and Lucille Ball have roles in this comedy film based on the Philip Barry play. State-Lake.

"Frisco Sal." A New England choir singer, Susanna Foster, arrives on the Barbary coast to seek information on the reported murder of her brother. She obtains a job at a night club and eventually discovers her brother, and romance with Turhan Bey. Alan Curtis also is prominent in the cast. Oriental.

"Diamond Horseshoe." Twentieth Century Fox's anniversary picture stars Betty Grable and Dick Haymes. It's a technicolor musical and the plot of the story centers in and about the night club, Diamond Horseshoe. William Gaxton and Beatrice Kay also have top billing. State-Lake.

"This Man's Navy." Starring Tom Drake, Wallace Beery, Jan Clayton and James Gleason, this is a story of the gallant navy men who belong to the LAS—lighter than air service. Some of the story is set on the Burma front. Garrick.

"Enchanted Cottage." The enchanted cottage is a haven to which Robert Young returns to rehabilitate himself after his discharge from the air corps. Dorothy McGuire, a housemaid, gives him the sympathy and consolation he needs. Herbert Marshall also is prominent in the film. Palace.

"Practically Yours." When a flyer [Fred MacMurray] is crash diving his plane into a Jap carrier he says goodby to Piggy, his dog, but the outside world thought he meant Peggy [Claudette Colbert], a girl in his office. Peggy is besieged by radio programs, etc., when the handsome aviator turns up unexpectedly. Chicago.

"Flame of Barbary Coast." A gay '90s thriller starring John Wayne and Ann Dvorak. A rancher who goes to the coast to collect a debt loses it in a gambling game and returns again to capture the heart of the singer Flame and outdo the gamblers. Woods.

"To Have and Have Not." Lauren Bacall and Humphrey Bogart are two Americans stranded in Martinique when war breaks out. They become involved in the conflict between Vichy French and Free French. A bit of shooting, a lot of romance, and good music by Hoagy Carmichael. McVickers, Varsity, Capitol.

"I'll Be Seeing You." A strange holiday for Ginger Rogers, an accused murderess who is given a brief parole from prison, and Joseph Cotten, home from the war on furlough. It's a love story of a different kind, and has Shirley Temple in a leading role. Roosevelt.

"Song of the Sarong." Two adventurers make a trip to the South Seas to recover a hoard of priceless pearls belonging to a native group. Nancy Kelly is the goddess who assists William Gargan and Morgan Wallace. Palace.

"A Song to Remember." Beautifully filmed in technicolor, the picture unfolds the love story of Frederic Chopin [Cornel Wilde], the noted composer and musician, and Mme. George Sand [Merle Oberon], a writer. Much of Chopin's music is entwined in the film. Apollo.

'WITHOUT LOVE'

Sure proof that the title of "Without Love" is misleading. Spencer Tracy and Katharine Hepburn in their latest film, now at United Artists.

'Harvey' Wins 1944 Pulitzer Theater Prize

By John Chapman

NEW YORK [Special]—Never before has there been such a tight little cluster of theatrical prize winners as may now be found in 46th st. between 6th and 7th avs. On the north side one encounters "Harvey," which has been given the Pulitzer award, and "The Glass Menagerie," which won the blessing of the Critics' Circle. On the south side there is "A Bell for Adano," as adapted by Paul Osborn from John Hersey's short novel, and "Bell" was awarded the Pulitzer prize for fiction.

All are happy choices and I wouldn't dream of quarreling with any of them. My only regret is that there is not, somewhere, an important citation which could be bestowed on "I Remember Mama," for this, too, is a fine play most beautifully produced. I had suggested that the Pulitzer judges would pick "Mama," even tho it does not fit the terms of the Joseph Pulitzer will, which established the prize for "an original American play." "I Remember Mama" is an adaptation by John Van Druten, who, altho British born, is completely Americanized in his thought processes, of a set of reminiscences by Kathryn Forbes titled "Mama's Bank Account."

The judges before now have veered from the letter of the will, as when they gave a prize to a musical comedy, "Of Thee I Sing," and certainly the naming of "Harvey" isn't precisely slavish conformation. Joseph Pulitzer ordered that his prize, which used to be $1,000, but is now $500, be given a play "which shall represent in marked fashion the educational value and power of the stage." An hilarious evening with an addle-witted gentleman stew is not literally educational, and by power I think Pulitzer meant the power of the stage to direct or move public thought in fairly serious channels.

In a large sense, tho, "Harvey" is educational, for it is educational to see good work being done in any trade. Top-grade craftsmanship has gone into the comedy, from the writing by Mary Chase, the direction by Antoinette Perry, the shrewd productional guidance by Brock Pemberton to the playing of Frank Fay, Josephine Hull, and the rest of the company.

I dropped in on the comedy the night it won the award and found it still playing perfectly. Fay's Elwood P. Dowd and Mrs. Hull's Veta Louise Simmons are two of the greatest joys of the last decade, and the company with them has not fallen off in skill since the memorable opening night. There is, however, a change in audiences, if my last visit is a fair sample of customer reaction.

The patrons laughed heartily at the straight humor in the play, such as Veta Louise's bedraggled emergence from the psycho ward, but they seemed to miss a good bit of the lunatic whimsey which makes "Harvey" so endearing. Three of the funniest scene endings imaginable drew laughter, yes, but they should have drawn screams and howls of laughter.

One is when Jesse White, playing the sanitarium attendant, reads the definition of the word "pooka" in an encyclopedia and is dumbstruck to find it ending with the query, "and how are you, Mr. Wilson?" White's bewilderment and his own question, "Who in the encyclopedia wants to know?" are utterly hilarious nonsense.

Another moment is when Veta Louise tries to trick Brother Elwood P. Dowd into coming home by telling him on the phone that his invisible rabbit friend is here, but can't come to the phone because he's taking a bath. The dodge doesn't work for Elwood breaks off the conversation by saying that Harvey has just walked into the saloon he's calling from. So Veta Louise calls upstairs to her daughter and says, "See who's in the bathtub. . . . O!"

A third scene ending is, of course, the time Harvey pursues the haunted doctor into his private office.

Nonsense, or whimsey, always has had a limited audience, as two of its most expert practitioners, Ed Wynn and Joe Cook, have repeatedly discovered. They have had long runs in musicals, yes, but their private band of devotees, of whom I am one, often has been called a 10 week or 12 week audience. In other words, in this period all the people in whose eyes Cook and Wynn can do no wrong—the ones who would go to see them no matter what the rest of the show might be, have been to see "Fine and Dandy" or "Simple Simon." From then on it's the rest of the show, rather than its goofy qualities, which must carry the load.

"Harvey" is remarkable in that it has enough of many kinds of humor to provide plenty of fun for almost everybody. I have heard of a few total sobersides who did not enjoy the play—but they are very few and I'm terribly sorry for them. It also is wistful and winsome, and Fay's monolog about how he happened to meet Harvey and the good times they have talking with people in saloons still brings a wonderful hush upon the audience.

Sometimes the comedy is almost farcical, as when Veta Louise comes home from her encounter with Wilson, who, she insists, is a white-slaver. He wears a white suit, she observes, and that's how they advertise. Again and again it shows a never-never quality, as when, for example, the doctor dreams of sitting under a tree and drinking beer with a girl who doesn't talk. Elwood thinks it's a mistake not to let the girl talk because the doc might pick up some interesting information, and Elwood thinks maybe the girl would like whisky better.

I am not predicting, in this limited audience discourse, that the "Harvey" boom will collapse suddenly. I am certain the play will run for years on Broadway and that it will be a wow on the road. Pemberton should be getting together a couple of touring outfits because his comedy is inherently well made and need not depend for its success upon the once-in-a-lifetime playing of Fay.

Notes of the Theater

Unable to get ready in time for last night's scheduled opening at the Civic Opera house, "Mme. Du Barry" lifts its curtain tomorrow night in rivalry with the Blackstone's "Jacobowsky and the Colonel." Mil locker's operetta will have Marita Farell and Michael Bartlett in leading roles. Mr. Bartlett is well known here, but tho Miss Farell has come to town with the Metropolitan Opera, she is still something of a stranger. A Czechoslovakian soprano, Miss Farell was soloist in a children's choir at 12, and at 15 gave her first recital. She won a musical scholarship along with radio and other prizes, and sang in operetta. In 1936 she went to London to appear in a musical and study at the Royal Academy, where the late Sir Henry Wood noticed her at a student's concert. Subsequent auditions placed her with the Glyndebourne opera where she sang her début as Zerlina in "Don Giovanni" and later appeared as Pamina in "The Magic Flute" and Cherubino in "The Marriage of Figaro." Edward Johnson of the Metropolitan heard her there and sent her to study Sophie in "Der Rosenkavalier" with Bodanzky. It was as Sophie that Miss Farell made her Chicago début in 1940.

Doctors in War Explain Their Work

"DOCTORS AT WAR," edited by Morris Fishbein, M. D. [Dutton, $5.]

Reviewed by Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

"Doctors at War" is an authoritative record of the physician's part in the present conflict. The 16 chapters are written by medical leaders in the various phases of war medicine, with Dr. Morris Fishbein as editor.

The initial chapters are factual and concern the transition of 50,000 physicians from civilian to military life. The magnitude of this problem is unbelievable, and Dr. H. S. Diehl tells how the question was solved by the establishment of the procurement and assignment service. The surgeons general of the army, of the navy, and of the United States public health service describe the facilities and activities of the medical departments at home and abroad. Many battle scenes are related to illustrate the care given the wounded men. The results speak for themselves and the figures demonstrate impressively the high caliber of medical and surgical proficiency in our armed services.

Maj. Gen. P. R. Hawley sets forth the preparations for D-day, with particular reference to the expected casualties. Capt. F. R. Moore gives a detailed account of the medical personnel at Guadalcanal and Tarawa. The hardships and difficulties of treating the wounded under adverse conditions are revealed and we are given a glimpse of the amazing deeds of the hospital corpsmen.

The work of the flight surgeon and his associates is portrayed by the air surgeon, Maj. Gen. D. N. W. Grant. The effect of flying on the human body had to be studied and the hazards eliminated. The role of the plane in evacuating the wounded is explained.

The sections on preventive medicine, the conquest of tropical diseases, the activities of the Red Cross, blood plasma, veteran care, public health, etc., are all worthy of comment.

Novel Falls Short of Its Intention

"BORDER CITY," by Hart Stilwell. [Doubleday, Doran, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Richard Sullivan

There are some books so ardently conceived and so wholeheartedly dedicated to a noble proposition that, reading them, one hates to admit that they are not necessarily first class all-round achievements.

"Border City" is such a book. This first novel, impregnated by its author's honest concern for justice, is a treatment of the racial conflict between Anglo- and Latin-Americans on the Texas border. In the often melodramatic revelations of the story there is perhaps nothing that a thoughtful mind, aware of similar conflicts in other places, could not readily anticipate: exploitation wears the same face everywhere. But Hart Stilwell has shown the gross but familiar features against a background which will be new for many readers, and which is here rendered with graphic detail.

There is much really intense writing in "Border City"; there is a fast and sustained narrative pace; the book reads easily. Further, there is a fine feeling of knowledge and of genuine compassion. But the successive carnalities of the hero are tiresome, unnecessary, and ultimately rather incredible. And in spots the theme itself gets a little out of control, as important themes sometimes do.

At times the very meaning of this novel, instead of rising powerfully out of the people and the situations, seems to be dropped by the author right in on top of them; so that in a sense it tends to smother the characters and to constrict the action, and in so doing, most regrettably, to weaken itself.

BOOKS ALIVE

by Vincent Starrett

THOUSANDS of movie-goers, I suppose, will always believe that the famous novelist and man-eater, Amandine Lucile Aurore Dupin Dudevant, who wrote under the name "George Sand," looked like Miss Merle Oberon, who plays the part of the French siren in the current biographical film, "A Song to Remember." Nothing could be farther from the truth. Here is Balzac's description of her, in a letter written in 1838, when she was at the peak of her notorious career:

"I found her in her dressing gown, smoking an after-dinner cigar, beside the fire in an immense room. She wore very pretty yellow slippers with fringes, coquettish stockings, and red trousers. Physically, she has acquired a double chin like a well-fed priest. She has not a single white hair in spite of her terrible misfortunes. Her beautiful eyes are as sparkling as ever. When she is sunk in thought she looks just as stupid as formerly . . . for her expression lies wholly in her eyes."

Another contemporary wrote: "Her hair is as black and shining as ebony; her swarthy face is red and heavy; her expression fierce and defiant, yet dull."

Carlyle said with simple ferocity: "She has the face of a horse!"

She Lacked Humor

Nevertheless, the list of the lady's victims is long and distinguished. It includes such illustrious names as De Musset, Balzac, Chopin, Merimée, Liszt, Sandeau, Dumas. So many demigods knelt at her shrine that at last she wrote: "I am sick of great men. I would far rather see them in Plutarch than in real life. In Plutarch or in marble or in bronze, their human side would not disgust me so."

No doubt there was something to be said for this point of view, but I cannot discover that she was ever much of a recluse or misanthropist. Lacking humor, she was greedy for life and formidably endowed, as one of her critics has written, "for all the extravagances of the spirit and the flesh."

Most tragic of her many affairs was that with Frederic Chopin, the composer, which is the subject of the film. When she met this most celebrated of her lovers she was in her 34th year, the mother of two children, and had pretty well completed her philosophy of life with the aid of Sandeau, Merimée, De Musset, et al. Chopin was little more than a boy. They met at a literary reception, and that night the composer wrote in his diary: "I do not like her face. There is something in it that repels me." In a few days, however, he was her adorer. Paris called them "Mr. Sand and Miss Chopin."

Her earlier romance with Alfred de Musset, the poet, is material for a comic opera. The quarrels of the two geniuses were the gossip and the scandal of Europe. At length they journeyed to Italy together, where they both fell ill. A handsome young Italian physician was summoned to attend them, and "George" immediately began a new chapter of adventure with the doctor. De Musset rose from his sick bed in a dramatic rage and returned to France, to be followed shortly by Mme. Dudevant and her infatuated Italian.

Following Precedent

For a time she wept daily on the poet's doorstep, endeavoring to heal the breach; and at one time—following the historic precedent of Ninon de L'Enclos—she cut off her heavy black hair and sent it to him by messenger. Vain all! There were angry recriminations, in and out of print, while Paris howled with glee. Ultimately each wrote a book giving his own version of the episode, in which the other appeared thinly disguised. Literary Paris was divided into two camps, the pro-Mussets and the pro-Sands, and Swinburne crystallized the case in a deathless epigram: "De Musset was wrong," he said, "but George did not behave as a gentleman should."

Most gruesome of her romances was the first. As a girl she fell in love with a professor of physiology, and under his tuition developed a craving for dissection. Many of their love scenes are said to have gone forward while the happy pair worked together dissecting an arm or a leg, or investigating the mysteries of retina and cornea. It has been plausibly suggested that the fad left its mark on her, since she followed it—psychically—to the end of her life.

Withal, this was a woman of stormy intellect and authentic talent, possibly the most prolific writer of her sex in the history of literature. She wrote some 20 plays and more than 100 novels, only a few of which are now remembered, and those only for their biographical interest. Much has been written about her, but the raciest account of her life is Albert Payson Terhune's in "Famous Hussies of History" [World], from which I have drawn parts of the foregoing report.

That dramatic incident of the shorn locks, by the way, has appeared frequently in life and in literature. Any quiz kid could name two further variations on the theme. My memory of Louisa Alcott's "Little Women" is a trifle rusty; but didn't Jo March once sell her abundant hair when the family was hard up? And a similar incident is the theme of O. Henry's most famous short story, "The Gift of the Magi." But perhaps the virtuous heroines of those charming fairy tales should not be mentioned in the same breath with Amandine Lucile Aurore Dupin Dudevant, Mme. Sand.

Pure and Painful

"In the eyes of every author, I fancy, his own past work falls into four classes," says W. H. Auden in his preface to "The Collected Poetry of W. H. Auden" [Random House]. "First, the pure rubbish which he regrets ever having conceived; second—for him the most painful—the good ideas which his incompetence or impatience prevented from coming to much; third, the pieces he has nothing against except their lack of importance; these must inevitably form the bulk of any collection since, were he to limit it to the fourth class alone, to those poems for which he is honestly grateful, his volume would be too depressingly slim."

That is a candid statement with which, I think, most artists will agree. It is not possible for any writer to write at the top of his form all the time. Many poets—Wordsworth is an easy example—wrote quite as much rubbish as they did inspired poetry, and apparently never knew the difference. That is the trick, to know the difference between the poems in one's four divisions and get them into the right categories.

How many major poets, past and present, I wonder, actually have more than a dozen masterpieces to their credit? More than half a dozen? Great poets are great by virtue of their greatest performances; the bulk of their work is little better, if at all, than that of many good poets who fall short of greatness simply thru inability to produce a measly half dozen masterpieces.

'FIGHTING LIBERAL': AN EPIC OF COURAGE

Life Story of a Plain Man of the Plains

"FIGHTING LIBERAL: the Autobiography of George W. Norris." [Macmillan, $3.50.]

Reviewed by Frederic Babcock

This is a not-quite-a-century's history of the midwest. It is the story of the growth and decline of the Progressive movement, and of the battle for democracy in America.

It starts with the arrival of Chauncey Norris in the "black swamp" country of northern Ohio in 1846, and it ends just before the death of his son, George W. Norris, in southwestern Nebraska in 1944.

"The life of George Norris," one observer has noted, "is the story of America at its best."

Whether we agreed with him or not—and often we didn't—those of us who knew Norris regarded him as one of the great men of our time. But he held no such belief. He talked of his "struggling and somewhat discouraging life." At the end, as he looked back on his 40 years in congress, he declared: "Undoubtedly many times I was wrong in my estimates of men and in my attitude upon issues embodying national policy."

His autobiography doesn't say—but I believe history will—that this plain man of the plains lived the fullest life possible. So far as I can learn, he was the only man ever elected to the United States senate without benefit of party organization. He devoted a lifetime to battling for the rights of the farmers and the laborers—the producers, as opposed to the wasters. Almost single-handed he fought for, and got adopted, an amendment to the federal constitution. He was in the center of one of the bitterest controversies of the last half-century, and, tho he didn't know it at the time, he was to emerge from that fight a much bigger man than were those who tried to send him back to obscurity.

That controversy remains as the most vivid memory in my many years of newspaper work. Foreseeing that Woodrow Wilson's policy was leading us directly into World War I., Norris and a handful of other senators refused to go along. Whereupon they became the "little group of willful men." They were denounced as traitors—but they stood by their guns. It was Norris' ironical fate that in his later years he became the idol of the same forces and men who had tried to destroy him.

He was the only true independent I have ever known. He was without political ambition; he was almost Thoreau-like in the simplicity of his living and thinking; unlike so many others, he never succumbed to the political and social blocs in Washington. As we used to say, he had "no side." His clothes were of the old-fashioned kind, and his summer home, in the wilds of Wisconsin, was a cabin of his own making. His struggle upward from poverty to national acclaim could be compared with that of Abraham Lincoln. His refusal to conform was climaxed by his stand in 1928, when, representing a Republican, dry, anti-Tammany, Protestant Nebraska constituency, he supported for the Presidency Al Smith, Democratic, wet, Tammany, and Catholic.

Perhaps I am biased by my lifelong friendship with, and admiration for, Norris, but in my opinion his inspiring story, as set forth in "Fighting Liberal," could be read with tremendous profit by every student of political and social trends in America. And by all those who are still dreaming of new worlds to conquer and who look upon war as the surest means to that end. It is fascinating reading for every one.

This book may prove to be the most important of the year—and one of the most important of any year. I nominate it for the 1945 Pulitzer prize in biography.

Curious Story Fights Thru Barrier of the Commonplace

"COMING HOME," by Lester Cohen. [Viking, $2.75.]

Reviewed by Paul Engle

This is a curious novel. All the elements of the usual popularized fiction growing out of the war are here: the returned hero, the wronged girl, the poor villain and the rich villain, the impoverished old mother on the home place, the lawyer who works this one time for justice, the Irish policeman, and the Polish steel worker. Virtue is attacked by corruption and almost wins, but in the end wounded veteran of high ideals, backed by trusting and devoted girl, triumphs over evil. There is a long trial, in the course of which the political entanglement of a Pittsburgh ward is shown up in all its vileness, and the close interworking of small time politician and big time industrialist outrageously revealed.

It's all familiar. And yet somehow the story fights thru the barrier of the commonplace. There is a definite drive to the motive of the book, a real sense of genuine place and, less often, of genuine people. There are moments of intensity, when the book pushes up to the level of fine fiction. But there are moments whose tone may be indicated by some such remark as: "But with this case there came an awakening of the old dream, a flaming of the old spark."

Lester Cohen

The great flaw of the novel is that the author does all the work for all his characters. He asks why a certain character should feel this way, and then goes on to give, as author, the whole situation and the mind of the character as he sees it. The result is a flabby book. Too much "Joe felt somewhat storm-tossed, his destiny being shunted this way and that." And yet it's readable and, in spite of such prose, bearable.

Vivid Narrative Tells of Life in Mental Hospital

"THEY WALK IN DARKNESS," by Ellen C. Philtine. [Liveright, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Edith Weigle

Vivid pictures of the daily life and routine in a large state mental hospital crowd the pages of this novel. When a young psychiatrist takes his wife to his new post in the institution he finds that added to his problems as a healer of sick minds is the more pressing and constant one of just trying to get along with the strange and difficult assortment of men on the staff.

Instead of coöperating and working for the good of the hospital, too many of the doctors are impelled by self-interest and greed, while others allow themselves to be all bound up in red tape and regulations. However, one scientist, a refugee from Europe, has the good of the patients at heart and he becomes the friend of Peter and Elizabeth.

There are graphic descriptions of the deplorable way in which a state institution is sometimes run, and a number of word portraits of the pathetic, sometimes tragic inmates. The love story of the young doctor and his wife is a minor theme in the narrative, which is not cheerful, but is important reading.

The Rise and Fall of Hank Martin, Power-Mad Leader

"A LION IS IN THE STREETS," by Adria Locke Langley. [Whittlesey House, $3.]

Reviewed by Kelsey Guilfoil

In a robust novel of 482 pages, Adria Locke Langley introduces herself as a storyteller of great power. It is the chronicle of Hank Martin, the "Big Lion," who began life with a peddler's pack on his back and ended in the governor's chair of the "Magnolia State," as Mrs. Langley calls it.

This story is a case history of demagoguery, of the sort that produced Huey Long, and which, with more sinister design than mere graft and spoliation, produces Hitlers and Mussolinis. This appeal to the mob seems to flourish in some parts of the deep south where there is perhaps more of poverty and ignorance than in more favored localities, but, as recent history has taught us, it can bring forth its evil fruit wherever unscrupulous leaders play upon the passions and needs of the people.

Hank Martin was the kind of leader we have come to know as a rabble rouser. He had a magnetic force that drew people to him, and as he traveled thru the hills and swamplands with his pots and pans, his pins and needles, and his bolts of calico, he became known and loved by thousands.

About the time he got a horse and wagon to replace the pack on his back he married Verity, a schoolteacher from the north, who found herself as fascinated by his charm as were the poor folk who were to be his supporters and his victims. At first she and Jules Bolduc, a young planter who befriended them, saw in him great possibilities of good—the chance of becoming a man like the Lincoln with whom he was fond of comparing himself.

But Bolduc, who was a cynically honest intellectual, saw in Hank the twisted pattern of his design for power, and warned him against it. Verity, loving Hank so greatly, refused at first to believe that her idol had clay feet. Then, as she watched him wring the hard-earned pennies from his followers, learned that his promise to bring electricity to the back country had been broken for a bribe from the power company, she began to realize that a thirst for power is a disease for which there is no cure.

Verity continued to love Hank, for she could not stop, but she had set her face against his dishonesty long before his conduct became so outrageous that an assassin's bullet felled him before the bronze doors of the gleaming marble capitol he had caused to be built in his first term as governor.

Mrs. Langley has contrived to make of this material a novel brimful of buoyancy and life, a story that goes deep into the roots of our democracy and reveals the essential wisdom, courage, and honesty of our people. Reading it you get a story that is bold and true, and at the same time an understanding of the way politicians use the misery and suffering of the poor.

The author has shown an unusual skill in the drawing of character. Hank Martin, the Big Lion, was at first only a little man with a pack on his back, dreaming of getting a little learning that would enable him to rise in world. His steady deterioration, from his first bribe to the final days when he drew tribute from the vice ring of Crescent City, is a masterly development. So, too, is the change in Verity, as she passed from blind love to a sorrowing sympathy for Hank's diseased personality. Other characters in the story are depicted with the same skill.

There is an earthy quality in Mrs. Langley's story, and a pathos in the devotion of the impoverished sharecroppers and swamplanders who believed in Hank's slogan, "Divide the Earth's Riches." It is a picture painted in strong colors on a broad canvas, showing a part of the American scene in a bright, clear light.

Johannes Steel Propagandizes for Red Control

"THE FUTURE OF EUROPE," by Johannes Steel. [Henry Holt, $3.]

Reviewed by Dr. Melchior Palyi

Johannes Steel is a refugee fellow traveler known to the American public by his near-hysterical broadcasts on the air. His book lives up to expectations.

Its gist is short and simple. Everything the soviets have done was good and right. Everything they are doing and claiming is rightful and just. And everything else should be done to make their control of Europe perfect and safe. Needless to say that in the process of such propagandizing, essential facts are misrepresented if not falsified. But Mr. Steel is one of those deeply convinced communists who are not deterred by fact nor by ethical standards common to the rest of mankind.

One has respect for a man's convictions if he is honest and sincere. But Mr. Steel sails under false pretenses. He never even hints at his real purpose; instead, he claims to be fighting for the cause of "democracy" without ever discussing the kind of "democracy" that prevails in Russia and is applied to the Russian occupied countries.

It is in the name of democracy, too, that his book culminates in the demand to rob both the Catholic and Protestant churches in Europe of their civic rights because they are or have been allegedly "fascist." Of course, every one is fascist who is not communist, according to the Moscow dictionary, and the elimination of the churches as political forces would make things very much simpler for the Communists.

This Treats of Kindliness in a War Torn World

"THE SEAMLESS ROBE," by Sarah Cleghorn. [Macmillan, $2.]

Sarah Cleghorn — poet, essayist, magazine contributor — has been "troubling" Israel for her good these many years. Miss Cleghorn's new book, which comprises 35 chapters in 163 pages, contains much the same kind of testimony one might hear at a Quaker meeting. The Religion of Lovingkindness is her theme, and she develops fearlessly its implications for the family and for the nation. War, vivisection, vegetarianism, hunting, and trapping—here are just a few of the subjects she considers. You may not agree with all she says, but you will find her forcing you to ponder many aspects of her subject which you had not before considered.

Is This Novel a Thriller or a Character Study?

"77 WILLOW ROAD," by Helen Douglas Irvine. [Doubleday, Doran, $2.]

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht

This is a strange, almost indescribable novel. It has some of the atmosphere and properties of the "thriller," including one of those slightly sinister British Victorian houses, with a secret panel in the wall, but essentially it is a character study. Nine-tenths of it at least must fall within quotation marks—letters, special narratives, and other manuscripts; as in "The Moonstone" and "The Woman in White" the truth of the puzzling situation we have under contemplation emerges only gradually as the reader brings together the scattered bits of information with which the author has supplied him.

I do not say that all the evidence is introduced quite naturally, or that the psychology is unassailable at every point; I doubt that the horrifying climax has been adequately prepared for; does Hardy's "Jude the Obscure" cast its baleful shadow here? Yet "77 Willow Road" is a book which has a good deal of the tears of things in it, and much in the way of love and of insight into the meaning of human experience.

Miss Irvine evidently understands the terrible and comforting truth that an apparently blameless person may yet live the life of a fiend in hell as she moves about upon this earth for years before she is dead—and carry hell with her to everybody with whom she comes in contact—while another may walk in the ways of the outcast and the derelict yet never cease to be a vessel thru which the Light and the Love that are of God can shine thru into a darkened and embittered world. Perhaps not all of this is established with the complete authenticity one might have the right to look for in a great poetic tragedy, but there is more than enough for a popular novel.

It is impossible to sum up the plot, nor would it be fair to prospective readers to do so. We follow the fortunes of an English family at 77 Willow road, and particularly of two daughters—the respectable child of the devil and the wild child of God whom she destroyed. The entire story is told in retrospect by and to the lodger, Evelyn Light, who is strangely drawn to the lovely Rose Carey without at first realizing that she has seen her.

I think Joseph Shearing might enjoy this book.

Bill of Rights Is Essential to World Charter

"THE BASIS OF LASTING PEACE," by Herbert Hoover and Hugh Gibson. [Van Nostrand, $1.]

Reviewed by John Randolph

One point alone in this book is worth tons of the propaganda printed on the San Francisco conference. That point is that the new charter for the allied nations should contain a clear and unequivocal statement of the political rights of nations and — even more vital — of persons.

Mr. Hoover and Mr. Gibson, both of whom have participated in the inner affairs of international diplomacy since World War I., make it plain that if the United States is to have a responsibility for helping maintain the peace it has the right to demand exactly what the standards of conduct of the other nations are to be, exactly what we can require from them under our contract. This is a specific American need.

Hoover and Gibson demand that nations should reaffirm that they seek no aggrandizement. They ask restoration of sovereign rights and insist that all nations have the right to their own form of government by free and unfettered elections and secret ballots. They demand protection against punishment without trial and against compulsory labor. Nations, they assert, must guarantee freedom of speech, of the press, and of religion.

The book suggests other amendments to the Dumbarton Oaks proposals, all of them cogent. Every American should read this book, and, having read it, see that the American delegates digest its lessons.

THE MURDER CHART

By Drexel Drake

ENTRY	PERFORMANCE	PAY-OFF
"THE RED RIGHT HAND," by Joel Townsley Rogers. [Simon & Schuster, $2.]	The murder of a man in a stolen automobile outside of Danbury was followed by weirdly puzzling deaths, and a complicated enigma of identities. Dr. Riddle, New York surgeon, dealt methodically and hazardously with an eerie problem.	Remarkably clever plot, but reader may be lost before he discovers it because of tediously original, repetitious, backing and filling method of unfolding it. Possibly an intentional laboratory effort. If so, it's noteworthy on that score.
"THE CASE OF THE GOLDDIGGER'S PURSE," by Erle Stanley Gardner. [Morrow, $2.]	Harrington Faulkner's rare goldfish were dying. His real estate partner was suing him. A golddigging young woman was gouging him for money. When that setup led to murder, it put Perry Mason on his toes in trying to save a fair client.	The author stirs some far fetched ingredients into this puzzle, but it gives his hero full opportunity to cope with the police, gather evidence ingeniously, and parade his deductive powers.
"CRIME WIND," by Marion Holbrook. [Dodd, Mead, $2.50.]	When the wind blows from the north in Cordoba, it sends the populace on a spree of knifings, shootings, and revolutions. In that sinister atmosphere, Hap Smith, embassy typist, found a whirlpool of intrigue and terror threatening her, but she also found romance.	Highly colored environment in which almost every word or motion brings new exciting episodes, building up to spectacular climax. Tale unfolds at fast clip.
"PEARLS BEFORE SWINE," by Margery Allingham. [Doubleday, Doran, $2.]	Albert Campion, back in London from three years' secret war service, had to delay vacation because his flat was used as depository for woman's corpse. He waded into mire of sabotage having to do with art treasures in order to clear murder.	War time London and colorful assemblage of personages worked into tale effectively. Plot is intricate, with heavy portions of espionage and crime.

'Interim' Is a Rare and Subtle Tale

"INTERIM," by R. C. Hutchinson. [Farrar & Rinehart, $2.]

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher

In a literary day, when most of the novels which one reads are full of action—action of the spirit even when the body does not soar, more often physical action—a book in which almost literally nothing happens is a rarity.

"Interim" is a rarity in more ways than that. It is like some bit of strange, seldom seen jade carving of which only a microscope can reveal the full art. It is a collector's item. For the ordinary reader the intricacy of its artistry may even seem a little incongruous to the simplicity of its structure. To the literary collector, the man who relishes a style which is complex and allusive and is alluring for its very uncommonnesses, "Interim" will be a literary find.

The story is of Orchilly, a house in the country in England during the war, to which a sergeant [the narrator] goes rarely but always eagerly. It is not his own home, but in it he feels the welcome of a son and the comfort of friends. It is the home of a man whose life had been spent in China as a doctor and unofficially a man of God. It is the home also of his beautiful wife, whose illness [as well as the war] had brought them back to England.

The man finds in Orchilly in caring for the beasts of the field, the folk of the countryside, in sheltering unfortunates and in entertaining friends with utter informality a refuge from his deathless longing to be back in China. The wife finds refuge in one room, beautiful while the rest of the house is shabby and unkempt, a haven for her own illness and an incubator for her determination that her husband shall never go back to China, which she hated.

There is conflict in those walls, which are, however, to the observer, built wholly of the stones of contentment. A daughter and a son are minor characters in the drama of the house and the farm and the quiet life of both, as are also a refugee family.

Except for the head of the house, Bernard, the characters in the book are of even less than secondary importance to Mr. Hutchinson's incredibly rich vocabulary and imagism in describing them. There will be many readers who will find his style indigestible. To those who care for that type of literary richness it will be hard to find an equal to some of his pages. He can, and does, make of the simplest things subtle potpourris of allusive thought and word. This description of a walk thru a country lane is an example.

"For perhaps 12 minutes, at our pace, the lane tried to edge away from the beck; but the wall of rock, not sloped to carry little oaks, but mostly bare and vertical, would nudge it in again; until squeezed hard by the narrowing gorge, it boldly turned to step across the beck, rose in one leap upon a gentle slope it found there and broke away and up to the freedom of Pitchnose fell. Again you had made landfall on a foreign soil."

The spiritual effect of the house and its people on the narrator is best described in his own words. "At Orchilly I had found things fitting together, as the elements of great pictures do; that the peace and splendor of that experience would remain with me, secure below the tides of discontent, till all experience was over." In this book about Orchilly some readers, if not all, will also find "peace and splendor of experience."

Pulitzer Fiction Award Is Greeted with Satisfaction

By Harry Hansen

New York

WHEN the Pulitzer prizes in letters and journalistic enterprise were announced at Columbia university, there was a general chorus of approval in New York City rooms. For, tho there have been times when the literary world disapproved heartily of the choices of the committees on the heights, this was not one of them. Everybody could agree that John Hersey's "A Bell for Adano" was an original American novel of importance, even those who thought "Boston Adventure" was much more a work of literature and "Strange Fruit" better expressed American ideals of social justice. In the recent poll of critics made by the Saturday Review of Literature the "Bell" and "Boston Adventure" tied for first choice.

Scholarly Work Wins

In bestowing an award for American biography the Pulitzer committee usually goes in for sound, conservative scholarship. Last year's prize went to "The American Leonardo," a life of Samuel Morse; this year's goes to "George Bancroft: Brahmin Rebel," by Russel B. Nye. Neither of these books has the popular appeal of Catherine Drinker Bowen's "Yankee from

Russel B. Nye — John Hersey — Mary Chase — Stephen Bonsal
[Associated Press Photos]

Olympus"; they are more in the English tradition of biographical writing, making no concession to journalism. It is worth while recalling that in the critics' poll of the Saturday Review "Yankee from Olympus" led with 24 votes for first place, while the Bancroft biography received only two, cast by Victor P. Hass of the Omaha World-Herald and W. M. Reddig of the Kansas City Star. The Bancroft award is once more a victory for the house of Knopf, which instituted fellowships for biographical and historical writing and gave one to Mr. Nye's project. Mr. Nye is instructor in the department of English at Michigan State college. He is a native of Michigan and has taught at the University of Wisconsin and Adelphi college.

The interesting fact about Mr. Nye's work is that his is an academic biography about a man who was essentially a popular historian. Mr. Nye's work, if it gets any circulation at all, may help restore some of the luster to the name of Bancroft, who has been almost forgotten in our swift change of favorites, but it is not likely to make him a major historian.

Oldest and Youngest Authors

Stephen Bonsal, whose "Unfinished Business," a book about the peace conference, wins the prize in American history, is the oldest author represented—he is 80—whereas Karl Shapiro, author of "V-Letter," a book of poems, is the youngest. Many hopes surround Mr. Shapiro, who has already won golden opinions for his poems. He is with the armed services.

By giving the drama prize to "Harvey," by Mary Chase, the Pulitzer committee has put Brock Pemberton, producer of the play, on the spot. Until now Mr. Pemberton has opposed publication of "Harvey" on the ground that its magic lies in not revealing its secret to the spectator who has not seen it. When the Armed Services Editions asked permission to reprint the play in order to send it abroad, Mr. Pemberton raised this objection and to date this has not been overcome. It might be asked how long one can keep a secret when many thousands of people see the play over a period of many months. Perhaps much of the beauty of the play lies in the acting and the script fails to convey the fascination that an imaginary character has for an audience.

Booksellers Are Guessing

Booksellers are doing some tall guessing about the probable appeal of Paul De Kruif's forthcoming book, "The Male Hormone," which will appear May 24. Some advance inquiries, probably inspired by the title, suggest that there may be a spirited demand. In such a case, booksellers hate to be caught short of copies, altho, in the present market, overbuying is a negligible risk. The publisher, Harcourt, Brace & Co., is conservative, saying that altho the advance sale is encouraging, women buy the most books, and this title is more likely to appeal to men.

Paul De Kruif has always been a great outdoor man and at different times has testified to his enthusiasms for the fresh winds off Lake Michigan at his Holland, Mich., home. He used to take a two mile swim in the lake several times a week. If now, at 54, he is taking 20 milligrams of methyl testosterone a day to keep his body up to par, it must be insurance against old age, say his friends, for he can hardly be said to be slipping. His best and most popular book has been "Microbe Hunters," first published in 1926 and reprinted repeatedly.

Books Increase in 1945

Altho shortage of paper is handicapping many publishers, the number of book titles printed in 1945 is larger than that of 1944. For the first four months of 1945, 2,252 titles were issued, as against 2,107 in 1944. There were increases in the categories of medicine, religion, and poetry—the last does not require much additional paper, since editions are always small. There were decreases in technical titles; the big increase of a few years ago produced many technical books that will be useful for a number of years. Fiction titles showed an increase, 480 in 1945 over 477 in 1944, but closer inquiry reveals that new fiction decreased, whereas reprints have increased. In the present sellers' market the public is avidly buying books issued in other seasons.

Publishers were inclined to look ruefully on the waste of paper thrown out of windows when the unofficial announcement of Germany's surrender came on Monday. The clerks, typists, and stenographers had just had time to uncover their typewriters and sharpen their pencils when the news came, and demoralization resulted.

BOBBS-MERRILL

BOOKMAN'S HOLIDAY

By Delos Avery

LITTLE by little, as I grow older, my faith in the printed word diminishes. Even the best of paper and the best of ink, processed on the most expensive presses, offer no reliable assurance of truth. Glaring errata are found in the most respectable dictionaries and encyclopedias. Scholarly historians get their dates mixed. Fiction masquerades as fact, and a childlike trust is rudely betrayed.

The immediate cause of these gloomy reflections is the World Publishing company, a concern for which I have a tender affection because it sends me boxes of books for free. Today I find this company standing sponsor for a statement so obviously improbable that I wonder what the research staff was doing.

The disturbing discovery was made in the World 49 cent edition of the late Ring Lardner's "You Know Me Al," a series of letters purporting to have been written by a professional baseball player named Jack Keefe. These letters, when I first read them, were published serially and without a preface. They now have a preface, however, signed "R. W. L.," in which Mr. Lardner says many readers have inquired who was the original of Jack Keefe. He answers:

"The original of Jack Keefe is not a ball player at all, but Jane Addams of Hull House, a former Follies girl."

I simply cannot believe it. The literary style of the "You Know Me Al" letters is in sharp contrast with the known prose of Miss Addams. In grammar, orthography, and even the choice of subject matter, the difference is marked. Furthermore, in all the biographical works with which I am familiar there is not a line to support the assertion that she ever was a Follies girl.

No doubt the World company will point in self-defense to the fact that the challenged statement is Mr. Lardner's own and not the company's. But is it not the duty of a publisher to verify what it publishes? Surely there could have been a footnote to warn the reader. A mere bracketed remark would have done the trick, such as [Unconfirmed.—Ed.]. Then the reader himself could have made the necessary inquiries and reached his own decisions.

My own opinion is that the Keefe letters were written either by Louisa M. Alcott, Elizabeth Barrett Browning, or Clare Boothe Luce—unless, indeed, they were written, as some believe, by Mr. Lardner himself.

One of the books the World company sent me, so timed that they arrived on V-E day, is titled, "One Hundred Great Lives," edited by John Allen. It is a book for which I would gladly pay $2.95 [the publisher's price] if I had not received it for nothing. It shall remain on my table until read, and afterward I shall make room for it in my shelf of reference works—for I have already skimmed enough of its almost 800 pages to be sure of its value.

Especially pleasing to me is the way the 100 brief biographies are arranged in chronological groups. The first section, "Leaders and Reformers," starts with Buddha and ends with Ghandi—with Confucius, Socrates, Aristotle, Luther, Franklin, Karl Marx, and others sandwiched in.

The artists and musicians group extends from Leonardo da Vinci to Wagner. Under discoverers and explorers you find Marco Polo at one end and Robert Edwin Peary at the other. The scientists and inventors are from Archimedes and Galileo to the Wright Brothers and Thomas Alva Edison; the writers and poets from Herodotus to Mark Twain.

In the soldiers and statesmen department we start with Alexander the Great and end with Franklin D. Roosevelt, and the list includes Hannibal, Attila, Machiavelli, Richelieu, Cromwell, Peter the Great, Napoleon, Winston Leonard Spencer Churchill, and Joseph Stalin.

Hitler is not there, but you think of him when you read Attila's "There where I have passed the grass will not grow again." [Where Hitler has passed, perhaps the grass will grow some day—over the ruins of his armament factories.]

How a Girl Grew Up in N. Carolina

"SAGE QUARTER," by Bernice Kelly Harris. [Doubleday, Doran, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Robert Penn Warren

In general, this is the story of Tiny Sage, from girlhood to womanhood. Tiny, overshadowed by her pretty and brilliant twin, Ruby, grows up in back country North Carolina, on a farm taken up by the first Sage to come over from England, in the midst of a community composed almost entirely of the Sages and their kin. Her story is primarily the story of her love for a cropper's boy, Rough-Dried Williams, who goes away to study to be a doctor, makes a name for himself in the city, is apparently lost to Ruby, but returns to marry Tiny, and of her regeneration of the old place after the family has died or scattered.

Bernice Kelly Harris

The chief interest of the book, however, lies in two other elements. First and foremost, there is what the blurb writer calls, with libelous vulgarity, "the charm of rural Carolina and its homey characters," but which is actually a deeply felt and faithfully rendered picture of the life of the time and place, a picture at the same time lyrical and realistic. Very rarely does it seem that the author is giving a set piece of local color, no naturally is the atmosphere established.

Second, and important only by flashes and glimpses, is the story of the grandmother, Nurmama, whose passion for power thwarts and corrupts most of those around her. There was here the basis for a fine story, but the author realizes it only now and then, and drops it well before the book is finished. In fact, the latter part of the book, which deals with Tiny's love affair as a grown woman, the life in town, and the regeneration of the home place, is at the level of the women's magazines.

Critic Finds Power in Tale of 2 Brothers

"DARKLY THE RIVER FLOWS," by John Macdonald. [Coward-McCann, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Walter Havighurst

In this intense and dramatic novel there is an atmosphere like a summer storm. The air is charged with menace, but the outbreak is withheld. Flickerings and rumblings fade in the distance and then come near again, and the realization grows that there must be an exploding of violence before the air can clear.

It is the story of the Brand family of Toronto and the north Ontario woods. Especially it is the story of two brothers, Hector and Steele, so unlike each other and yet so bound together by inheritance and by a smoldering antagonism. Their father is a ruthless commercial man who has risen to power by cold determination; their mother is an almost legendary figure whose death, years past, has left a mortal rift within the family. Their cousin Alan who grew up with the brothers, and the three women they love complete an interweaving set of relationships which makes a rather elaborate texture in this shorter-than-average novel.

There are some clichés in Mr. MacDonald's writing. The Brands are all "lean and powerful," the primitive, voluptuous Nikki is a story book character, and the cold, domineering elder Brand never becomes much more than a novelist's convention. On the other hand, the two brothers carry forceful conviction and the novel mounts in intensity as it traces the dark flow of the river which is "that bounded and unalterable hurling on of life."

AMONG THE AUTHORS

By Frederic Babcock

UNTIL a few years ago William McDermott was religion editor of the Chicago Daily News. . . . Then he started writing feature stories for magazines, and now he's devoting all his time to that job. . . . More than 50 of his articles have been published in the Reader's Digest, Collier's, and the like.

The other evening, at a jubilee dinner celebrating the 60th anniversary of the Illinois Woman's Press association, Mr. McDermott gave sage advice to those who aspire to follow the career he is following. . . . "Don't be too ponderous, too sophisticated, or too 'significant,'" he said. "Keep off the beaten track; don't write what others have written about. Get your 'leads' by reading the early editions of THE TRIBUNE, the News, and other papers. Pick out the timeless fillers and feature stories that are thrown out to make room for the spot news in the final editions. If you read something that causes you to comment, 'I wish I knew more about that,' you're on the right trail. The old time 'success' story is out. So is the essay on an abstract subject. The magazines want articles on topics that people feel personally, or that are related to them, or that they can do something about. Write in the field of universal interest. If the setting is Chicago, ask yourself: 'Would that interest me if I lived elsewhere?' Use your imagination. Think up a good title —one with a catch in it. And, when you've said all that needs to be said, snap it off."

In Chicago last week Le Baron R. Barker, editor in chief of Doubleday, Doran, related that Kenneth Horan's "Papa Goes to Congress" will be published next January or February and that it promises to be her biggest seller. . . . Mr. Barker said Gertrude Lawrence's autobiography, "A Star Danced," has been set for July 19. . . . Other Doubleday books in the offing: "They Seek a City," by Arna Bontemps, formerly of this city, and Jack Conroy, Chicago novelist; "Raffles of Singapore," by Emily Hahn; "My Brother Americans" and "We Return to the Philippines," by Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo; "The Gauntlet," by James Street; "The Red-Haired Lady," by Elizabeth Corbett, a graduate of the University of Wisconsin; "Burning Gold," by Robert Hardy Andrews, former Chicago newspaper man; "Desert Island Decameron," by H. Allen Smith; "Woodrow Wilson and the People," by H. C. F. Bell; "That Girl from Memphis," by Wilbur Daniel Steele, and "Marta of Muscovy: the Fabulous Life of Russia's First Empress," by Phil Stong, ex-Iowan.

In a letter to this department J. R. de la Torre Bueno Jr. of D. Appleton-Century calls attention to Lillian de la Torre's "Elizabeth Is Missing," to be published May 21 by Knopf. . . . "The author is my sister," he says, "and I am probably stuffed with prejudices in believing that the book is a good one." . . . The central character in the story is Elizabeth Canning, who disappeared in London in the 18th century and returned with a wild yarn about violence, gypsies, and such.

Walter Havighurst, TRIBUNE book reviewer and author of "The Long Ships Passing," is at work on the final chapters of a book on the old Northwest Territory—"a kind of past and present sketch," he says, "of the region between the Ohio river and the Great Lakes." . . . From his current home in Duluth Sinclair Lewis will make his debut as a book critic for Esquire magazine in the June issue. . . . The title of his first column: "Gentlemen, This Is Revolution." . . . Doris Gates, author of "Blue Willow" and other juveniles, was the guest of honor at a luncheon given in the Pump room the other day by Leora Lewis. . . . She was on her way from New York to her home in San Francisco.

Whittlesey House has scheduled for summer publication "Universal Military Training," by Col. Edward A. Fitzpatrick, now on leave of absence from his position as president of Mount Mary college in Milwaukee.

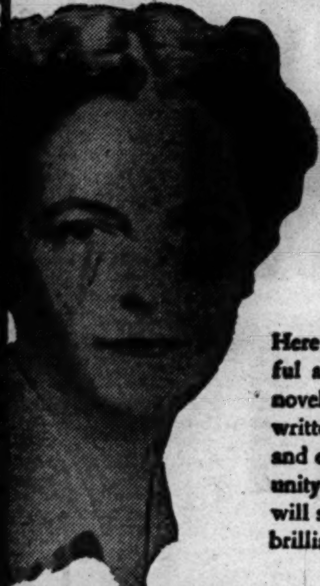
LET US CONSIDER ONE ANOTHER

by

Josephine Lawrence



Here is the most powerful, thoughtful and uncompromisingly honest novel Josephine Lawrence has yet written. Her story of a far-flung and embattled family shocked into unity by an "unsuitable" marriage will stir thousands of readers by its brilliant and compassionate realism.

SINCLAIR LEWIS says of Josephine Lawrence:

"As important as her striking into motives in middle-class America is Miss Lawrence's unusual power of seeing and remembering the details of daily living, each petty, yet all of them together making up the picture of an immortal human being."

THE LITERARY SPOTLIGHT

by Fanny Butcher

ONE of the weapons which helped secondarily in giving us the great day which we celebrated last Tuesday was books. . . . "Books are weapons in the war of ideas" is more than a slogan. . . . Books have helped many a man in khaki or in blue, far from home but near the rear of battle, to face that battle for that home. . . . The Victory Book campaign, which collected books for men overseas, functioned for a year thruout the United States, but Chicago has generously never abandoned it. . . . One glance thru the letters of gratitude from men and women in service which are hung on the bulletin board of the Chicago Public library—the depository for books for the campaign—will send you home pronto to get that book you enjoyed so much to share it instantly with some one in the service which was not over on V-E day.

Requests for individual books, as well as for books in general, are there. . . . Miss Mildred Bruder, efficient and charming head of the promotion department of the library, called to my attention one from a boy on a little island in the Pacific that isn't even on ordinary maps. . . . He wants a book on how to remodel an attic. . . . He sits there on the beach dreaming of home and that snappy little nest he could build for himself and the missis [now still a miss] if only he knew how.

Library Is a Lively Place

Few of us, I think, appreciate our public library as we should, or use it, when it comes to that, as much as it could be used. . . . For a public library is a living member of the body politic only when it is in active use. . . . Books are the red and white corpuscles of its being. . . . If they clot, the body ceases to live.

Well, there's nothing moribund about our public library—nor about the Friends of the Chicago Public Library [which any one can join, dues $1 a year]. . . . At their annual luncheon meeting a week ago yesterday in the Grand ballroom of the Sherman hotel 700 sat down, and so many requests for reservations were turned away that somebody suggested that next year the Chicago Stadium might be a commodious meeting place. . . . Your spotlighter, grounded by a sprained ankle, was present only in spirit and in the presence of kindly sleuths, but it was, they assured me, a sort of V-L [Victory in the Library] day.

Eisenschiml Opens Meeting

Otto Eisenschiml, president of the Friends of the Chicago Public Library, made a short opening address. . . . He read greetings from Mayor Kelly, who had previously proclaimed that week as Public Library week, and then presented Kenneth Horan, toastmistress, who presented four speakers who told of the problems and the hopes of the library: Joseph B. Fleming, chairman of the library board; Carl B. Roden, chief librarian; Gertrude E. Gscheidle, chief assistant librarian [the first woman to hold that position, Mrs. Horan said], and Vivian Harsh, librarian of the Hall branch on the south side, which is second only to the Harlem branch of the New York Public library in its success among Negro readers.

Mr. Roden, who, Mrs. Horan said, is affectionately known as "Pops" by the entire library force, told of some of the activities of the library. . . . Among these activities has been a reference room, whose justifiable boast it has been that they could answer any question. . . . One of two wits, either Vincent Starrett or Louis Zara—there seems to be some confusion in the minds of my scouts which one it was, as each of them gave their audience so much pleasure—declared that there was at least one question the justly famous reference room could not answer, and that was the name of Paul Revere's horse—a borrowed nag and nameless in history. . . . A sorry reward for a course so well run.

Brief Responses Are Witty

Among the other authors who made witty, brief replies to the witty introductions of Mrs. Horan were Frederic Babcock, Harry Beardsley, Nelisse Child, Jack Conroy, Maureen Daly [the youngest novel prize winner in town], Frank Hurburt O'Hara, Annabelle Scoon, Dorothy Sparks, Phyllis A. Whitney, and Naoma Zimmerman.

The souvenir program has as decoration of its back cover the autographs of the speakers present, and of David Appel, A. C. Spectorsky, and your spotlighter, who were unable to be there in what, in the case of at least two of us, is graphically described as "the flesh." . . . Howard Vincent O'Brien, as one of the seeing eyes of the press for the rest of us who can't be at the San Francisco conference, was also absent.

That program contained some statistics which are so remarkable and so interesting that even those who gag at statistics won't want to miss them. . . . There are, in round numbers, 2,080,000 books in the library, from which treasure chest 10,297,996 withdrawals were made last year. . . . Among the things that borrowers find in the library other than regular books are 40,000 books for the blind.

There is also music to be had at the library—13,000 pieces of it, and 9,018 borrowers took it home. . . . There are microfilm copies of all Chicago newspapers from 1833 to date, but you can't take them home, because you have to use them on special reading machines. . . . A total of 412,911 pictures and 184,535 lantern slides was circulated last year.

• MOTHERHOOD

by

HELENE DEUTSCH, M. D.

Associate Psychiatrist
Massachusetts General Hospital

√ Any woman who has been a mother or who hopes to be one, will find many valuable suggestions in this book—insights she will recognize from her own experience.

√ Primarily intended as a study for psychiatrists, medical men and social workers concerned with the mature woman, it can be highly recommended as a source of valuable information for the interested layman or woman.

√ Dr. Deutsch's aim in this book has been to examine and explain the mind workings of the normal, mature woman in present day society.

√ It's importance stems from the fact that she brings a powerful illumination to bear upon the individual feminine ego —that she sheds new light on the many-sided psychologic activities and relations of the adult woman.

√ Dr. Deutsch, altho she occupies a position of prime importance in the medical profession, is always conscious of the fact that she is writing for women, from a woman's point of view. You will find this book has direct bearing on experiences in your own life.

THE GOLDEN TOTEM

BY BARRETT WILLOUGHBY

(Copyright: 1945: By Barrett Willoughbv)

INSTALMENT XIX.

ONE day at lunch Greer announced to Lynn and Stella that there had been a serious breakdown in the machinery at the mill.

"Thank God!" Stella's fervent tones were slightly blurred by the mouthful of salad she had just taken. "Now you'll have to close down and get out of this hole."

He laughed. "Not so fast, lady. It means a shutdown for possibly a week. No more. And so I'm giving the crew a holiday. They haven't been to town since the Fourth of July."

"So they're all stampeding for Juneau in the morning, I suppose," guessed Stella.

"Every man Jack, except Perry. I'm leaving him here to watch the mine. And of course to look after you and Lynn."

"Not me!" protested Stella, with a belligerent toss of her head. "I've been penned up in this dump so long that Juneau will look like Paris to me. I'm going in with the gang."

Greer fixed her with his still level gaze. After a moment he smiled disarmingly. "Stella, come to the office with me, after lunch. And you, Lynn—I'll not need you there this afternoon. I want you to make out a list of things needed for the house. I'm bringing back with me the most important guest that ever visited Illahee."

At the prospect of a trip to town Stella's spirits soared. She departed for the office hand in hand with Greer.

When the pair reached the office Stella walked right on thru to Greer's sitting room and, with the air of one perfectly at home, sat down on the sofa. She patted the cushion beside her and smiled up at Greer. "Come, Jeff. Let's talk about our trip to town."

He continued to stand. "I'm sorry, Stella, but you can't come to town with me this time."

She leaped to her feet. "This is the limit, Jeff Greer!" her voice rose angrily. "All you do is say no to everything I ask you. You refuse to announce our engagement. You won't leave this God-awful hole in charge of Klasby, or even that sap Perry, and take me some place where we can have a little fun. And I believe you're deliberately trying to turn me into an old hag. Look at this——" She grabbed a handful of her hair and held it out from her head. "Just look at it! It's a disgrace, that's what it is. I haven't had a chance to go into town to a beauty parlor for weeks. I——"

"Now, now, Stella." He patted her arm. "Don't excite yourself."

"Don't you 'now-Stella' me!" she screeched, giving him a vigorous shove with both hands. "Here, after you've made me spend hours and hours filling Flan O'Hara up with booze, so he'd spill what he knows about the man Faber's expecting, you won't even take me to town to a beauty parlor! That's gratitude for you! Well, get this, you cheap sport—no matter what you say, I'm going in with you to get my hair done. Furthermore, when the next capitalistic suckers arrive at Illahee, little Stella will be right here to tell them a thing or two that will——"

"Stella, my darling, it's vital that——"

"I'll say it's vital. If I don't get my hair shampooed soon, I'll——"

"P-l-e-a-s-e, baby-heart. . . ." He put his arms about her and led her back to a seat on the sofa. "Please, won't you forget about your hair long enough for me to tell you something very important?" He sat down beside her and took one of her hands. "Damn it, lover, you make it almost impossible for me to be honest with you. I never know just how far I can trust you. And——"

"Well, how do you like that! Haven't I been mum as a clam about all your skullduggery with Alan Faber? Haven't I——"

"Yes, yes, yes. You've been wonderful. But—when you get a certain amount of liquor in you, or when you get mad at some trifle, it loosens your tongue, baby, and . . ." He let his remark trail off in a deep sigh.

"And what?" bawled Stella. "Get it off your chest. Ever since you came home from Juneau the last time you've been glum as an owl."

"I'm sorry," he said, gently. He lifted her hand, bent his dark head and, placing a kiss in the palm, closed her fingers over it. Then he gazed at her deeply, his strong face assuming a slightly weary, appealing look.

She sat still, studying him as tho estimating his caress. "Huh!" she decided, after a moment. "Don't think any of your ham acts can fool me into staying home."

"I'm not trying to fool you." Gravely, he got to his feet and, with his gliding light stride, began pacing back and forth in front of her. "I'm just wondering how best to break the bad news to you."

"Bad news?" Instantly Stella was quietly alert.

He nodded. "The four large parties of big game hunters I invited for September were my best prospects. I banked on them to take over the bulk of the Golden Totem stock. Well—they've backed out."

"Not all of them?"

"Every one. I don't blame them. America's entry into the war is inevitable."

Stella lit a cigaret and, with it in her hand, gestured dismissingly. "O, well, gold is gold, no matter what happens. We still have the mine."

He turned on her in sudden cold irritation. "Didn't I tell you if war came every gold mining project in America would be deader than a door nail for the duration? It may last five, 10 years. I'll be in a wheel chair by that time. Besides, we, as you put it, have no mine. That's what I want to tell you. The Golden Totem stringer is just about finished."

She stood up, fixing him with a suspicious eye. One tightened corner of her mouth worked in and out. Then she exploded: "For God's sake, Jeff, don't spring that gag on me again. You ought to know by now you can't scare me off that way. I don't believe you, and no matter whether you're broke or in the money, you're going to make me Mrs. Jefferson Greer. But," she finished, with a hard little laugh, "I know you'll never be broke, so long as there's a sucker left in the world."

He looked up at her and suddenly smiled his indulgent, semi-paternal smile. "Come here, Stella." His voice had taken on its deep organ note. Without rising he reached up and drew her to a seat beside him. She held herself still and drew back a little, regarding him with suspicion.

He captured her hand. "Listen, little earth-heart. As soon as we make a cleanup at the Golden Totem——"

"Cleanup? You mean cleanout, don't you? Your machinery is busted. All your hunting parties have sent regrets. And if, for once in your life you're telling the truth, your stringer is worked out. But cleanup, or cleanout, Jeff, when we leave this hole, we leave together. And the minute we get to Juneau you're going to make me Mrs. Jefferson Greer."

He drew a long sigh. "Yes, yes, yes," he repeated with weary patience. "You've mentioned that on an average of three times a day ever since you came here. What I'm trying to tell you is this—we're not cleaned out just yet. I've got one chance left to unload the works and make something out of it. But I've got to play my hand close to the chest—and have luck."

"Another party of hunters?"

"No. A man named Michael Sloan. He's so lousy with dough, a hundred thousand is no more to him than a hundred bucks would be to me."

"O-o-o-o!" she exclaimed, with the rising and falling inflection of sudden comprehension. "So that's why you've had me pumping Flan O'Hara! But Sloan is Faber's sucker. Flan made that plain in his dumb way. The man's coming up to look over Melody Hill and they've been getting ready for him. Yesterday Flan flew to town with Higgins to wait for the guy. He's due this week on the Prince Hal. Don't you remember?"

"Yes. But I wrote Sloan over a month ago and invited him to Illahee. He answered he'd visit us after he'd finished looking over Melody Hill."

Stella widened her big black eyes in contemptuous astonishment. "Have you gone dotty, Jeff? You won't stand a chance with him after Faber tells him how you got Illahee. He——"

"Faber's got nothing unlawful on me, Stella. Don't forget that. Furthermore, he won't get a chance at Sloan until after I've seen him. When I'm thru with the gentleman, Faber's more than welcome to him."

"Darling!" She threw her arms about his neck and snuggled against him. "I might have known you had an ace in the hole! That means we'll get out of this dump maybe—in 10 days. Do you think it will be more than 10 days?"

"Sooner, if I have a free hand. It all depends on my getting to Sloan before Faber gets hold of him. That's the reason why I can't divert myself by taking you to town with me, baby-heart. Don't you see?"

Stella was very still for a moment. Then, suddenly, she drew back from him, her eyes suspiciously narrowed. "You and all the crew, even Klasby, going off together doesn't look so good. You wouldn't be trying to put something over on me, would you?"

He laughed indulgently and tightened his arm about her. "My, my, what a distrustful little earth-heart it is."

"Of course I am. You're a liar; and a girl has no defense against a liar, except distrust. Look how you were when I arrived here—all boiled up about this Court Faber and his diamond drill. When he finally got it on his ground you made fine plans to wreck it. Then all of a sudden you didn't give a hoot what he did with it. Now, with me, you——"

"Lord God, Stella, must I explain every move I make to you! I'm an opportunist. I often have to change my plans in the flick of an eye. Can't you see it will make no difference what Faber does on Melody Hill if this country goes to war? In fact, anything he does I can turn to my advantage. By the way, you're sure it's Flan, not Faber, who has gone to Juneau to meet Sloan? Everything depends on that, Stella."

"Of course I'm sure. Scud Higgins picked him up at the Faber float down the inlet. I've told you a dozen times, there's not a soul left on Melody Hill but young Faber."

He patted her head. "The thing couldn't have broken better had I arranged it myself, baby-heart."

"Then why can't I come with you to Juneau, Jeff? I won't bother you. Honest, I'll—"

Laughing, he pressed her lips together between his thumb and forefinger. "You've been a good girl, Stella, and so I'll explain why you can't come with me this trip. In addition I'll tell you our plans for holding the Golden Totem vein until I can get Sloan over here and unload on him. Tomorrow—" He interrupted himself to tilt a listening ear.

Some one had stamped into the office beyond the closed door.

"O, hell!" ejaculated Stella under her breath. "Wouldn't you know some guy would butt in at this precise moment."

Greer stood up. "It's Klasby, baby-heart. He's come to give me the low-down on that busted machinery. Sit tight. As soon as he leaves I'll be back to tell you exactly what we've cooked up for Mr. Sloan."

After Greer and his crew had gone to Juneau a rich, slow peace descended on Illahee. With the Golden Totem silent, it was as tho the wilderness intensified the beauty of its autumn changes. Deepening frost had turned the mountain tops above timber line to rose and grape purple and tarnished gold. In the early morning this royal tapestry was ethereally softened with a powdering of night snow so light it vanished under the first sun.

The first afternoon they were alone Lynn and Perry went strawberry picking on the outer curve of the Arm. They quickly filled their pails, then sat on the matted vines, relaxed and content, their backs against a huge bleached drift log.

Small, shaggy MacFarlane was joyously wrestling with a niggerhead of kelp on the beach below. His long hair, even his tail, was heavy with sand.

"Hi, roughneck!" Perry called to him.

MacFarlane looked up, shook out a gay little snort, and again pounced on his inert quarry. Lynn laughed. "I simply must do something about that long hair of his. It seems to grow faster here than—Hey! I hear geese!" She broke off, and lifted her face, then pointed to the birds moving their dark wild V across the sky.

"They're talking to us, Goldilocks. They're saying: 'We're going south. Good-by . . . good-by . . . We're leaving.'"

Lynn waved farewell to the feathered voyagers. "So long, friends. So long, and happy landings. We're staying."

Perry drew her arm down and squeezed it. "Gee, darling, it's wonderful to be here alone with you. We've lived at Illahee over two months, and we've never had time to go anywhere together, or even talk to each other without Greer or Stella being right in our hair. I wish to God he'd taken that dame with him this time. But I suppose just now he's treading on mighty delicate ground with her."

"Yes?"

"Sure. She thinks he's going to marry her after they leave here. But I'm sure he's just apple polishing her along until the season is over. Anything for peace, you know."

"Well, as Aunt Julie used to say, everybody to his own cemetery. Of course, Perry, I know now that Stella is no stockholder. And I know how it is between her and Greer. I'd be a fool if I didn't."

"Ummm. But let's forget her for a while. I want to talk about when winter comes and Mr. and Mrs. Holloway are all alone here at Illahee! O, boy, won't——"

"Perry, I've got another suggestion," Lynn knew definitely she would never be Perry's wife. His friend, his sister, his protector, even; but never his wife. She would tell him later on in a way she hoped would not hurt him too much. "Let's just enjoy the present at Illahee. A few more hours' work at the office tomorrow, and I'll be free until Greer gets back."

"And I've only one small job left to do tomorrow—sorting out ore samples in the tunnel. But, darn it, the boss told Stella she could go over with me to pick out some rich pieces for her collection. Anyway, it'll be finished in no time. After that I'm free, too, until the big boy gets home."

"Free! Then we can go horseback riding over the hills. We can explore the Inlet in the Julie. One day let's put up a good lunch and go down to Periwinkle. I've always wanted to go ashore there. Of course, we can't neglect Stella. We'll invite her to go with us on all our boat trips, and maybe we can show her how to have a good time on a picnic."

Perry slipped an arm back of her and drew her close. "There's something else I'd like to do this week, darling, but without benefit of Stella."

"What is it?" She dropped her hand over his knee.

"Remember our gay little honeymoon cabin with the orchid and green bathroom? You've never let me take you in there, Lynn. I—before you came, I used to go there by myself and sort of dream about the time you'd be there with me—my wife. O, I know I spoiled all that with my damned foolishness at Juneau; but that only makes it tougher on me now. Sometimes——" his voice took on a serious, shy tone Lynn had never heard him use before—"sometimes when I've had a drink too many I go there by myself at night and make a fire in the little fireplace. I try to imagine you are there, married to me. I stretch out on the couch, and make believe you're sitting close beside me on a hassock, playing your guitar and singing to me in the firelight. And I——"

"Perry! Don't talk like that. It makes my heart turn to tears, somehow. I had no idea you ever thought of—of——"

Impulsively Lynn put her arm about his neck and pressed her face against his. There were tears in her eyes and a lump in her throat. She thought: I mustn't let him go on any longer thinking we'll be married. I must tell him now. This moment; and have it over with.

But she found it impossible to tell him now. Her heart was too soft with pity and protecting affection. She'd wait until after Greer returned. She'd wait until she had given him the best week of fun and companionship in her power.

Perry's face brightened. "I've an idea! How about all of us eating dinner at the mine tomorrow evening? We'll invade Doc's kitchen and cook it ourselves. And afterward I'll walk you gals home in the moonlight!"

"Splendid! You always did have the grandest ideas for fun. But why do we have to come home? Couldn't we sleep just one night in Bachelor's Hell?"

He laughed. "Why not, darling? Al and Billy and myself have nice clean bunks—you can take your choice."

They hurried home to tell Stella the plan for tomorrow. They found her walking the living room floor, smoking in quick, short puffs. On the coffee table stood an empty glass, a half empty bottle of Scotch, and a siphon of charged water. Altho Stella had refused Lynn's invitation to go strawberrying, now at sight of them she went into a tantrum, accusing them of deliberately going off and deserting her.

To appease her, Perry made a shaker of unusually potent Mamma's Downfalls. Lynn supplemented his efforts by cooking an excellent dinner. But by dinner time both Stella and Perry were so tight they had no interest in food.

As Lynn put away the untouched dishes she had prepared with such pains, every burst of senseless talk and mindless laughter from the living room deepened the depression that had been growing since her return to the house.

Without enthusiasm, she made ready everything necessary for the outing at the mine tomorrow. When she finally went to bed the pair in the living room were still drinking and spasmodically singing the Rum-Soaked Men song.

It was after midnight when Lynn heard Perry stumble upstairs to one of the guest rooms. Stella did not go up to her room until an hour later. Lynn got up then and went out to the living room to turn off the lights and see that no cigarets had been left burning.

She stood still for moments in the dark, deserted apartment, conscious, suddenly, of being all alone with two alcoholics whose capacity for sane action was gone, for the time being. If anything happened, on whom could she call? There was no one at the Golden Totem. From Flan O'Hara's loose mouthed talk the last time he visited Stella she knew he had gone to town to meet a man named Sloan. The Melody Hill crew had been dismissed days ago. Had Court gone also? She did not know. The Faber float, where he kept the Stardust, was too far down the Inlet to be visible, even from the hill back of Illahee.

Realizing all the time that Court, even if he were at the Pent House, would now be asleep, her need for a sane, human presence sent her out onto the terrace to look up at the height where his light sometimes shone.

But Melody Hill rose dark against the beat and gleam of northern stars. A strong, cool wind was blowing up the Inlet. Plainer than ever before she heard the exultant roar of the distant Bottleneck.

Shivering, she ran back to her warm bed.

What Has Gone Before

Lynn Clonard spends her vacation with one of her Aunt Julie's friends and meets Perry Holloway, who is heading for Alaska. Perry asks her to marry him. They become engaged and will marry at Christmas time. Perry wires he has a job as foreman in a mine and asks her to come immediately to Alaska and marry him there. Lynn has just enough money for a one-way passage. Court Faber, young mining engineer, rescues Lynn and her dog from an accident on the boat. Perry is late meeting her, arriving helplessly drunk. Lynn tells Perry she will not marry him. Jefferson Greer tricks Lynn into asking for a job as secretary at his mine, the Golden Totem. En route to the mine Lynn learns that Greer is Perry's boss. Out canoeing, Lynn sees Faber and Tonglaw, Greer's houseman, studying over papers. Lynn meets Flan O'Hara and Court, who is impressed when he learns she is not married. Later Greer tells Lynn he loaned money to Faber's father and in his absence acquired the Golden Totem when the mortgage was foreclosed. Court's father was drowned and Court is still bitter. Greer sends Perry to Juneau to meet some prospective investors. While Perry is gone Greer tells Lynn she is his ideal woman. Mrs. Stella Chandler, one of Greer's former secretaries, arrives with the party from Juneau. Greer discovers Court is taking advantage of the high tide to get his drill stem across Greer's land. Lynn helps Court outwit Greer. Stella checks the records and investigates the mine. Mrs. Strum, housekeeper, threatens to disclose her loss in Greer's Peru venture, but Greer promises to reimburse her. Greer confesses to Stella that the mine is a fraud, but she insists he marry her. Lynn's suspicions are aroused when she learns Illahee was built by Court's grandfather.

Now Read World's Greatest Classics In Easy 5 Minute Digest Form

THRILL TO A LIFETIME OF READING IN ONE GIANT VOLUME

Now, in 5 minutes, yes, in only 1,000 words each, you can read and intelligently know the greatest works of the world's finest writers. For the first time, a new type of literature; classics paced to the busy speed of modern living! If you have ever wished that you could know the classics, the really great books, well enough to discuss them with your friends and compare them with present-day writing—if you have ever hoped that this wonderful wisdom and culture could be yours easily, quickly, excitingly—without devoting laborious weeks and months of "wading" through thousands of pages of difficult, intricate, and "heavy" reading . . . then your wish has come true. Here in this one giant volume are 79 great classics. Not short stories but book length masterpieces brilliantly condensed in digest form. Instead of reading 79 books, you read one book. Instead of reading 457,000 pages, you read only 300. You will know Tolstoy, Goethe, Voltaire, Dumas, Dickens, Stevenson, Balzac—because you will read them.

EACH STORY 1,000 WORDS—READING TIME 5 MINUTES

Imagine reading a classic as quickly and easily as a single article in your favorite digest magazine. All you need is 5 minutes—all you read is 1,000 words. These thrilling stories are all the more exciting in this concentrated dynamic form. The long, laborious descriptions have been taken out. The intricate, difficult passages simplified. You get the essence, the pure drama, the breath-taking genius, with machine gun speed. Everybody wants to read the classics. Everybody would, if they had the time. Stage Players to Be Guests of Drama League

By Irene Steyskal

Not to be discouraged by meager menus and startling prices at their favorite restaurants and cafes, club women are rising as usual to the merry mood of May, and end of the season meetings take the customary form of festive breakfasts, luncheons, and teas.

One of the gala gatherings this week will be the Chicago Drama league's closing breakfast, which is set for 12:30 o'clock Thursday in the Crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel. Designated as a distinguished guest party, the meeting will draw to the speakers' table Louis Calhern and Oscar Karlweis, stars of the Theater Guild play, "Jacobowsky and the Colonel," and Marianne Stewart, Harold Vermilyea, Loney Lewis, and others of the company.

But not to the seasoned and famous actors alone will guest honors be reserved that day. Sharing the spotlight will be two talented youngsters, Shirley Riley and John Sharp Jr., whose potentialities in the theater, demonstrated in the league sponsored Children's Civic theater, have won for both scholarships with Walter Camryn. Mr. Camryn is the dance director of the Children's theater.

Young John Sharp is the tow-headed lad whose nimble footwork and jaunty clowning in "The Man Who Lost His Head" moved last season's audiences at the children's shows to many an appreciative chuckle. John will give the Hillaire Belloc dance poem, "Jim," at the party. Shirley, a pretty miss remembered for her dancing, will do a Spanish dance.

Mrs. William Haywood has arranged for John and Shirley to appear on the breakfast program to call the league members' attention to the 1945 summer season of the Children's theater, plans for which already are getting under way. Mrs. Haywood is the chairman.

Preliminary to the breakfast, the annual reports meeting and election of officers will be held in the French room of the Blackstone, Mrs. Alvin W. Jenkisson, the president, convening the session at 11:30 o'clock.

The Thursday meeting closes a record season for the Drama league. This year the membership mounted to 850 and for the first time it became necessary to close the roster.

Friday afternoon will find members of the American Opera Society of Chicago assembled at the Arts club for its closing function, a musical and tea prefaced by a business session for annual reports and election of officers. The society will hear at its gathering excerpts from the Frederick Jacobi opera, "Prodigal Son," sung by Max Wilson, lyric tenor, Linda Grob, soprano, and Grammer Smith, baritone. The concert will be given under the musical direction of Joseph Anderson, who will be at the piano.

Mrs. Ralph Chester Otis will have the hostess role at tea. Among the guests will be Mrs. Nathaniel Leverone, Mrs. Arthur Wirtz, Mrs. Ashley Moss Brand, Mrs. John Hemphill Coulter, Mrs. William Calhoun Smith, Miss Carol Fox, Mrs. Charles Pardee, Mrs. Albion Lambert Headburg, Miss Frances Robinson, and Mrs. William Allison. Acting president and program chairman of the society is Mrs. Esther Turkington.

Important among the reports at the preliminary business session will be Mrs. Ralph Talbot Winston's summary of war work accomplished this season. The society has received a certificate of appreciation from the Red Cross for its service in behalf of the veterans at Gardiner general hospital. Radios and phono-

Legion Auxiliary to Discuss Plans for Poppy Day

The 2d district auxiliary of the American Legion, department of Illinois, will meet at 8 o'clock Wednesday night in the Morrison hotel to discuss plans for its participation in the annual Poppy day program which is conducted for the benefit of veterans of America's wars. Monday, May 28, has been designated the day on which the emblematic poppy will be sold on Chicago streets this year under auspices of the Veterans' Poppy association, composed of representatives of the Legion and other major veterans' organizations.

A memorial service in tribute to deceased members and service men will be conducted at the Wednesday meeting by the district chaplain, Mrs. William E. Thom, who will be assisted by chaplains of the district's 13 member groups.

The Jane A. Delano post of the Legion will meet at 8:15 o'clock tomorrow night in the Illinois State Nurses' association headquarters, 8 S. Michigan av. A preliminary executive committee session is scheduled at 7:30.

Benefit Concert Will Be Sung by Choir of N. U.

Presented under auspices of the Associate Alumnae and the Alumni association, the Northwestern university a cappella choir will give a benefit concert at 8:15 o'clock Wednesday in Cahn auditorium on the Evanston campus. Two soloists will participate in the program—Stefan Bardas, pianist, and Marilyn Jean Palmer, soprano. Conducting the choir will be George Howerton.

Marilyn Jean Palmer
[Merrill Chase Photo]

Mr. Bardas was graduated from the State Academy of Music in Berlin and was the winner of a three year scholarship with the famous Casella in Rome. He will play Liszt's "Don Juan Fantasie" and a Beethoven sonata. Miss Palmer, a soloist in one of the north shore churches, has sung on radio programs and has appeared in several of the Northwestern campus shows, one of which was last season's musical comedy, "This Ain't the Navy."

Special attention has been given to the stage mountings for the concert, Helen Hovde and Charlotte Lee collaborating in designing the sets. One of their scenes is an old fashioned garden, in which the choir will be grouped informally.

Mrs. Lewis Ermeling and Thomas A. Harwood share the chairmanship of the concert committee. Proceeds from the benefit will be devoted to scholarships at Northwestern for deserving students in all schools.

V-E Day Peps Up 7th War Bond Workers

By Thalia

V-E day, thrilling and comforting as it was to the whole civilized world, was to Americans only one stroke of the two which join to make the V of victory. To many Europeans it was the day of final deliverance from German terror, and naturally celebrated with the popping of the cork of human exuberance. To Americans in whose homes, great and small, there are heart strings subconsciously twanging with every shell's explosion in the Pacific, V-E day was a sober recognition of a task still unaccomplished as well as of one finished. Men and women whose sons and daughters and husbands are still fighting for freedom had little wish to minimize the whole victory by overemphasizing its half, magnificent tho that half is.

It was appropriate that V-E day should have known the first public use of a new slogan for the women's committee of the 7th war loan drive, "Keep Buying Bonds Until the Last Boy Is Back." On V-E day minus 1 the plans of the committee were announced by its chairman, Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, at a small luncheon in the impressive walnut paneled private dining room of the offices of the head of the 7th war loan drive, Lawrence B. Stern.

Far from V-E day lessening the tension of the drive, it will be the sturdy wrench which tightens all of the machinery of its victorious push toward total victory. Confidence in the patriotism of the women of Cook county has raised their quota for E bonds 60 per cent higher than the actual sales of any previous drive. When the drive officially opens tomorrow our fellow townswomen will have the rare opportunity, by buying that many more bonds, of making a definite impression on the economic future of our country, altho they may not realize individually the part that they play in that future.

It is the women of the country who do the spending—or the saving—and who will be responsible for either the stable value of the dollar or the instability of inflation. It seems like a solemn responsibility to be put on the shoulders of the sex considered congenitally allergic to economics, but women are no longer mere financial shadows of men, and the members of the women's division of the 7th war loan think women will assume their responsibility with vigor.

How that responsibility has grown in the last 25 years was plain when Mrs. Wolf gave the comparative bond sales of the women's division in the first World war and in this war. To date the women's division has sold $1,067,168,000 worth. During the first World war a total of $78,000,000 worth were sold nationally. Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank was chairman of that drive which was considered spectacularly successful. Women these days are, the figures seem to say, far more financially knowledgeable than they were in 1918.

Fabulous articles with which women's dreams are stocked for post-war ownership, all made from bituminous coal and its derivatives are on exhibit for two weeks in the Treasury building at 105 West Adams street. But they are destined for the thrifty who have bonds tucked away after V-day. Incidentally, Mrs. Wolf says that they can use volunteers in the women's division. You can find out all about it right at the exhibit or by calling State 2940.

Fresh from the Hills . . . By Marge of Sunrise Mountain Farm . . . Mess o' Greens

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

DONIE SIMMS shoved the big iron skillet to the front of the cookstove and put another stick of dried hickory into the fire. Then she took the lid from the iron kettle that stood up on three little legs and peered at the steaming contents.

"Yes," she said, "I always put my greens into this big old iron kettle with a tiny bit of water and let 'em cook long enough to wilt 'em. Then I put a lot of grease into this skillet. When it's smokin' hot, I dump in the greens. Then I take a knife and cut across 'em every whichaway, and let 'em cook enough to get the grease thru 'em. And if you've got the right kind o' greens, why, I always say you cain't find a better dish."

Donie's recipe reminded me of the Englishman's recipe for stewed hare, which began: "First catch your hare." Greens cooking is simple enough, provided, of course, you have a gallon bucket of meat drippings, as Donie did. But getting the greens from pasture and woodlot, ah, there's the jolt! Little pint sized gray haired Donie is the neighborhood's greatest authority on greens and when she asked Nettie Fritz, Opal De Woody, and me down to hunt a mess o' greens with her, we practically fell over each other getting there. No one knows better than we three neighbors that a plant isn't always a "green" just because it is green in color.

Donie doesn't have to walk far for her greens. Beyond the driveway that runs before her front gate, the greens start popping out of the moist earth. A private greens lot, you might say. But that greens lot is almost as straight down as your basement wall. At the base of the hill is a narrow valley with two streams running side by side, about 50 feet apart. One is the south prong of Jack's Fork, the other is a fussy protesting creek. Perhaps the creek isn't always there. It is just possible that I have happened to climb to Donie's home at times when some of the turbulent waters of the south prong were taking a short cut over to the fork. After Sunday's rain, both streams were on a rampage, with tumbling, foaming masses of water singing a troubled song of hurry, hurry, hurry, strangely foreign to our easy-going Ozark ways. Water was rushing high over the bridge across the prong, and running so close to the base of the mountain at the other side of the valley that many blossoming dogwood and redbud trees stood with their feet in the stream.

Fine greens grew on that mountain, said Donie, but there were enough on our side of the river. In fact, almost within reach of the driveway, Donie found the first one. It was wild lettuce, a tender, light green leafy plant growing like dandelions. A short distance beyond, Donie gave another whoop of discovery. She had found cow cabbage [sometimes called crow's foot or cow parsley]. This green has a larger, darker leaf and gets its name because cows love it, Donie said. From there to the base of the mountain were greens in abundance; dandelions, wild beet, with its purplish leaf, blue stem or wild mustard, lamb's quarters [tender and mild as something tame, as Donie put it] and dock, without which no mess of greens would be complete. Dock has the sour taste needed for a satisfactory blend of flavors.

Opal, Nettie, and I couldn't trust our greens judgment, for many plants that look edible might be "rank pizen" according to hill belief. We let Donie do the finding, then at her call we would dig in our heels and slip down the mountainside, for all the world like over size baby chicks answering a mother hen's invitation to enjoy a succulent worm. Then we would cut the greens while Donie found more. There's an art to cutting greens, too. Only the tender, uppermost leaves must be taken and each leaf must be looked over carefully. A little dirt doesn't hurt, for the greens will be well washed, but nary a bug nor worm must be dropped into your greens pail.

Finally, we were in the valley beside the rushing creek. Then Opal and I gave simultaneous whoops of discovery. Opal had found the first tightly curled leaves of poke, the best known of all Ozark greens. My companions clustered about the rusty red-pearly white shoots, exclaiming over the luck of finding poke so early. My whoop had been caused by the breath-taking discovery of purple, yellow, and white violets growing in neighborly clumps, exactly as they might have been displayed in a florist's window. From that moment, I dropped out of the race for greens. When the others whooped over lady fingers [dull tasting, but you need some in every mess o' greens, said Donie] I gave a louder whoop at finding a carpet of delicate little pink wind flowers.

When they exulted over mouse's ears, the bushy little plant with fine tender leaves shaped like ears of a mouse, I was digging the root of a wild rose bush and gathering clusters of unfamiliar yellow blossoms. When they found deer tongue, I gave scarcely a look to the thick spotted leaves that had shot straight out of the ground, because at that same moment I had found bluebells. Always the delicate bells that combine blue and pink in one fascinating blossom leave me breathless. Only the triumphant shriek: "Woolen breeches!" could have torn me from the bluebells. I found the breeches to be a sprangly [the word is Donie's] plant with fuzzy stems.

It seemed to me we had enough greens for the most exotic blend of flavors but Donie was not satisfied. She eyed them critically and said:

"I think we'd better go to the garden and put in some cabbage tops and turnip greens and a few pieplant leaves. And while we're there, we'll cut enough pieplant for a cobbler for dinner."

We went up the hill to the house, stopping to rest at the half way stump where Donie stops on her climb from the mail box. In the garden we found pale green tender leaves on the turnips and cabbage stems that had been left in the garden thruout the winter. The rhubarb [pieplant to us] leaves were large as palm leaf fans, and the thick, crisp stems rosy as 10 cent nail polish. While we picked these, and an armload of green onions, little David Fay, Donie's 3 year old great-grandson, brought out his little wagon with a trailer hitched to it to haul our greens into the house. Ordinarily little David Fay would have been greens hunting with us, but that day his mother was at home and could keep him indoors. David Fay's mother is finishing high school while her husband is in the navy, but the morning school bus had been halted by the flood at the bridge.

At the house, the greens were washed in clear cold water drawn up from the cistern, then put into the three legged iron kettle to wilt while Donie went about getting dinner ready for noon time.

"Just an old farm dinner," she said apologetically. I thought of the people who would give a year of their lives to sit down to such a dinner. Donie bakes, stews, and fries with the utter abandon of a born cook, measuring in pinches, dabs, and lumps. The oven door is minus a spring and must be propped up with a stick of wood, but Donie makes that an advantage. She can open the door a bit when the oven is too hot. Only a genius can keep a woodburning stove fired enough to keep pots and pans a bubbling, without overheating the oven. And Donie is that genius. While the greens wilted and the diced rhubarb simmered in a saucepan, Donie heated a half gallon jar of home canned pork, with the top removed, in the oven. Then the pork was put on a flat iron skillet and slipped into the oven for further baking. Alongside it, she set a panful of sweet potatoes in candying sirup. On top of the stove Irish potatoes were boiling in thin brown skins.

"I must go to the cellar for lard," said Donie. "Who wants to go along?" Who wouldn't want to see Donie's cellar? There, on broad clean shelves were row upon row of glass jars, probably 500 even now at the tail end of winter, filled with corn, peas, beans, beet pickles, pepper relish, raspberries, dewberries, peaches, apples, plums, cherries, tomatoes, kraut, sweet cabbage, sausage, in addition to dozens of cans of pork. Parsnips, turnips, potatoes, and carrots were still in storage bins, and Donie dug white solid lard from an eight gallon crock that was almost full. Beside it stood another six gallon crock that had not been opened since Donie rendered the lard and put it there.

"We never use any ration points except for sugar," said Donie. And we could well understand. We raided the shelves of yellow bantam sweet corn, jelly, and pepper relish and took them up for dinner.

Back in the kitchen, Donie got out the big wooden bowl of flour, and dipped her fingers into it experimentally. Into the middle of the bowl went lumps of lard, a scattering of baking powder, and a shake of salt. With her slim brown fingers, Donie blended the fat into the flour in the middle of the bowl without touching the flour beyond. At just the right moment, she poured some water from the dipper into the blended fat and flour and in another instant, a mass of soft fluffy dough was put out on the breadboard, leaving flour in the wooden bowl for the next baking. When Donie picked up the rolling pin, she chuckled and said: "I often climbed up this rolling pin and picked apples off of it!" The rolling pin, it was explained, was hand hewn from an apple tree that had grown in the orchard of her childhood home at Evening Shade, Ark.

The dough for the cobbler was cut far larger than the base of the dripping pan in which it would be baked. But Donie had a reason for that. After the hot sweetened rhubarb was put into the dough lined pan, that excess dough was folded over it like sheltering wings. A little piece of dough that had been saved out was rolled and put over the open spot in the middle. The cobbler was slid into the hot oven. Donie got the cornmeal out of the bread chest, saying:

"Can't have greens without cornbread. And none of your sweetened stuff either! Oscar wouldn't touch it." Oscar is her husband.

She made the cornbread, thick, moist, and crumbly, while David Fay's mother set the table. Then came the final touch for the mess o' greens. She brought out a gallon can of meat drippings and put a cupfull or so into a skillet. When it was smoking hot, she forked the wilted greens into it and shoved the skillet to the hottest part of the stove.

"I was afraid we didn't have enough," she murmured. "But looks like we've got greens to let."

When dinner was served, along with a sizeable helping of everything on the table, including two squares of rhubarb cobbler drenched with cream, I ate two platefulls of greens. They tasted like mountain air, brisk April showers, warm golden sunshine, and spring, all blended into one ambrosial flavor. I thought regretfully of the bluebells I had gathered while the others had bent their backs over those clumps of greens. Some how I felt like the grasshopper who had gaily hippity-hopped thruout the summer and at last had to borrow from the toiling ants. I was embarrassed no end. But the heavenly taste lingering on my tongue outweighed my shame. I helped myself to another square of cornbread and looked across the wide table.

"Will you please pass the greens again?" I asked.

V-E Day Peps Up 7th War Bond Workers

Kellogg is honorary president and chairman of the campaign committee which is raising $100,000 to be devoted to intensive research to combat the two most dreaded complications of childbirth. The fund will be a memorial to 50 years of the hospital's great work.

To report on the success of the drive Mrs. Fairbank gave a tea for the workers on her committee and the press recently. Mrs. Patterson Reeve, chairman of the publicity committee; her mother, Mrs. A. H. Patterson, and her aunt, Mrs. Richard T. Crane, represented one family which has worked generously for the hospital. Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank Jr. represented the second generation of Fairbank workers for the cause. Mrs. Adlai Stevenson, who was also present, is, like Mrs. Fairbank Jr. and Mrs. Reeve, a young matron who takes her civic duties seriously.

The afternoon of Mrs. Fairbank's tea was a busy one for those who go everywhere. It included the tea which opened, at the Arts club, the exhibition of the canvases of the Mexican artist Rufino Tamayo, and of the work of seven contemporary British water color artists, Ivon Hitchins, Henry Moore, Paul Nash, John Piper, Ceri Richards, Graham Sutherland, and John Tunnard. So popular did the water colors prove on their stop in New York before they reached the Arts club that practically all of them are already sold.

The busy afternoon began with a meeting at the home of Mrs. Augustine Bowe of the group of women who were patronesses of the recent series of lectures on the modern arts given by Poetry Magazine for its publication fund. The return from the series, approximately $1,000, was announced and plans for another series for next year were discussed. Mrs. James Herbert Mitchell, editor of Poetry, was just back from New York where she and Dr. Mitchell went to the graduation of their elder daughter Sara [always called Sally] from Sarah Lawrence college. Their younger daughter Joan, who, last year, won two prizes at the Art institute, was notified this week that her canvas entered in the annual Chicago Artists' exhibit had passed the jury. Among Poetry's patronesses is Mrs. Solomon A. Smith, who is herself writing books these days, and has, I hear, two mysteries and a biography "on the fire."

And speaking of biographies, a scholarly, but startling one about Lucrezia Borgia is almost in its final stage from the pen of David Hamilton who lived many years in Chicago. He and his young daughter arrived for a visit with Elizabeth's grandmother, Mrs. Cyrus Bentley, and an intensive little season of opera. Mr. Hamilton has found that the lady whose name is almost synonymous with poison actually never put a drop of it in anybody's wine, never owned a poison ring, and was in fact and deed a kindly soul and a matchless wife [wives] and mother.

The evening of V-E day offered members of Chicago society a choice of the first Orchestra hall appearance of Louis Sudler, Chicago's most popular amateur baritone, and a lecture by James Johnson Sweeney of New York. Mr. Sudler appeared as soloist with the Chicago Mendelssohn club and the Chicago Symphonic choir and so delighted his audience that critics declared that he might unwittingly find himself with a professional singing career on his hands. Their closest friends gathered in the Sudler apartment after the concert, I hear, to congratulate Mr. Sudler on his evening's and his plainly destined future success. Some of them gave small dinner parties before the concert for which they took boxes. Mrs. Nelson Barnes, mother of Mrs. Sudler; Comdr. and Mrs. William Burry, Mr. and Mrs. W. Press Hodgkins and the junior Carroll Sudlers among others.

Mrs. Pauling Donnelley gave a dinner party at the Casino preceding Mr. Sweeney's lecture at the Institute of Design, as did Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fisher. Mr. Sweeney elucidated the modern poetic art of T. S. Eliot in his "Quartets." Mr. Eliot's verse is esoteric and Mr. Sweeney by his explanations helped unveil to his audience its meanings, and its illusions, incredibly rich both in imagery, in number, and in beauty. Mr. Sweeney had planned on giving a series of three lectures, but he was called back to New York after his second. A tea at the Arts club on Wednesday afternoon bade him farewell.

Incidentally, many Chicagoans remember with great affection Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ware Eliot Jr., brother and sister-in-law of T. S. Eliot. Mrs. Eliot was Theresa Garrett, a talented artist before her marriage. The Henry Eliots now live in Cambridge, Mass.

Nothing could have been more appropriate expression of the way that women of good will in Chicago have been feeling recently than the talk which John Duncan Miller, new director of the British information services here, gave to the members of the Lake Shore League of Women Voters at the Casino on Monday afternoon. The talk followed the annual meeting at which Mrs. John Collier, for some years the league's president, turned over the gavel to Mrs. Edwin O. Griffenhagen. Mr. Miller talked most hopefully of the world's hopes for peace. World peace is not a modern idea by any means, he said, nor a dangerous dream. In the 1600s Henry of Navarre had a complete plan for a federation of the nations of Europe, and some of its ideas were probably reflected in the American Constitution. San Francisco will succeed, his audience was cheered to believe, especially when he admitted that if Americans always feel that their diplomats are at a disadvantage in international relations, the British feel exactly the same way, and the people of all nations do. He sent every one away feeling that men of good will, emphasizing the good equally with the will, really can achieve the peace which is God's will.

BRIDE OF FLYER

Mrs. Richard E. Miller (Florence E. Barry) is at home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Barry of S. Throop st., now that Lt. Miller, a marine flyer, has left for duty in the Pacific. Lt. and Mrs. Miller have been living in Laguna Beach, Cal., since their marriage recently. Lt. Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dallas D. Miller of 92d st., attended Duke university. His bride is a graduate of Lindenwood college.

French Flyer to Speak to City Club Tomorrow

Lt. Philippe de Croisset of the French naval air force will discuss "The Future of France" before the City Club of Chicago at a 12:15 o'clock luncheon gathering tomorrow in the La Salle hotel. Lt de Croisset, who is in this country on a mission for the French provisional government, served with the French army in the battle of Flanders and was one of the few of his outfit to survive and escape at Dunkirk. He enlisted in a Free French naval aviation squadron operating in North Africa in 1942, and in 1944 he participated in the southern invasion of France.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, May 12, 1897

Dear Julia: I have had rather an unusual experience today, calling with Will on a young woman lawyer whom we both know to congratulate her. This is Miss Mary Bartelme, who has just been appointed by Gov. Tanner as the first woman public guardian in Cook county. Will has had dealings with the firm of which she is a junior partner—Barnes, Barnes, and Bartelme—and wanted me to go with him to take her some roses and our good wishes. We found Miss Bartelme in her office with her rolltop desk in perfect order, a feminine looking jar of violets and apple 'ossoms decorating it. Will told her she'd have to be less orderly if she wanted to be considered in good standing in the legal profession. Lawyers are especially disorderly, I think. Will's desk makes me nervous on the few occasions when I invade his sanctum. But he seems to be able to find the papers he wants amid the mess, so I don't try to put it in order.

Mary Bartelme

Miss Bartelme has just been invited to become a member of the Woman's club and I have met her there, which makes me feel it was proper to call on her. We found that others had brought her flowers, so that her little office was quite festive. When I mentioned my old friend, Mrs. Myra Bradwell, Miss Bartelme was deeply interested. It was Mrs. Bradwell who blazed the trail for these young women who are now entering the legal profession. She knocked in vain for a long time at the door of the Illinois Bar association but was not admitted because of being a woman. She is editor of the Chicago Legal News and is greatly respected by the legal profession.

But to return to Miss Bartelme. She was a teacher in Chicago schools when Mrs. Bradwell persuaded her to enter a law school. She made her mark here and in her senior year took first prize, offered by the American Law Review, for the best legal essay of 5,000 words. The competition was open to law students all over the country, but this Chicago girl was adjudged winner with her essay on "Contracts to Make Wills." Will thinks she will go far in her profession.

We're delighted that the infamous Humphrey bills finally have been defeated in Springfield. Yerkes is furious that all the money he spent has been in vain. One legislator told the Chicago men present at the session this week when the bills were defeated that he had been offered $20,000 to "vote right." Another said he had been told to "fix his own price."

Among the citizens who went to the capital to work against the bill was Frank J. Loesch, one of our ablest young lawyers. He says of the defeat of Yerkes: "It was a glorious victory in many ways. The most important aspect of it is not that Chicago has escaped the ruin which these bills would have brought upon it, but that the most audacious boodler in the country, who has never before failed to accomplish anything he attempted by the use of money, has been completely and humiliatingly beaten. Such a victory over bribery and corruption will embolden people to resist corruption in the future."

William T. Baker, one of our important citizens, rejoices, too, but says it is a reproach to our lawmakers that, after electing them, we must go to Springfield to watch them lest they betray us.

Yerkes, trying to defend himself, explains that he was defeated by Socialists and anarchists and takes a gloomy view of Chicago's future if corporations are so badly treated. Will laughs and says he'll chance Chicago's welfare, even if the presence of Yerkes is withdrawn.

The situation in Cuba is very bad. Isn't it? Lots of love.

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND

FOOT NOTES

Mary Bartelme, later Judge Bartelme, had an outstanding career in Chicago. She held the post of public guardian for 16 years. In 1913 she was made assistant to the head of the Juvenile court and in 1921 was elected to the Circuit bench, largely as a result of campaigning by women's clubs. The "Mary clubs" are a monument to Judge Bartelme. She gave her own home in Austin for the purpose of housing girls who needed a normal home life. This first "Mary club" dates from 1914. Three years later another home was opened in Evanston and in 1942 one in Rogers Park, known as "Lakewood" was launched. Miss Bartelme now lives in California.

An Inquiry from California

From Dr. Edgar J. Goodspeed, formerly of Chicago, now of Los Angeles, Cal., comes an inquiry which perhaps some reader can answer. Dr. Goodspeed writes: "I have just been lucky enough to pick up a copy of the first printing [1856] of Mrs. John H. Kinzie's 'Wau Bun' and find on the title page the penciled name of S. J. Van Alstyne or perhaps T. J. Van Alstyne. I have a vague memory of that name in an old autograph album of my father's from the early seventies and I have an impression it was a well known Chicago family of 80 years or more ago. Does this recall anything to your mind?" Your editor is unable to find this name in the early records of Chicago. Does any reader know it?

Business Women's Club to Hear Talk on Security Meet

The La Salle Street Women will give a luncheon meeting Wednesday to a review of the San Francisco Security conference. Mrs. William G. Barry, a professional lecturer on foreign affairs, will be the guest speaker. The meeting will be held at the Central Y. M. C. A., 10 S. La Salle st.

Another group of business women, the Chicago Office Supervisors club, will hold its annual birthday dinner party at 6:15 o'clock Thursday evening in the Army and Navy club, 410 S. Michigan av. A new staff of officers will be elected.

The 29 Zonta clubs in Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Ohio, and Michigan, which comprise the organization's second district, have begun work in their communities to assist physically handicapped veterans in finding employment and readjusting to civilian life. This particular war service was adopted and plans outlined at the recent district meeting held here in the Palmer House. At that gathering, Dr. Ruth Streitz of Columbus, O., was elected district chairman to succeed Mrs. Anne V. Zinser of Chicago. Dr. Streitz will be installed in June. Two regional chairman also will take office at that time—Miss Grace A. England of Detroit, Mich., and Miss Martha Van Nostrand of Chicago. Zonta is an international organization of business and profersional women.

WED RECENTLY

Mrs. Warren Middleton, the former Shirley Schroeder, is at home in Columbus, O., where Lt. Middleton is stationed with the army air forces. Their marriage took place recently in the Grace Lutheran church in River Forest. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl C. Schroeder of River Forest. Lt. Middleton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Middleton of Oak Park.

Musical instruments are in increasingly great demand, and altho they are sometimes quite difficult to locate, we hope readers whose wind instruments no longer hold an important place in their lives and are consequently relegated to the background of forgotten things will heed the following pleas for trumpets:

Aviation machinist mate D., who is in the South Pacific, has written to his wife concerning the urgent need for band instruments. Music has a strong hold on men away from home. It eases the strain under which they live. To employ leisure time pleasurably and profitably, the group of which he is a member wishes to organize a band. His particular need is a trumpet. After exhausting every other possible source, his wife came to the conclusion that she might locate one thru this column.

The second appeal is from a boy 14 years old, one of a family of nine children, who is living in one of the most congested neighborhoods of the city where privileges are far too few. His two elder brothers are in service, leaving Jim with the responsibility of being the eldest of the children now at home. He is taking that responsibility seriously by maintaining a good school record and keeping regular attendance, and by being an active member and a leader in the neighborhood club. The activity which merits his greatest out of school interest is music, and he shows a particular talent for the trumpet. He is taking group lessons and looks forward to playing in the school band. Progress is delayed because he cannot practice, having no instrument of his own. Since his father has all he can do financially to provide the daily needs of his large family, he is unable to help his son realize his ambition.

Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs headquarters at 30 W. Washington st. will be converted into an art gallery Tuesday for an all-day exhibition of winning posters in the annual federation sponsored art contest for school children in the state. Thruout Illinois clubs contribute to a "penny" art fund, which this year reached the all-time high of $700. From the fund the federation's art department purchases pictures by well known contemporary artists, and these are given as prizes to the school having winning contestants. In this season's contest, the boys and girls painted posters depicting scenes in Illinois.

Mrs. Everett R. Mitchell of Morris, state chairman of art for the club federation, has procured this year an unusual array of prize pictures. Among the paintings which she has purchased are works by Charles W. Dahlgreen, William Eppens, Fred Penney, Anthony Buchta, Arnold Turtle, Esther Richardson, and Esther Skeen.

The school children's poster contest is for boys and girls in the seventh and eighth grades.

Mrs. Mitchell will be assisted in hanging the children's art work by Mrs. George Meyers, art chairman for the 2d district.

Elementary Press Group to Hear Tribune Writer

The Chicago Elementary Press association will have Miss Herma Clark as guest speaker at its 10th anniversary luncheon, set for 12:30 o'clock Saturday, May 26, in the Wedgwood room of Marshall Field and company. She has chosen for her topic, "When Chicago Was Young," the subject under which she writes for the Chicago Sunday Tribune. Members of a string trio—Alice Feddor Smith, violinist; Howard Pincus, cellist; and Mary Perkins, pianist—will share the program. Former presidents of the organization who have been invited as special guests include Mrs. Toby Goodman, founder; Mrs. Loretto Madden, Miss Catherine Donahoe, and Mrs. Elizabeth Sheffield.

Mrs. Peeples heads the Chicago Woman's Musical club, whose fete has been set for Thursday in the North room of the Edgewater Beach hotel. Dr. Rudolph Ganz and Dr. Edgar Nelson will speak briefly, and others invited as special guests include Mrs. Alma K. Anderson, president of the Illinois Federation of Music clubs; Mrs. James Allen Young, president of the federation's first district; Mrs. Royden J. Keith, National Federation secretary, and representatives of Chicago newspapers. Concert participants are to be Beatrice Eppinelle, concert pianist; Della Mae Laughlin, soprano, and Rita Wolfson. Mrs. Clara K. Vollmer will be inducted as president immediately following the program.

The Lake View society's new president, Mrs. Gladys Bezazian Herbekian, will assume her official duties when the club holds its program tomorrow in the Arts club. Mrs. Herbekian, a composer and pianist, is a graduate of Northwestern university, and has taught dancing in Chicago and New York.

Brig. Gen. Percy J. Carroll of Vaughan General hospital; Mrs. Rudolph W. Glasner, vice chairman of the camp and hospital committee of the American Red Cross; Philip Manuel and Gavin Williamson, harpsichordists; Mrs. Jennie E. Peterson, president of the Musicians Club of Women, and Mr. Tellander, will be among the special guests, and the music will be provided by Mary Frances Godwin, coloratura soprano; Julia Sturgis, contralto; Ilse Maren, pianist, and a trio consisting of Hattie Kraus, pianist; Anne Hawryliw, violinist, and Blanch Kryl Weber, cellist. Mrs. Vito B. Cuttone is in charge of the luncheon, and Mrs. Gladys Porter arranged the program.

Patriotic Societies Schedule Meetings During the Week

Illinois chapter of the Daughters of Founders and Patriots of America will gather at 12:30 o'clock tomorrow in the Chicago College club, 30 S. Michigan av., for luncheon and to hear a program of original humorous characterizations by the recitalist Lillian Brodahl Smith. Mrs. James Henry Jackson will preside.

Fort Checaugou chapter of the Daughters of the American Colonists wil hold its annual membership meeting and election following noon luncheon Saturday, May 26, in the Drake hotel. Hostess at the latter gathering will be Mrs. Harold E. Leopold.

Calendar of Chicagoland Club Events

Exception to the general run of clubs that wind up the season in a light and festive mood is the determinedly civic minded Cook County League of Women Voters. Spring may induce others to close the year on the note of luncheon party or musical, but when the undaunted county leaguers assemble at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning in state headquarters at 225 N. Michigan av., not only will they review annual reports, adopt a budget, elect officers and nominating committee alternates by the proportional representation method, a system to stump all but the experts, but they will have another bout with the county's knotty traction problem.

Mrs. Raleigh W. Stone

Maj. R. F. Kelker Jr., staff member of the city council's local transportation committee, will give details of the traction proposal which is to be submitted to the voters on June 4, and discuss the effect of the proposal on both city and suburbs.

Officers' and chairmen's reports will be given by: Mrs. Raleigh W. Stone, president's report; Mrs. Walter J. Preston, vice president, Cook county affairs; Mrs. Bradford L. Patton, vice president, Chicago affairs; Mrs. Oliver Westcott, public health; Mrs. Sewall Wright, housing; Mrs. Howard D. Moses, civil service; Mrs. Ambrose Fuller, centralized purchasing; Mrs. Milton Yondorf, Chicago schools; Mrs. Harry Adler, courts; Mrs. Myrtle Patzig, Chicago park district; Mrs. William M. Bryant, sanitary district and elections.

The Quota Club of Chicago will hear a talk on "Tropical Medicine in the Post-War World" by Dr. Carroll Birch at its 6 o'clock dinner meeting Wednesday in the Hotel Sherman's Old Town room. Dr. Birch, vice president of the American Medical Women's association, is associate professor of medicine in the University of Illinois college of medicine. An authority in the field of tropical medicine, Dr. Birch, in coöperation with the United States army, has been studying the problem of leprosy. Presiding at the Quota meeting will be Miss Margaret Hill.

The Independent German American Woman's club will gather its friends at 12:30 o'clock Wednesday in the Morrison hotel for a gala party, the annual officers' spring luncheon. Members and guests will be received by the president, Mrs. Anna M. Schaedler, and her staff. Present as special guests will be Mrs. Harry Hoff, president of the women's branch of the Germania club; Miss Elizabeth Folschweiler, president of Erholung; Miss Rose Beuhler, president of the Uhlich Orphan home, and Miss Adela Dammerau, president of the women's auxiliary of the German club. The program, arranged by Mrs. William Harmsen, will be an illustrated lecture on "The Beauties of Modern Cities," by Dr. Scott E. Bedford, formerly of the University of Chicago, and a piano group by Ilse Maren.

Designating the party for Mrs. John Messner, who has been reelected president, the Andoka Philanthropic club will hold its spring luncheon at noon Tuesday in the Edgewater Beach hotel. There will be cards. The social committee, of which Mrs. Sam McIntyre is chairman, is in charge.

• • •

Miss Nellie Fredeen will convene the American Daughters of Sweden for their annual reports and election meeting at 8 o'clock tomorrow night in the Woodrow Wilson hall at 84 E. Randolph st. After the business session, a reception for new members will be held, and three members, Mrs. George E. Q. Johnson, Mrs. George A. Mueller, and Mrs. Emma Iverson, will give talks on "Experiences of Our Sons Overseas."

Artists from Outside City to Hold Show

By Eleanor Jewett

The All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts will open its annual exhibit by artists living outside Chicago on Sunday, May 27, in the mezzanine galleries, Drake hotel. The jury is meeting next Wednesday morning. Last year this was a delightful and popular exhibit. There are many fine Illinois artists who live outside Chicago. Freeport, Galena, Peoria, and Champaign are only a few of the many towns which boast painters of merit and distinction.

• • •

Mrs. Edwin N. Johnson, who for many years was extremely active in the All-Illinois, leading its various activities and developing its strength, is returning shortly from the west to make her home in Lake Forest. Mrs. Johnson left the All-Illinois in the hands of Mrs. Nelly Deachman and her choice has proved itself wise and farsighted. Mrs. Deachman has gone ahead with the organization with the sincere approval and backing of its artist and lay membership. The All-Illinois is undoubtedly the largest and ablest society in the state in its work for and with the artists of Illinois. It will be a happy day when their slogan, "An original work of art by an artist of Illinois in every school and home of Illinois," becomes a fact.

The All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts has an interesting and colorful exhibition at the Stevens hotel, third floor gallery. It is the annual spring exhibition of work by members, which opened early in April to continue to Oct. 1. The awards for the show recently were announced. The pastel, "Collie," by Bruno Beghé, received first prize for portraiture in that medium. "Portrait of the Artist's Mother" by Walter Parke was given first prize for portraiture in oil.

The first prize in landscape in oil went to the stunning "Play on the Surf" by Louis Jensen; in water color the first landscape prize went to "Homeward Bound" by Frank Lansing. First in still life in oil was won by "Pewter Treasures" by Blanche Rose, and in the water color still life first prize went to "Still Life—Gladiolas" by Frank B. Spencer.

Ramon Froman, who has shown several of the finest portraits and portrait studies in the last few exhibitions, offers in the current show "Girl in Jeans," a thoroly charming and delightful canvas. His informal portraits are among the best being shown in any of the local galleries. There is a freshness and simplicity about the artist's work which is as attractive as his facile use of color and his relaxed brush stroke. Had I a 'teen age daughter I should certainly wend my way to Mr. Froman's studio with every prospect in the world of getting a fascinating for my wall.

Myrtle Frankovitz, who has been painting in Mexico this winter, shows "San Miguel" and "Rain on the Roofs," two bewitching water colors. Alfred Juergens, before his death a prominent painter in America and foreign centers, is represented by two delightful little oils, "The Dells" and "Wild Flowers." Mr. Juergens possessed the touch which never grows old and his paintings are as lovely and timely as tho they had been done yesterday. Ethel Crouch Brown shows a gay and colorful "Phlox Garden" and Charles Biesel has a pleasing "Wild Flowers."

Peggy Palmer Burrows, whose work is invariably colorful and amusing, offers "Tea on the Terrace" and "Ecdyces on Quadrennial," which last title leaves me gasping, whether or not my readers are more informed. At all events the "Tea on the Terrace" is a fascinating party, something out of "Alice," but with today's children. Charles Minghi shows "Breezy Day," a white capped sea, and Nan Rice has a charming study, "Brothers." Tunis Ponsen shows a lonely waste of land, "Gaspé Shore Scene," Winnifred Pleimling has a stunning still life, "Out of the Rain," and a capital, Victorian era, stylized portrait group of mother and daughter; Rachel Stearns offers two fine pastels of dogs and Florence White Williams has a breezy, loosely painted Atlantic coast scene in "Wharf at Rocky Neck."

Florence Ezzell Stevenson, Harry Sheckels, Lily Tolpo, Ella Pruss, F. W. Richardson, Sister Mary Paul, Esther L. Skeen, Erwin G. Kummer, Lucile Keeler, William H. Eppens, Oscar Lumby, Dorothy Helmuth, Josephine Eastman [with the delightful "In Grandmother's Garden"], and Marie Lilliston are among the painters who enrich the exhibit.

An exhibition of posters, from which one will be selected for the national war fund drive, will be held by America-Denmark relief today and tomorrow at the Drake.

The Arts club has two new exhibitions in its galleries. In the first rooms are installed the large, modern paintings of the Mexican painter, Rufino Tamayo. The paintings are crude in drawing and color. They are not particularly interesting in subject matter nor are they presented in any but a labored, stilted style. If one is an enthusiast for all modern art, one may find even this type of modernism worth while.

The smaller galleries offer a more varied and intriguing exhibit. Seven English artists are represented with, on the whole, pleasing results. Paul Nash is particularly poetic in concept and technique. His flowers floating thru space or balanced in the clouds above country landscapes are immensely pleasing. Moore can stand on the fine ink and crayon sketch, "Tube Shelter." John Piper paints in a forceful manner; his pictures are dark, dramatic, and virile. "Ship Inn" should go to some one's collection, the detail in it is fascinating, and "School House, Ecchinswell" is almost as captivating.

RECENT BRIDE

Mrs. Edward E. Kaiser, the former Helen Kelly, and Lt. (j.g.) Kaiser of the navy were married recently in the Church of St. Catherine of Siena in Oak Park, and are temporarily at home in New Orleans. Mrs. Kaiser is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Kelly of N. Austin av. Lt. Kaiser is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Kaiser of Eau Claire, Wis.

Jewish Council to End Season with Luncheon

The general membership of the National Council of Jewish Women's Chicago section will have an opportunity to meet and congratulate the newly elected president, Mrs. Charles Levin, and others of her official staff at a final assembly meeting tomorrow. A social occasion, the annual May luncheon, will be held at noon in the Standard club, with Mrs. Levin presiding. The new president will introduce the officers and directors who will serve on her board during her two year term in office.

[DuBois Photo]

Mrs. Levin succeeds Mrs. William H. Sahud as head of the large and active Chicago section of the council. During Mrs. Sahud's administration, she was on the executive committee as vice president in charge of program, and she also served as chairman of international relations, organizing and directing a series of educational forums at which she presented authoritative speakers on world affairs—meetings that attracted some of the largest audiences of the season.

Viola Roth Mandel's drama group, organized this season under Mrs. Henry Siegel's chairmanship, will demonstrate its progress at the party, presenting two short comedies, "Uplifting Sadie" and "Be Seated, Please." In the casts will be Mrs. Earl Aronberg, Mrs. Milton Berliner, Mrs. Lyle Ecker, Mrs. Morris Glasser, Mrs. Emaunel Heimann, Mrs. J. Leonard Herron, Mrs. Libbyan Hoffman, Mrs. Herman Kramer, Mrs. Maurice Levy, Mrs. Henry Melin, Mrs. Henry Siegel, Mrs. Simon Siegel, and Mrs. Abner Weiss.

Officers to be introduced formally at the party will be Mrs. Max Stein, Mrs. Morton H. Hoffman, Mrs. Harold L. Passman, and Mrs. Samuel B. Baker, vice presidents in charge of war activities, finances, membership, and programs, respectively; Mrs. Hannah S. Fred, treasurer; Mrs. Lewis Podrofski, recording secretary; Mrs. Albert H. Specter, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Mathias S. Anzel, financial secretary.

Mrs. Levin also will present the directors: Mrs. Samuel Byron, Mrs. Edward DuBroff, Mrs. Sidney Finkel, Mrs. Benjamin Greenebaum, Mrs. Walter Katzoff, Mrs. Harry J. Iverson, Mrs. Philip Lozowick, Mrs. Sidney Mandel, Mrs. Isadore Pilot, Mrs. Joseph Prochep, Mrs. Lewis Savitt, Mrs. David Shulman, Mrs. Karl Sobel, Mrs. Louis Strilky, Mrs. Milton H. Tiegerman, Mrs. Joseph Toloff, all of whom will sit for two years, and Mrs. Max Cooper, Mrs. Ben Grossman, Mrs. Max Rosenzweig, and Mrs. Sol Sackheim, who will continue for one year.

The council women will entertain some 300 service men at the U. S. O. center at 131 S. Wabash av. Tuesday night at an old fashioned "strawberry social" and dance. Mrs. Walter Katzoff, chairman of the army and navy committee, is in charge.

Fashions and Fancy

By Judith Cass

Some of the most beautiful flowers that bloomed on V-E day were worn to Orchestra hall for the Mendelssohn club and Chicago Symphonic choir concert at which Louis Sudler was the featured soloist. The program, with its many hymns, was a fitting end to Chicago's sober, reflective observance of the great day. In another year, without the cares of war, Mr. Sudler's downtown debut would have been the most gala of gala events. Altho Tuesday night's audience continued restrained in dress, it was heart warmingly enthusiastic in its reception of the soloist. His burnished hair and tall, slender figure, immaculate in tails, undoubtedly would produce the sort of swooning audience associated with the followers of a well known crooner should Mr. Sudler embark upon an operatic or concert career. Daisies stole the show from a sartorial point of view, with Mrs. Frank H. Woods Jr.'s stunning hat consisting of two enormous white daisies providing a constant source of compliments to its pretty owner. Giant greenish-white daisies were scattered over the black short frock which Mrs. W. Press Hodgkins wore to hear the Hodgkins' good friend in his debut, and super-colossal white ones, fully 10 inches across, were dotted here and there over Mrs. Chauncey Blair's black street length dress. The soloist's wife, arriving with her sister-in-law, Mrs. Nelson L. Barnes Jr., fumbled for her tickets as nervously as a jittery bride when she entered. Her ankle length gown was splashed in pastel flowers, and over her shoulders was a beautiful, circular cut cape of silver fox, quite out of the ordinary. Strolling on the box floor during intermission was Mrs. Arthur Meeker, whose softly draped evening gown was of pastel green chiffon. Draped over her shoulders was a filmy scarf of the green embroidered in darker tones. She was among the guests of the William E. Raglands. Mrs. Ragland [Edith Mason] is instructing Mr. Sudler. The Abner Stilwells came to the concert from a surprise birthday party at home, at which Mr. Stilwell cut a cake bearing five candles, which were to be multiplied an unrevealed number of times to represent his age. Mrs. Stilwell's black dinner-dress featured a white Irish lace peplum.

The popularity of the two piece suit was quite in evidence recently at an Arts club tea which was given to open two exhibitions, one of paintings by the Mexican artist, Rafino Tamayo, and the other of a collection of water colors by seven contemporary British painters. The president of the club, Mrs. Alfred P. Shaw, glimpsed greeting Mrs. R. H. B. Butler, wife of the British vice consul, was neatly tailored in a blue wool suit, the hip length jacket fitted and fastened in front with silver buckles, and given a crisp, springlike air by its snow white pique collar. Her gloves were white and her tiny hat was of red stitched crepe. Mrs. Butler, one of the women invited to pour, wore a mannish gray wool suit and matching hat. Another of those who assisted at the tea table, Mrs. Donald McPherson, chose a two piece suit—a handsome pearl gray woolen ensemble with a three-quarter length coat trimmed with gray Persian lamb. Mrs. Marshall Davison also wore a suit with a three-quarter length jacket. Her ensemble was of black wool, and across the shoulder of the fitted coat was flung a sable scarf. The eye-catching feature of Mrs. Davison's costume, however, was a fabulous hat, consisting of about a half a dozen gigantic white roses that tipped over the forehead, the green stems fastened in the back with a bow. Miss Doris Doe, the Metropolitan opera singer, was an attractive picture in a frothy little sailor brimmed with soft powder blue feathers, which contrasted with her dark tailored suit. Her blouse was of white crepe, softly tucked, the high round neckline set off by a pearl choker. Another feathered chapeau was the powder blue and navy one worn by Mrs. Arthur Wirtz. Feathers of the two shades were rolled neatly across the front to simulate a pompadour, and a large single plume fitted smoothly over the crown of the head. The colors were echoed in the large checks in Mrs. Wirtz' crepe frock.

From Wrentham, Mass., comes the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Winter of the marriage April 3 of their daughter, Marion Allison, to Comdr. James W. Thomson, United States navy, son of Mrs. George Thomson and the late Mr. Thomson of Tucson, Ariz., formerly of Chicago. The wedding took place in the home of the bride's parents. The bride, a graduate of Wellesley college, is a research assistant at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where Comdr. Thomson did his graduate work. He also studied at Illinois Institute of Technology and was graduated from the United States Naval academy at Annapolis in 1935. He now is on sea duty.

Lake Geneva Country Club Opens Season

By Rose Cour

LAKE GENEVA, WIS.

The greens are freshly shaven and the flags are flying at the Lake Geneva Country club, which opened according to tradition on May 1st. Henry C. Bartholomay, vice president, is acting president since the death a few weeks ago of the club's president, Augustus K. Maxwell. Mr. Bartholomay is the son of one of the charter members and founders of the club in 1897.

The Lake Geneva Yacht club will not open until June, with the first regatta scheduled for the last Saturday of that month. As in the past few years since the war began, the accent will be on youth at the club with a full schedule of "cub" boat races for both midweek and week-end, according to the club's secretary-treasurer, Ernst C. Schmidt.

At the west end of the lake, the Big Foot Country club is grooming its tricky up-hill-and-down-dale golf course, and a few hardy perennial players already have been seen braving the chill east wind to get a bit of early practice. The club will not open officially until the end of June, says Dr. Melford E. Zinser, general program chairman, and the usual formal dancing party will be a feature of the season's opening.

The club has a large honor roll, and among the men in service is Lt. John McKinlay Jr. of the navy, a veteran of the first World war and now an armed guard commander on a Liberty ship in the same Pacific area in which his son, John McKinlay III., is serving with the United States marines. Lt. McKinlay was only 16 when he joined the navy in World War I. The senior Mr. and Mrs. McKinlay have a charming summer home at the west end, not far from the Kohlsaat estate where Miss Edith Kohlsaat and her sister, Mrs. Harry L. Wells, live most of the year.

With houses and apartments so difficult to find in Chicago and suburbs, the number of summer home owners steadily grows. Mr. and Mrs. Philip A. Starck, who have three children, are among the lucky ones who have an attractive year-round home. It is next to the Hubbard Carpenter estate and directly across the lake from Casa del Suena, the summer home of Mr. Starck's mother, Mrs. Philip T. Starck.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Crane Gartz, and baby, Freddy Jr., have more recently acquired a house at Lake Geneva that might be called "Between Two Grandmothers," as Mr. Gartz's mother, Mrs. A. F. Gartz Jr., lives at Jerseyhurst, the old R. T. Crane estate, while young Mrs. Gartz's mother, Mrs. Thomas J. O'Brien, spends much of the year at her country home on the lake near Rosalie bay, named for the late Mrs. Harry Gordon Selfridge, who was Rose Buckingham.

Dr. and Mrs. William F. Petersen will not open their home at Black Point until June but they have been spending week-ends thruout the spring and winter at their Black Point farm. The three Petersen sons, Edward, Conrad, and William, are in service. Edward will be graduated from the Harvard medical school in June.

One of the historic farms of the region, known as the Dillenbeck farm and owned by that family for more than 100 years, long before Wisconsin was a state, has been purchased by Lockwood and Samuel Pirie. The land originally was acquired by government grant when this section was known as Ouisconsin territory. "Woody" Pirie is serving in the South Pacific, but Lt. Samuel Pirie is temporarily released after having served two and one-half years in the Pacific area. The brothers also own a farm at Spring Grove, Ill.

Another historic farm in the vicinity, which remained in the Sherman family for at least a century, recently was purchased by Marion W. Isbell of Chicago, who also owns the Maplewood farm, once part of the famous John J. Mitchell estate. Mr. and Mrs. Isbell and their several children spend much of the year at Maplewood.

"Highlands," the John W. Sanders farm, still is occupied only by caretakers, as the Sanderses and their two youngsters, John Ashley and Heather, with Mrs. Sanders' mother, Mrs. Fanny Bernhard, still are sojourning in Arizona, at the Sanderses' ranch in West Las Altas road, Tucson. Mr. and Mrs. Sanders, who live on North State parkway, will come north in June.

A few miles west of Lake Geneva, at Delavan lake, another group of Chicagoans finds the countryside so attractive that many of them live the year 'round at the lake and commute daily to the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Nelson Crawford are among the pioneers of this movement. While they are alone at present, they are expecting their daughter, Mrs. Norman L. Cavedo, and her two children, Russell and Suzy, to spend the summer with them. Mrs. Cavedo's husband, Capt. Cavedo, who is stationed at Chester Depot, Pa., may be able to join the family at the lake for a brief time.

Mrs. Cavedo's brothers also are in service. Capt. Russell N. Crawford Jr. is at Bowman field, Louisville, Ky., after three strenuous years overseas in the African and Italian campaigns, and Corp. Lawrence Crawford is at Fort Lewis, Wash.

Another Chicago family which has found Delavan lake a pleasant winter as well as summer home is that of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer T. Stevens and their lovely sub-deb daughters. Mr. and Mrs. Burr Robins, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Borg, and Dr. and Mrs. Frank M. McKibben of Evanston and their small daughter, Cathy, also spend many months there. Miss Jean McKibben is attending the University of Wisconsin. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Kingdon, Mr. and Mrs. John Dunsmore, and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar G. Buzzell are other Chicagoans who rapidly are becoming confirmed Lake Delavanites.

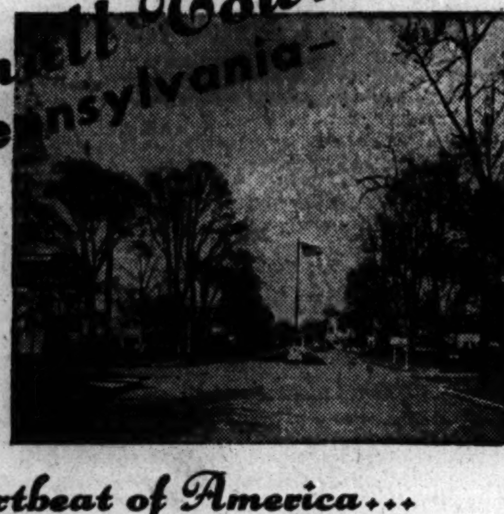
Small Town Pennsylvania—



Heartbeat of America...

The American flag waves proudly in its center... the drug store is meeting place for the high-school crowd... the general store still sells everything... everyone knows everyone else by his first name.

This is Small Town, Pennsylvania, heartbeat of America... crossroads of the nation. This is the town many a fighting son wants to come back to.

A little town—but here children grow up and people grow old—rooted to the fundamentals that have made America and Pennsylvania great.

It is a wonderful commentary about the Keystone State that 1,000,000 people live in small towns—more than in any other state. You will like these small towns—and the people in them. This is a part of America you should see.

Understanding Parents Enjoy Their Children

By Gladys Huntington Bevans

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"We enjoyed having them around."

Tucked in near the end of a letter from a grandmother, which I intend to quote later, is this reference to her own children and the days when they were young. I have lifted it out because in a way it seems significant to me. In simple words it paints a picture of the way things should be in a family when children are small; their mother and father should be able to enjoy them. But this is only possible, and I know some persons will be ready immediately to dispute this statement, when parents understand their children and so know how to manage them.

If they do not understand their children and cannot handle them smoothly thru these early learning years, there is constant friction and upheaval, constant scolding and correcting on the mother's or father's part, constant resistance on the children's part, all of which makes impossible the enjoyment of one's sons and daughters.

Indeed, it makes impossible, too, the joy children on their side actually feel in the companionship and responsiveness of their mother and father, and in the peace that prevails when the atmosphere is as clear as it should be. No human relationship that is valid can be entirely one-sided. If you really "enjoy having your children around," it does something to the way you are with them, so that they sense it and respond happily to it.

As I have said before, these very early years of your child's life are among the most enjoyable and [fundamentally] the least anxious periods of parenthood, for then your problems, if any, are minor ones; the children are always where you know them to be safe; and they are going thru such engaging, amusing, rapidly changing phases of childhood that they keep you continually entertained, even entranced.

But none of this is so unless you have intuitively, or acquire, the ability to get them thru the many and varied physical routines with smooth management that are important to their physical and psychological upbringing. The following letter [which is changed in personal details] is one of many that have come to my desk concerning little boys and girls.

"Dear Mrs. Bevans:

"I often read your column on the care of children. Will you please send me, or write in your column some advice for my daughter? She is quite young [23 years old] and her husband is in the army. There are two babies. Joan will be 3 years old in December and Jerry 1½. Joan is slow in talking but she can say a few words, such as 'bad dog,' but if you don't answer her she gets quite angry, and will rock herself from side to side. She also will sit in the chair and wet herself sometimes, but will ask her mother at all other times. Do you think it would be a good idea to take her to a doctor? Jerry was wonderful as a baby, but he is making up for all of that now. No matter how he is spanked, it makes no impression on him. The house is in an uproar from the time the children get up until bed time.

"I have brought my own family up. But never anything like this. We enjoyed having them around. Surely there must be some way to help and correct these faults, instead of scolding them all the time. It is really sad when people do not understand children. Will you please help my daughter?"

It is indeed really sad when adults do not understand children. But with a strong desire, thought, and observation, and, in many cases, the added help of reading what is being written for their enlightenment, parents can learn.

Also having seen as much as I have of young soldiers and their wives coping with the coming of babies under the strains and difficult financial problems that war brings, I realize that they've had lots of responsibility suddenly thrust upon them. Still it would ease everything else for them if these young mothers could learn how to manage and enjoy their children, which is another way of saying they would learn to understand them.

I want to make just one comment on the behavior of little Joan. I feel quite sure that her occasional lapses in toilet habits and her other little "ways" are traceable to the arrival of her baby brother, Jerry, who was obviously one of those "wonder second babies"—all sunshine and easy to manage.

Fashions

By Angela

Nowadays we have mother and daughter ensembles in practically every type of feminine dress from pajamas to aprons, and none can deny that they are an effective twosome. There are as many apron styles as there are materials from which they may be fashioned, and they range from frivolous bits of frothy half aprons to the sturdy coverup type fashioned from water repellant plastic fabrics.

The yellow pinafore set is unusual because of the two ways in which the top may be worn buttoned on at the waistband. Mother may drape hers fichulike across her chest while daughter wears hers straight. White eyelet embroidery edges the pinafore and two deep pockets. It is available also in pink, white, and blue.

Another unusual pair is of red and white check fashioned from water repellant plastic fabric. These full length aprons are not washed, merely wiped off with a cloth moistened in soapy water. They also are available in blue and green checks.

Newly arrived in a Chicago store is a fresh looking white organdy apron which should be included in every woman's array. It has fly away ruffles at the sides of a bib, extending over the shoulders, down the back to fasten at the waist band.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 diamond	Pass
2 no trump	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ten of spades.

There is strange psychology in the person who has passed a hand that is not far removed from an opening bid. Should partner open the bidding in third or fourth position, such player more often than not lets go with the fury of the waters of a burst dam. While it is very true that a player who has made a maximum pass should lean toward the aggressive side in subsequent rounds of bidding, nevertheless he should take time out to get a clear view of the situation, and not leap blindly into what may prove to be an unsound contract just because he happened to have passed 2½ tricks. It may be important to find out where the hand is to be played. Players who have a tendency to jump too freely to bids like two no trump after having passed, would be better advised to open the bidding on these questionable hands and then slow up on later rounds of bidding.

In today's hand South, having passed 2½ tricks, decided to jump to two no trump when partner opened with one diamond. This is unsound strategy for two reasons. In the first place there might be game in hearts if partner happens to have some such holding as four small hearts, which he would never show; secondly, if there is a game at no trump, it may well be that North has some spade holding that had better be led up to, and he should be given the opportunity to bid no trump first, unless his hand is unsteady. Had South responded with one heart, North would have bid one no trump and South would have gone to three. No amount of ineptness on the part of North could have prevented fulfilments of the contract.

Against South the 10 of spades was opened, covered by the jack and the queen. East returned a club and South took the finesse. West won and continued the deuce of spades. This established the suit in East's hand while he still retained the ace of hearts and the contract went on the rocks for a trick.

Taking the club finesse was little short of absurd. Quickly pouncing upon the club with the ace, Declarer could have counted nine tricks, by the simple expedient of driving out the ace of hearts. The extra trick in clubs could have been scored later. Furthermore, even if East held the king of clubs it was very unlikley that it could be captured, inasmuch as South held only two.

On the House

By Louise Bargelt

There is plenty to be done in and around the home in spring and summer and since this year there is always a certain marked accent on white, we've prepared a leaflet on "White Accessories Come Clean." . . . For after all is said, white accessories only stay white if given the proper treatment and cleaning. . . . And we have included in this leaflet tips on the care and cleaning of leather and upholstered articles.

Also, as we look around to see what the market offers in touch-up materials for woodwork and floors, there is a finish available which will give a handsome porcelainlike surface to bathroom and kitchen woodwork. . . . Likewise a floor varnish for imprinted linoleum which will give a hard finish to kitchen linoleum, one which is not affected by hot or cold water and is durable and long lasting.

[For further information on above items and also for the leaflet "White Accessories Come Clean," please send stamped, addressed envelope to Louise Bargelt, Home Owners' Editor, The Chicago Tribune.]

Mother's Day

A million new heartbreaks heighten its poignancy as they remind of Felicia Hemans' lines—

They grew in beauty side by side,
They filled one house with glee;
Their graves are severed far and wide,
By mount and stream and sea.

The same fond mother bent at night
O'er each fair sleeping brow. . . .

Today—and every day—many a mother is easing her own heartache by devoting all possible time to being "Mom" to boys at U. S. O. and other centers, on farflung battle fronts, and in the hospitals. And many another mother's biting anxiety is eased, knowing that a "mother-by-proxy" is trying to make the way a little smoother and easier for her son.

I like to think that Anna Jarvis got her inspiration for this day for honoring mothers from that long ago "Mothering Sunday," when, in rural England, it was the custom to carry offerings to one's mother church, and later to go "a-mothering" with gifts to one's parents.

A resolution of congress instituted the observance of a day dedicated to home and mother in 1913. The following year the President issued a proclamation for the first national Mother's day, fixing the second Sunday in May for its annual date.

Flowers for Mother

His hands behind him cautiously,
He came in from the wooded lot,
Each elfin eye a great, still dot,
"Flowers for you, mother, see!"

They were humble, these flowers of his choice,
Unevenly clutched in a chubby fist.
Violets, mayflowers, I saw thru mist
And heard in a dream his midget voice.

'Twas Mother's day today, he was sure . . .
They drooped a little coming home,
But he wanted to pick them all alone.
I clung to them just as they were . . .
Warm from his fingers, moist from the sod,
And I—I was hand in hand with God.

Mother's Day Gifts

The customers crowded the flower shop
Buying flowers for glad Mother's day,
So carefully selecting and choosing
For each knew the mother's way.

There were some buying flowers for her window
And some buying flowers for her yard;
Still others securing corsages,
With each went a greeting card.

In my turn I, too, bought a flower
But no card. And I tried to be brave.
There was only one place I could put it,
And that was on mother's grave.

Harking back to Sunday work. Out of sympathy for women who must do a larger amount of it on that day, Mary Edith Shaw says that—

The Sabbath Was Made for Man

'Tis sweet to dream heaven will be
A quiet place for rest,
At least not full of drudgery;
For I am at my best
When lounging to meditate
And hear no frets if meals are late.

'Tis a happy fact, the Eternal One
Decreed that heavy tasks be done
In six days of the week.
For His reason none need seek.
One day for worship in each seven
Affords a glad foretaste of heaven.

Just thoughts give due consideration
To families of a warring nation
Who boost morale for fight
By sending gifts to keep hearts light.
So worry not if you must take
A hallowed hour to bake a cake.

New Moon

Bright moon, clear cut against the west,
But one short hour ago
A golden sunset slipped too soon,
And left a paleness vast;
Now beauty shines again, new moon,
From out your silver bow;
With grace you touch the darkening sky
And share a star's first glow.

If you like sour cream dressing for some spring salads and sour cream sauces for some of the hot dishes, use this laboratory formula for souring cream: Shake up five teaspoons of buttermilk in a pint of sweet cream and let stand 24 hours in a warm place, 75 to 80 degrees.

Dairy specialists explain that the buttermilk adds a large number of active milk souring bacteria which grow rapidly themselves and prevent the growth of those bacteria that give the naturally soured cream the off-flavor and the unpleasant odor it often has.

Designs for Needlework

By Ellen Bruce

The attractive crocheted boléro, No. 958, is created in an interesting fan stitch. It is simple to make and requires little time, since the fan stitch is not difficult to execute.

Corde fashions the hat and bag set, No. E-1169. The hat is so designed as to be worn either forward or back, depending upon the hair style. The purse is done in simple stitches and works up rapidly.

For instructions in crocheting either of these items, send 15 CENTS in coin (wrap coin securely—30 CENTS for both) to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th av., New York 1, N. Y.

Thru the Looking Glass

For June brides and girl graduates there's no more appropriate fragrance than lily of the valley, memorable and sweet, symbol of youthful hopes and bright tomorrows. It's the perfume for the young and the young in heart.

We can think of no nicer gift for a bride or graduate than one or perhaps a set of scenting agents in this fragrance, and if you don't want to risk picking one at random, we'd suggest that you consider the product of one of the famous beauty houses. You'll be assured of lily of the valley in all its true beauty with none of the patently synthetic characteristics which are apt to make translations of the flower fragrance so disappointing.

The perfume is delightfully refreshing, fresh, and blithe, and while it is definitely on the sweet side, there's a clear green note which overshadows any tendency toward the saccharine or overbearing sweetness.

There's a companion toilet water and a wonderful dusting powder to match this. The dusting powder is fluffy and cooling and generously scented with the perfume.

It's the kind of accessory that gives the feeling of crispness to the person and adds a nice flip to dressing. The powder is packaged in a pretty pink box embellished with a design of lily of the valley sprays tied with lovers' knots.

These may be purchased separately or in sets, and, lovely as they are, none of the items is expensive. They represent quality in a big way, despite their low cost, and one or more of them makes a gift that will be warmly received by any young woman.

Let Fine Quilt Be the Basis of Room's Decor

By Edith Weigle

If you are so fortunate as to have among your possessions a handmade quilt, why not let it furnish the color scheme for your bedroom? One of the most beautiful displays of this example of fine needlecraft we've ever seen is now being held by a Chicago store and it serves to show the highly decorative quality of these spreads.

They comprise a collection of over 100 items and come from states both north and south. All have been made within the last 10 years, but many are faithful copies of treasured old patterns: the Humming Bird, the Double Wedding Ring; the Broken Star; the Sunburst; the Old Maid's Puzzle, and many more.

One of the handsomest was sewn by a New Orleans woman and won a blue ribbon at the state fair. The design is one of huge, pale blue baskets of flowers in tones of pink, yellow, lavender, and blue on a white ground, and each flower is delicately button-holed around the edges. The judges, examining the stitches with a magnifying glass, found they were so perfectly matched that there was less than 1-32 of an inch difference in their size and spacing!

Another beautiful quilt is made up of green and beige squares, each of the latter having for its design a state flower done in satin-stitch. The effect was exceedingly rich and colorful, like a fine old tapestry.

Still another used the Sawtooth pattern as its basis of design, but had a motif essentially modern in feeling and carried out in only two colors: coral and beige. The reverse side was coral and it was here that one saw the absolute perfection of the quilting. The edges of the spread were finished in a sawtooth border, thus repeating the pattern.

For a little girl's bed there was a delightful quilt in big pink and white squares with large single butterflies in patchwork, outlined in black stitching, in each of the white squares.

Seen in a corner of a room setup was a Humming Bird quilt in pale yellow and brown, one of the finest in the collection. The floor was painted brown and at the long window were three tiers of Dutch curtains in plain yellow bound in brown, hung under a gathered valance.

On a single bed of the old four-poster type was a gay red and white quilt. Here again the floor had been painted red, to match, and the wallpaper was a dull red outline design on white.

Since each of these bedspreads is really a little masterpiece of needlecraft and since so many hours of patient, skilled labor have gone into its creation prices are not low. They start around $23 and go up to approximately $200.

For information on where in Chicago this display of hand-made quilts may be seen telephone the Tribune Public Service office, Sup. 0200, or write to Miss Weigle, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply.

A Weekly Sponsored Column of Things Advertised and Interesting.

NEW YORK, N. Y., May 13th—Ever felt you wanted to lasso the sun and hold it still while you took time-out to rest and "perk-up" for an important party in the evening? Well, never you mind . . . there's another way to achieve that rested, smooth-skinned look! Just give yourself a quick beauty "pick-up" with EDNA WALLACE HOPPER'S White Clay Pack! Spread this pleasant cream mask over face and throat and wash off after about 8 minutes. You'll be delighted to see your skin looking fresher, younger, clearer! That's because EDNA WALLACE HOPPER'S White Clay Pack has helped de-flake aging "top-skin,"—to reveal the more tender and youthfully "alive" skin just beneath old, dried-up or discolored cells. Invest in this quick beauty "pick-up" . . . it's marvelous for putting you into party-mood!

What more appropriate moment than Mother's Day to give a valuable clue to happier housekeeping? Here it is—SILVO Liquid Silver Polish! It's the cleaner used on the gold and silver plate at Buckingham Palace . . . so you KNOW it's safe for your Mother's precious silver. It will work with a minimum of effort on her part . . . for it gets into tiny crevices and chased work, cleans, and comes out again with only the lightest rubbing! SILVO leaves no chalky deposit . . . for it washes right off. Polish lightly and there's your silver—clean, lustrous! Cost is 25c at leading Department and Grocery Stores. Now whisper the word to Mother—SILVO.

For that Young Look!

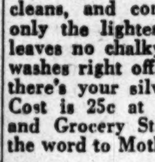
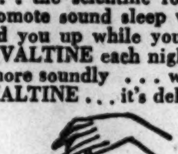
Mother's Day is uppermost in our minds today, so let's consider the subject of an ideal face powder for mature women. I especially recommend the clear, fresh "Champagne Rosee" of HOUBIGANT'S "Translucid" Face Powder. This warm, flattering shade is just as soft and appealing as Spring itself . . . the powder is sheer-sifted and micro-milled to let the complexion tones "glow through" . . . it's enchantingly perfumed as only HOUBIGANT knows how to perfume a face powder. Cost is $1.50 at better Department and Drug Stores. HOUBIGANT makes 8 other "Translucid" Face Powder shades . . . but "Champagne Rosee" is just perfect for women who treasure a charm that is natural,—and fresh as May!

Does May weather give you that hand-spring-y feeling inside . . . giddy, glad and thrilled to be alive? NO? Then learn the way to get sounder sleep at night so that you wake up radiant and fresh . . . with May "sparkle" about you! OVALTINE can help you . . . the scientific food-concentrate designed to promote sound sleep without drugs and to help build you up while you sleep. Drink a cup of warm OVALTINE each night. See if you don't go to sleep more quickly and sleep more soundly . . . wake up fresh as a spring flower. Ask your Grocer for OVALTINE . . . it's delicious!



Let 'em tug all they like . . . for there's no chance of their tearing these new baby pants made of PLASTI-CLEER! This sensational new development in the field of plastic chemistry provides a material that is as tough and durable as leather! It combines all the advantages of rubber panties, with none of their disadvantages . . . is waterproof, pliable, washable and strong . . . heatproof, acid and oil-resistant, and odorless as well! In addition, PLASTI-CLEER Baby Pants are light as a feather . . . clear as crystal and soft as finest silk so as to avoid chafing baby's tender skin. At Chain and Department Stores,—made and guaranteed by GOODYEAR RUBBER SUNDRIES Inc., New Haven, Conn. Act NOW . . . the supply is limited!

Not a very graceful pose,—but who can blame the lady if her feet are torturing her? Methinks somebody ought to tell her about DR. SCHOLL'S LuPADS . . . comforting support where she needs it most,—right at the ball of her foot! LuPADS are such blessed relievers of foot-fret because they loop right over the forepart of each foot and snuggle soft pads under metatarsal arches . . . thereby cushioning them against shock, pressure, painful callouses and burning sensations. These dainty, featherlight pads won't show even in light summer slippers. Cost is $1 at Drug and Shoe Stores; or state shoe size and send $1 direct to DR. SCHOLL, 213 W. Schiller St., Chicago, Ill.



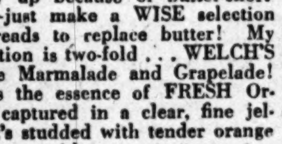
Charm is a composite of many graces . . . an intangible gift! But surely, a subtle whiff of romance is one of its most endearing handmaidens! That's why I consider DJER-KISS Sachet by Kerkoff a real aid to charm! A pinch of DJER-KISS Sachet swished in hat boxes, kerchief or lingerie cases; in coat pockets, or made into dainty sachet bags and hung in your closet will make a world of difference in the way you feel . . . surrounding you with the subtle fragrance of the "world's most romantic scent"! Make sachet bags from pieces of dainty material, stuff with wads of cotton into which you've sprinkled a small quantity of DJER-KISS Sachet . . . or sprinkle this fragrant powder in dresser drawers among your "pretties." Cosmetic, Drug and Department Stores carry DJER-KISS in 69c and $1 bottles!

A beautiful figure, posture a queen would envy . . . and fashions well chosen to accentuate the lines of Nature's endowing! What a gift to any woman! Yet there's a chance for "bumbling" the whole effect if there's a careless bulge or revealing edge to interrupt the faultless silhouette! Why risk it on certain days each month . . . why not depend on TAMPAX for sanitary protection that's INVISIBLE? Made of compressed surgical cotton perfected by a doctor on the well-known principle of internal absorption: TAMPAX comes in Regular, Super and Junior sizes at Drug and Notions Counters . . . ask for it and learn what TAMPAX-freedom can mean!

Thought you'd like to see this sketch again . . . for surely there's not a prettier compact or cigarette case anywhere! VOLUPTE made both of silver-plated metal, chased in a stunning spiral design . . . and added a lasting and colorful pattern of enamelled floral decorations. The compact costs $3, plus tax, and the thin cigarette case is $5, plus tax. Choose either VOLUPTE beauties as a gift you're proud to make . . . a present any woman will be proud to own! You'll find them at Compact Counters in most smart shops . . . wonderful for Graduation Gifts . . . a charming surprise for a gracious hostess!

"Spring Cleaning" For Your Face

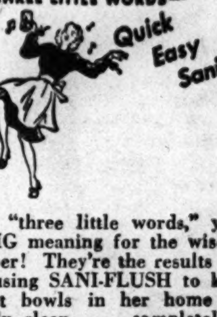
Learned a whole new bag-o-tricks about how to "Spring Clean" a slightly dry complexion! Just follow this easy "beauty recipe"! Apply, freely, fluffy YARDLEY Dry Skin Cleansing Cream to spirit away stubborn dirt and grime,—then fold a tissue over each hand in the shape of a mitt and wipe away the cream coating. Next,—apply a thin film of the cream again . . . and hold a hot wash cloth over your face to loosen anything clogging your pores. After steaming for a few minutes, gently press out softened blackheads with the SIDES of your fingers. Avoid using fingertips for fear of bruising your skin. You'll find that your skin is softened and lubricated, as well as beautifully cleansed . . . for YARDLEY Dry Skin Cleansing Cream is compounded of beneficial oils for extra lubrication. Cost is only $1 a jar . . . small price for this fine YARDLEY Cream that can keep your skin scrupulously clean and help coax it to a fresher smoothness!



Don't tuck away your favorite recipes for hot breads or pass your bakery up because of butter-shortages,—just make a WISE selection of spreads to replace butter! My suggestion is two-fold . . . WELCH'S Orange Marmalade and Grapelade! One is the essence of FRESH Oranges captured in a clear, fine jelly that's studded with tender orange peel . . . neither too tart, nor too sweet. The other is Grapelade, made from the same fine Concord Grapes that go into famous WELCH'S Grape Juice,—a spread that has the "body" of a jam and the "spreadability" of a fine jelly! Try serving WELCH'S Orange Marmalade and Grapelade to your family when faced with a butter-crisis . . . they hardly notice the lack after the taste-thrill of these two WELCH fruit-spreads hits them!

Aid to Skin Troubles!

Nature's Spring blossoms are beautiful,—but the same cannot be said of skins that blossom with a crop of Spring blemishes that make you want to keep out of sight. What YOU need—and quick—is GOURIELLI'S Sulfo-Collodio Cream. This sulphur cream (yes, Gran'ma would approve this time-honored remedy) helps control externally caused pimples, surface-clogged pores and scaliness. It's a check for oiliness . . . a help in loosening blackheads,—yet, it never shows on your skin, for it has a vanishing base. Men and boys, as well as women and girls, find it pleasant to use. Cost is $1.50 . . . at smart shops; or at Gourielli, Inc., 16 E. 55th St., New York 22, N. Y.



Just "three little words," yet what a BIG meaning for the wise housekeeper! They're the results she gets by using SANI-FLUSH to keep the toilet bowls in her home scrupulously clean . . . completely eliminating scrubbing, rubbing and hand soil! You see . . . SANI-FLUSH works chemically—loosening and removing even the stubborn stain caused by hard water in your community. It also disinfects as it cleans . . . so that ordinary cleansers are unnecessary. So why not give SANI-FLUSH complete charge of toilet bowl sanitation in your home? QUICK, EASY, SANITARY are the "three little words" describing its action! Put SANI-FLUSH on your grocery list today and see for yourself!

If you've a young friend who's just adopted smoking,—why not introduce her to VICEROY Cigarettes? I'm sure she'll like this SMART cigarette for SMART women . . . for it completely eliminates so many un-feminine smoking annoyances! First off, the VICEROY filter tip keeps tobacco crumbs IN the cigarette where they belong, rather than flecking into the mouth to stain pretty white teeth or sticking to a pretty cupid's bow! This goes for purses, too! Most important, however, the filter tip filters resins, tars and other irritants OUT of the smoke,—so that clean, mild smoking pleasure is the result!

Recipe for Home-Beauty!

Here's a recipe for room loveliness: —½ gallon of water, 1 gallon of Glidden's SPRED, 1 idle afternoon and one energetic homemaker. SPRED flows on smoothly and easily from either brush or roller applicator . . dries in about ½ hour . . . leaves no "painty" smell . . . is so durable it will stand repeated washings. Best of all are SPRED's wonderful colors—preferred 3 to 1 by America's leading decorators! Do take my advice and try SPRED . . . you'll be amazed at how easy it is to re-do a dingy room into bright, new beauty yourself! Look for your SPRED dealer's name in classified section of your phone book.

Just 23 Calories!

Mr. Webster says that "ubiquitous" means "existing everywhere at the same time; omnipresent." And because I find it in so many homes, on train dining cars, in fine restaurants and even served for many airplane meals, I'd call RY-KRISP the most ubiquitous of breads! Reason is that it's demanded by so many discriminating people. You see, it's made of two blends of pure rye, salt and water . . . and is therefore a perfect bread for those suffering from various allergies. It contains only 23 calories in each golden wafer,—so it becomes a favorite of those who covet a slim figure and follow the Ry-Krisp plan. Most important, of course, is RY-KRISP'S hearty rye goodness . . . delicious when served with soups, salads, or as a main course bread. Why not try it in your own home? Ask your Grocer for RY-KRISP tomorrow!

Gala Luncheon Entrees Accent Plentiful Fare

By Mary Meade

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

This spring's informal luncheons are meatless and chickenless. No more ham loaves or chicken a la king in pastry shells. Meat and chicken are too hard to come by. Sea food au gratin served in shells or a vegetable plate or casserole is a more likely entree.

A sea food combination can consist of steamed fish of one of the cheaper varieties, broken into pieces and combined with pieces of shrimp, lobster meat, or other of the luxury fish. Thus the dish may have an interesting blend of fish flavors and textures and still not be expensive. A handful of firm fleshed shrimps or one lobster tail will add interest to enough of the creamed fish mixture to serve five or six. Use an ordinary white sauce base, but perk it up slightly with a little lemon juice, mustard, a touch of curry, some minced parsley or a grated cheese and crumb topping.

A luncheon menu featuring this dish might look this way: Sea food au gratin served in shells, fresh peas or asparagus, thin, crisp crusted baking powder biscuits, sliced tomato salad on watercress, strawberry sundaes, and coffee. The color, flavor and texture contrasts in this menu are appealing and there's another virtue—ease of preparation. A busy woman may have the creamed sea food already in the shells, with the crumb or crumb and cheese topping ready to apply at the last minute; she may have the biscuits shaped and chilling on the baking sheet, the ice cream ready in the freezing unit, and sugared strawberries on hand for the sundae topping. Even the tomatoes could be peeled in the morning, leaving very little to do at the time of the luncheon.

A vegetable plate luncheon doesn't require a great deal of time, but there's more last minute preparation involved, as vegetables are never at their best if cooked ahead of time. Interesting in appearance, color and flavor is this vegetable plate menu: Creamed fresh peas and celery in ramekins, parsley potatoes, whole carrots glazed with honey or corn sirup, pickled beet and cottage cheese salad on leaf lettuce, corn sticks, berry jam, orange cake, and coffee.

Easy to prepare and have ready without undue fuss is a luncheon of old fashioned baked beans with a tossed vegetable salad composed of all the crisp and colorful vegetables you can afford to throw into it, brown bread, bran muffins, or gingerbread squares, and a dessert of fruit, crackers, and cheese, with coffee.

Other simple and good luncheon menus without meat or chicken are these:

Creole shrimps on rice, fresh asparagus, sliced orange salad on watercress with strawberry garnish, homemade yeast rolls, deep dish apple or rhubarb pie, coffee.

Scalloped potatoes with sliced green onions, baked tomato halves topped with crumbs and mushroom caps, cole slaw, jelly muffins, apple crisp, and coffee.

Hot deviled eggs on toast with tomato or cheese sauce, fresh asparagus, tossed vegetable salad, fresh fruit pie with lattice crust, coffee.

Patterns by Clotilde

This will be a stay-at-home summer, because of travel restrictions, and it's the wise wardrobe planner who starts now to assemble a selection of clothes to wear on the beach and at picnics in the city parks.

One model, designed for girls up to 14, has a sunback top with shoulder straps, a full skirt for freedom of movement in beach games, and a brief bolero to make the dress suitable for street appearances.

The same advantages are offered by a second model, in adult sizes. This one adds capacious pockets and is especially attractive in striped cottons.

A bolero also accompanies the diminutive playsuit for small beachcombers. It's trimmed with ruffling which also adorns the little hat included in the pattern.

Style No. 3778 is designed for sizes 6 to 14. Size 8 requires 1¾ yards of 35 inch material for dress and ⅝ yard for bolero.

Style No. 2908 is designed for sizes 10 to 20. Size 16 requires 2⅞ yards of 35 inch fabric for dress and 1 yard for bolero.

Style No. 2885 is designed for sizes 1, 2, 3, 4 and 6. Size 2 requires 1⅜ yards of 35 inch fabric, 6½ yards of edging for playsuit and bolero and ⅝ yard of 36 inch material with 4 yards of edging for bonnet.

Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing.

The spring edition of The Chicago Tribune Book of Clotilde Fashions now is on sale at the Public Service offices, 1 S. Dearborn st. and Tribune Tower lobby, for 15 cents. The cost is only 12 cents if the book is ordered with a pattern from the address in coupon.

Special Shops Stress Career Girl Fashions

By Rea Seeger

The smart business girl shopping centers are here to stay. Enthusiastically approved by that crowd of shrewd, smart shoppers, these sequestered shops within a store are filled not only with the smartest and newest fashions, but with business girls themselves.

The collections are renewed daily with dresses, suits, coats, and costume accessories. Some feature dresses, suits, and outer apparel only; others have everything from hats to underlayers all gathered together to facilitate speedy shopping. Business girl needs, from the slim office suits, jackets, and skirts, to the one piece dresses and outfits of skirt and jacket that look like a suit yet are made in one beautifully fitted, well designed costume, are being shown.

Experts to advise, guide, and show brand new models are part of the selling staff in each shop. But what makes these helpful haunts the perfect aid and comfort to a hurried shopper is the fact that an entire wardrobe can be assembled within the confines of that shop. A lunch hour can be used with excellent results. Most of the centers are open Monday nights.

The clothes are neat without being Spartan plain; every piece is beautifully detailed and tailored. New colors and new color combinations are shown almost as soon as they're fashion headliners. And while the day time outfits for business days are star finds, clothes for a week-end of play, travel, or lounging about home likewise are an important part of the displayed merchandise.

In one especially popular business girl shop all the merchandise is hung on racks to be inspected easily by the shoppers themselves. There also are business girl advisers to render first aid about final selections as to style, combinations of accessories, or colors. Seasonal fashions appear as soon as they are unpacked, so everything new and different always is available.

One new costume or a complete wardrobe can be selected easily without leaving the section. Important blouse collections, showing dressup or simple work-a-day models always are especially interesting, as blouses add immeasurably to the success of a suit or a skirt and jacket combination.

Extra skirts and jackets, the kind that are ready for matching or contrasting skirts or jackets in the wardrobe are part of the wide and smart display. Short coats, brief jackets, and bolero costumes are this spring's headliners of business girl fashions, and now come the office cottons, dresses, and suits for wear down town as well as for the office. These first summer cottons are fresh, crisp, and wearable, since the neutral and dark colors are stressed.

Indispensible all-black, cinnamon brown, and navy blue dresses provide a slick foundation with which to wear colored or white summer accessories. Neat, crisp checked and striped rayon dresses of the sleeveless cool type are colorful and plentiful, with that greatly desired simplicity of silhouette and detail. With these simple models come the slightly more dressup models suitable for afternoon wear without having too much frou-frou. All are priced to fit a business girl's budget.

Sketched are four brand new summer models. All are representative of the entire collection and may be found in a smart business girl's shop within one of Chicago's well known stores. For further information call Superior 0200.

A . . . Smart checked cotton dress in brown, white, and black has two piece effect. Youthful peplum defines waist line. • B . . . Striped rayon dress boasts surplice front and gathered skirt. Available in pink and black or yellow and black. • C . . . Simple dotted afternoon dress features side drapery and brief sleeves. • D . . . Unusual button-on dress is of sheer rayon, and is available in pastel and neutral colors.
